AYER'S HAIR VIGOR,
For Restoring Gray Hair to its Natural Vitality and Color.
A Dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for Preserving the Hair. Faded or gray Hair is even restored to its original color, with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use.
Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remains can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor, can only benefit but not harm it.
If wanted merely for a HAIR DRESSING, nothing also can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

The Daily Chronicle.

Portsmouth, N. H.

THURSDAY, SEPT. 22, 1870.

THE WAR.—Advices from Orleans attribute great importance to the engagement at Vissons, Monday. The Prussians suffered much from the French artillery, hidden in the woods. The battle lasted nearly all day. The Prussians at length were forced to retreat.

The Prussian troops were badly defeated the same day, in attempting to storm Fort Dumont Valerien, on the west side of Paris.

Another account of the battle of Vissons, says, 25,000 French massed near the northern part of the town, were attacked by 15,000 Prussians. The Prussians were mowed down by the French artillery, but after considerable loss recrossed the river in good order, and fell back on another army corps.

Colonel Carleton and Hon. Mr. Seymour, a member of the British Parliament, who have been acting with the Anglo-American ambulance train at Sedan, accuse the Prussians with having heaped every imaginable insult and maltreatment on the French wounded. The wounded prisoners were subjected to a systematic course of starvation and maltreatment. Wounded, helpless prisoners were left alone to die in lingering agony. Houses upon the roadside and all over the country were plundered, and the inmates cruelly beaten. Innocent girls were ravished by brutal soldiers and then shot. The narrative throughout, details succinctly the most heart-rending misery and degradation, forced upon the French at Sedan. The statement is a catalogue of woe, rapine and brutality.

The final official figures of the capitulation of Sedan are as follows:—39 generals, 230 staff officers, and 2095 line officers, besides 500 officers of various grades discharged on parole; 84,433 privates surrendered, and were transported into Germany; 28,000 were made prisoners during the battle, and 5000 escaped into Belgium, and 20,000 were killed and wounded. Total, 137,-000.

The city of Toul surrendered to the Prussians on Tuesday.

A Prussian column of 30,000 received a serious check Monday, in a third attempt to cut the line of the Orleans Railroad at Vissons. The engagement was severe, lasting three hours, when 20,000 more Prussians came up and attempted a flank movement; but masked batteries of French mitrailleuses made fearful slaughter, and the whole Prussian line fell back in disorder, hotly pursued by the French, who cut off their retreat upon Corbeil and Essonne and drove them down the main line of the Orleans road, more than three miles, through Savigny and Epinay sur Orge and back about a mile and a half, upon the village of Monthery, where a fierce stand was made in a Burgundian cemetery. The Prussians were here routed and driven in disorder back towards their main body, being compelled to evacuate Corbeil at the same time and concentrate upon Melun. This victory clears for the present the Orleans line, which is the only communication between Paris and the provinces now open.

The Prussian forces now before Paris number four hundred thousand, and Prince Frederick Charles has one hundred and fifty thousand between Metz and Rheims.

Bismark recedes from his extreme demands but objects to an armistice.

Rome has been occupied by the Italian troops without bloodshed.

There is marvellous activity of the French at and around Paris. Earthworks are being thrown up at the northern approaches to the city, and the defences on the other sides are being strengthened every hour.

Russia is moving large bodies of troops into Poland.

—Prussia can make peace to-day, proud, triumphant, lasting peace. With that opportunity, every day of war should bring upon her, as the Tribune well observes, "the just execration of mankind."—N. Y. Standard.

☞ At Tours, France, Tuesday, two rains collided and eleven persons were killed outright. Twenty-five others were seriously injured.

☞ The Kentucky Central R. R. suit has been decided in favor of the Bowker heirs.

"GRAN'MA AL'AS DOES."

BY A. H. POE.

I wants to mend my wagon.
And has to have some nails;
Jus' two, free will be plenty,
We're going to haul our rails.
The splendidest cob fences,
We're makin' ever was!
I wis' you'd help us find 'em,
Gran'ma al'as does.

My horse's name is Betsey;
She jumped and broked her head.
I put her in the stable,
And fed her milk and bread.
The stable's in the parlor;
We didn't make no muss.
I wis' you'd let it stay there,
Gran'ma al'as does.

I's goin' to the cornfield,
To ride on Charlie's plow;
I 'spect he'd like to have me;
I wants to go right now.
Oh, won't I gee up awful,
And whoa like Charlie whoas?
I wis' you wouldn't bozzer;
Gran'ma never does.

I wants some bread and butter;
I's hungry worstest kind;
But Taddie musn't have none,
'Cause she wouldn't mind.
Put plenty sugar on it;
I tell you what, I knows
It's right to put on sugar;
Gran'ma al'as does.

—Miss Lina Edwin, who has just opened her new theatre in New York, has a romantic history, according to the Brooklyn Union. She is a southerner, well born, and highly educated. She lived on her parental estate near Richmond, Virginia, and was brought up to the customs of the old Southern aristocracy. During the war the parental estates were melted in the crucible of the confederacy, and Miss Edwin turned pluckily to self support. First she tried literature, and became well known in the internal newspaper world as a song writer. Then she set about writing music for her songs, and the orchestral world began to know her. She wrote waltzes and fantasias, and in all acquitted herself well. Next she took to the stage, and in two years or so from a brilliant beginning, reached the degree of manageress in her own right. An opportune legacy has set her right pecuniarily, but it did not arrive until she had got well into the expense list of her ledger on behalf of the public amusement, and now she appears in her new capacity as manager.

OYSTERS.—The true way to eat them profitably to taste, health, and enjoyment, is, of course, to eat them raw, and without condiment; for vinegar, pepper, or lemon juice, all spoil the natural flavor of the bivalve. The good dressing is its own gravy, which is not sea-water, as many fancy, but its life's blood which it sheds when the shell is violently broken open.

Hence a master of the art says of all other ways of dressing: "Frivolity! profanity! sacrilege! If after such treatment they taste well, they are no longer oysters; if they are still oysters, they have no longer any taste;" and the poet adds sagely, that in his view, oysters ought to be eaten, as we love to see white roses—with the dew of a fine summer morning on their tender leaves.—Putnam's Monthly.

"JUST LIKE WE HAD."—In one of the Sabbath schools not long since the question was asked, "Who was the strongest man?" After much ineffectual attempt at answering by the class, the teacher said, "Sampson." Whereupon one little codger asked, "Is Sampson stronger nor Mike McCoole?" This is equal to Bob Young's attempting to explain to his class the state of things in the Temple when Christ made a scourge of small cords and drove the money changers out. "You see," said Bob, "they had a whole lot of things in the church for sale." "Oh, yes," said little Sam, "just like we had in our church once." Bob is down on fairs in churches now.

—Two men in Cheyenne got to shooting at each other. The local paper says of one of them: "His soul instantaneously dropped its humanity." It is mean for a paper to break right off so in an interesting story. We want to know if the man died.

—A Wisconsin gentleman insisted upon putting himself on the free list of a circus by crawling under the canvas lately, and in a debate with the gentlemanly and urbane proprietor, was gathered to his fathers.

Blessed are they who seek relief from "Liver Complaint," "Billiousness," severe lingering Coughs and Bronchitis, by using Dr. Pierce's Alt. Ext. or Golden Medical Discovery, for they shall be happy in knowing that the cure is complete. $1,000 reward is offered by the proprietor for a medicine that will equal it in the cure of all the diseases for which it is recommended. For constipation of the bowels and as a blood purifier, for the cure of Pimples and Blotches on the face, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, and all skin and Scrofulous diseases, this medicine is unequalled. Sold by druggists.

We would not recommend the frequent or constant use of any medicine. It is important to take even a good article judiciously. Parsons' Purgative Pills are safe, prompt, and reliable as a laxative or cathartic.

Base ball is undoubtedly good exercise and capital amusement, but it often occasions bunged eyes, broken shins and blistered hands. We can tell you that in all such cases if Johnson's Anodyne Liniment is resorted to, it will reduce the swelling and stop the pain.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

The Shivering Season.

The loss to the laboring classes of the United States caused by fever and ague, has been estimated at upwards of two millions of dollars per annum. Whole settlements are sometimes prostrated by the disease, and it is regarded in some localities, as one of those visitations of providence which cannot be avoided. This is a mistake. As certainly as any of the evils which are invited by neglect may be forestalled by precaution—so certainly may an attack of intermittent (or remittent) be prevented by invigorating the system with HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, in advance of the season, at which this mainly prevails. Prevention, it is needless to say, is the wisest policy; but it is consoling to know that where time has not been thus taken by the forelock, and the paroxysms have actually commenced, a complete cure may, in all cases, be rapidly effected by the use of this powerful vegetable tonic.

The reputation of the Bitters as a specific for dyspepsia, liver complaint, constipation and nervous debility, has in some thrown into the shade its merits as a preventive and cure of other ailments, but all who have ever taken it, either as a protection against or a remedy for malarious fevers, will admit that it surpasses in efficiency all the so-called specific (including quinine,) usually prescribed for these maladies, while it is at the same time entirely harmless, and decidedly palatable.

Batchelor's Hair Dye.

This splendid Hair Dye is the best in the world: the only true and perfect Dye; harmless, reliable, instantaneous; no disappointment; no ridiculous tints; remedies the ill effect of bad dyes; invigorates and leaves the Hair soft and beautiful, black or brown. Sold by all Druggist and Perfumers, and properly applied at Batchelor's Wig Factory, No. 16 Bond Street, New York. lydawje2

Vegetable "Pain Killer,"

After THIRTY YEARS trial, is still receiving the most unqualified testimonials to its virtues, from persons of the highest character and responsibility. Physicians of the first respectability recommend it as a most effectual preparation for the extinction of pain. It is not only the best remedy ever known for Bruises, Cuts, Burns, &c., but for Dysentery or Cholera, or any sort of bowel complaint, it is a remedy unsurpassed for efficiency and rapidity of action. In the great cities of India, and other hot climates, it has become the Standard Medicine for all such complaints, as well as for Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, and other kindred disorders. For Coughs and Colds, Canker, Asthma and Rheumatic difficulties, it has been proved by the most abundant and convincing testimony, to be an invaluable medicine. Sold by all druggists. dawlm1

NAVAL.—The Darien expedition, under the command of Com'dr. Thomas O. Selfridge, is in process of re-organization at Washington, and will probably be ready to sail about the first of October. An effort will be made to obtain the services of most of the officers who accompanied the expedition last winter.

1st Ass't. Engineer Jos. B. Upham, Jr., has been ordered to duty at this Station. Chaplain James J. Kane has been detached from the Navy Yard and ordered to the receiving ship Vermont at New York. Captain Thomas G. Corbin has been detached from the command of the California, and placed on waiting orders.

THE FARRAGUT OBSEQUIES.—General McClellan will act as grand marshal at Farragut's obsequies, New York, and General Grant and Secretary Robeson will participate. The procession will rival that of the Lincoln funeral. There will also be a grand cortege of ships up the bay from the narrows, and the landing of the corpse will be marked by all the magnificent ceremonies attending a naval burial.

The U. S. Steamers Brooklyn, Guerriere and California are to escort the remains from this city to New York. Secretary Robeson is on his way to this city and will return to New York with the squadron.

SHORT OF WATER.—The tanks at the Navy Yard and the natural reservoir on Seavey's Island having been exhausted of water, the authorities at the Yard put a steam fire engine on board the big "anchor boy," and sent her up the river to Durham, Tuesday, in tow of the U. S. Tug Portfire, to bring down a load of fresh water in bulk, for the use of the machine shops, etc., at the Station. The huge anchor boat will hold water enough for several weeks' consumption; and it is fortunate that the (at present) precious liquid can be procured with no greater trouble, or otherwise work would have to be suspended at the Yard. There is probably some rain left yet, somewhere, and some of it would be welcomed in this vicinity, just about now.

Communication.

Messrs. Editors: It is quite a mistake to say there are no houses to rent in Portsmouth. In the central part of this city, to say nothing of the South End, Northern and Western parts, there are now seventeen houses and parts of houses now empty. The trouble is they are owned by wealthy people, who will not lease them unless they can get high rents, higher than many can afford.

Within the present year, from four to six persons have died leaving vacant houses, to say nothing of removals. House rents in this city and stores also, are beyond the means of many wanting them and must either be lower or remain empty.

By the last census, the population seems to have decreased; the cause is plain enough. Twenty or even ten years since we had 3 Iron Foundries, now hardly one, two or three Cotton Factories, now one, and that paying nothing. We then had 6 or 8 ships building; now one is built, and awaiting a customer to buy. The Navy Yard now employs most of the laborers and mechanics, but that may cease at any moment. We must have some business here to employ people, or more houses will be empty. VINDOX.

CANDIDATES FOR GOVERNOR IN N. H. In selecting gubernatorial candidates, the Republicans of New Hampshire have been in the habit of overlooking for the most part, professional gentlemen, and have made choice of practical and active business men, such as Hon. Ichabod Goodwin, of Portsmouth, Hon. Frederick Smyth, of Manchester, and Hon. Onslow Stearns, of Concord. That such preference for men of business affairs has not been prejudicial to the material interests of the State, the capital management of its financial affairs, and the satisfactory condition of its various State institutions abundantly prove. Literary accomplishments and genreal "polish" pass for less among the inhabitants of the Granite State than sterling integrity, knowledge of business, and sound common sense.

The gentleman most prominently mentioned for the next nomination is Hon. Horton D. Walker, of Portsmouth.—Should he be nominated and elected he will prove a not unworthy successor to the gentlemen already mentioned, and will manage the executive department of State on strictly business principles, which in these times of large debts and heavy taxes will be more gratifying to the people than long messages or eloquent orations. There is certainly nothing very romantic in the business in which he is engaged, namely, that of a soap boiler, but the goods he puts upon the market are A. I., and he has managed the business with great success. He was one of the early Mayors of Portsmouth, and repeatedly represented that city in the Legislature. He is not a scholar, and makes no pretensions to oratory, but the people have confidence in his ability and honesty, and are attracted by the charm of his address and manners, which are at once natural, easy, and unaffectedly polite.

It is not improbable that the coming man of the Democracy is Hon. Frank Jones of the same city. It is but a few years since Mr. Jones drove a tin peddler's cart in that city, but by a fortunate turn in the tide of his affairs, he has become one of the wealthiest, if not the wealthiest person in the city. For his good fortune in this particular he is indebted to the fondness of the people for the beverage called ale; he being the proprietor of the brewery whereat is manufactured the article known as "Jones'." Like Mr. Walker he has been mayor and is somewhat celebrated for the enterprise and public spirit he has manifested since making his fortune. He is quite popular with his party in the eastern portion of the State, but his reputation is mostly local. The prospect of his "shelling out" liberally will not be overlooked by the delegates, nor damage his chances for receiving the empty compliment of a democratic nomination.—Portland Press.

ADMIRAL FARRAGUT'S WILL.—The following is the literal text of the will of the late Admiral David G. Farragut, offered for probate before Surrogate Hutchings, in the city and county of New York:—

I, David G. Farragut, of the city, county and State of New York, Admiral of the United States navy, being of sound mind and memory, and considering the uncertainty of this frail and transitory life, do make, publish and declare this my latest will and testament in manner following, to wit:—

First—I direct all my just debts and funeral and testamentary expenses to be paid as soon as may be reasonable after my decease.

Second—I give and bequeath all my Trophies of War to my son, Loyal Farragut.

Third—I give, devise and bequeath the house and lot of land known as No. 113 (one hundred and thirteen) East Thirty-sixth street, in the city of New York, where I now reside, together with all the furniture therein contained, to my wife, Virginia D. Farragut, to be used and enjoyed by her during the term of her natural life, and from and immediately after her decease I bequeath the same to my son, Loyall Farragut, his heirs and assigns forever.

Fourth—I give, devise and bequeath all the rest, residue and remainder of my Estate, that is to say, all the rest, residue and remainder of all the estate of whatsoever name and nature (real, personal and mixed,) which shall belong to or be owned by me at the time of my death, to my said wife and my said son, to be divided equally between them, share and share alike, and I hereby direct and declare it to be my will and intent that the devises and bequests made in and by this, my last will and testament, to my said wife, are to be accepted and received by her in lieu of dower.

Fifth—I constitute and appoint my said wife, Virginia D. Farragut, to be the sole executrix, without security, of this my last will and testament, and I hereby revoke all former and other wills and testaments by me made.

In testimony whereof I have hereunto subscribed my name and set my seal this 11th day of December, in the year 1869. D. G. FARRAGUT.

Signed, sealed, published and declared by the said David G. Farragut, the said testator, as and for his last will and testament, in presence of us, who, in his sight and in presence of each other, have signed our names as witnesses thereto; and said testator at the time he so subscribed the foregoing instrument declared the same to be his last will and testament.

The greater part of the road is already completed, and the earnings from the finished portion are already more than sufficient to pay operating expenses and interest on the bonds. The balance of the work is progressing rapidly, in time for the movement of the coming grain crops, which, it is estimated will double the present income of the road.

The established character of this line, running as it does through the heart of the most thickly settled and richest portion of the great State of Iowa, together with its present advanced condition and large earnings warrant us in unhesitatingly recommending these bonds to investors, as, in every respect, an undoubted security.

These bonds have 50 years to run, are convertible at the option of the holder into the stock of the company at par, and the payment of the principal is provided for by a sinking fund. The convertibility privilege attached to these bonds cannot fail to cause them at no distant day to command a market price considerably above par, besides paying about 9 per cent., currency, interest in the meanwhile. U. S. Five-twenties, at present prices only return five per cent.; and we regard the security equally safe.

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS.

FOR ALL PURPOSES of a LAXATIVE MEDICINE.
Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative PILL. The obvious reason is that it is more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use to any quantity.
They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action, remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.
Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these PILLS rapidly cure:—
For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.
For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.
For Dysentery or, Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.
For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.
For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings, they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.
For Suppression a large dose should be taken, as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.
As a DINNER PILL, take one or two PILLS to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.
An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these PILLS makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus. dawjeltecdim

GETTING IN THE WRONG CARRIAGE.

The day was bitter cold—the track covered with snow, and the eastward-bound train, of course, behind time. The waiting male passengers stamped out their impatience upon the cheerless, wind-swept platform, and females huddled around the stove or endeavored to peep through the dirty depot windows.

Conspicuous among these might have been seen the pretty face of Jane Tracy. She was young, anxious, and unaccustomed to travelling alone; but having received an invitation from an old bachelor uncle and maiden aunt who lived in luxurious slefishness alone, had, after much urging upon the part of her mother (who already had visions of Jane being heir to their vast wealth) consented to make the visit. The letter giving the invitation, contained minute directions how she was to reach the city, and informed her that a carriage would be waiting at the New York side of the ferry upon a specified evening, unless they were notified to the contrary.

Jane had early and always impressed upon her the primness and propriety of Aunt Prudence Griswald, who was 50 and unmarried, and the vast wealth and parsimony of Uncle Nathan, and sat with many forebodings of discomfort watching for the train, and was half tempted to let it go on without her, when it at last dashed up to the platform. The the cry of "all aboard" decided the matter, and she followed the rushing throng, found herself hustled into a seat with scarcely any volition upon her part, and was whirled rapidly away toward her unknown and dreaded relations.

A long and weary ride brought her to the depot, and as she was preparing to leave the cars, a motherly old lady advised her to muffle up her ears or she "would certainly freeze them in that little, senseless hat." She smiled in reply, but wound a soft, white wool cloud about her head so as to leave nothing visible but a pair of bright eyes, the tip of a pretty nose, and red, ripe lips, and followed with a palpitating heart through the noise and confusion, and shunned the vulgar gaze of the men, glad indeed, when the stormy river was passed.

"A young lady here for the Griswald carriage?" shouted a man so near her ears as to almost deafen her.

"Yes; I am the one," she faltered in reply, feeling as if she had suddenly found a friend amidst the Bedlam of jostling, fighting and importuning.

"This way, if you please, Miss."

In a moment she was led through the crowd, seated upon the soft cushions of an elegant carriage, and was being drives rapidly through the brilliantly lighted streets, half dazzled by the unaccustomed glitter and splendor.

At length it stopped before a brownstone front, the door was opened, a servant assisted her to alight, she walked up the broad steps and instantly was clasped in the arms of a gentleman, who rained warm kisses upon her lips, gave her a thousand welcomes, called her pet names, impetuously lifted her in his strong arms, carried her into the cosy reception-room, placed her in an arm-chair before a blazing anthracite fire, and began to relieve her of the cumbersome wrappings. Man-fashion, he tore off the cloud, and loosing the fastenings of her hair, caused it to fall in a mass of lovely golden ripples over her shoulders.

"What the devil?" he exclaimed, starting back and crushing the jaunty little hat in his hands—then gazing speechless at the beautiful girl who sat completely stupified by the unexpected warmth of her reception, and wondering where was her curmudgeon of an uncle she had expected to see—wondering if it could possibly be he, and ventured to call him Uncle Nathan and asked for Aunt Prudence.

"Uncle Nathan? Aunt Pru—the deuce! There is some mistake here. I know of no such persons as you name."

"Not know them? Is not this their house?" she asked looking anxiously around.

"It certainly is not. Until I so rudely removed your wrappings—for which I beg pardon—I thought it was my sister Eva whom I am expecting home from boarding school. The mistake was natural under the circumstances."

"Is not this the house of Nathan Griswald?" she asked again, rising trembliogly and with face blanched even to the lips.

"No, Miss. My name is Buswell, and I am master here."

It flashed upon her in an instant, that the somewhat similarity of names had caused her to make the mistake, and glancing up at the dark and handsome face of him whose kisses were still burning upon her lips, her own became scarlet, and covering her face with her pretty, white hands, she sank back in the chair and burst into tears.

Fred Buswell puckered up his mouth and went through the motions of an imaginary whistle. "Poor thing!" he thought. "By Jove! but she is handsome; it is no wonder she is frightened to receive such bear embraces from an entire stranger when she expected to have been coolly welcomed by some antiquated uncle." But he could not endure the torture of a lovely woman's tears, and so clearing his throat, said aloud:

"Do not be alarmed, Miss. I regret as much as you possibly can that I was so hasty in my conclusions!" The wretch! when he was luxuriating upon the kisses he had stolen, and was longing for more!

Up flamed the color between the delicate white fingers, and the tears fell even faster than before. He saw that he was making matters worse, and with a mental and not over-refined expletive, he stopped short, walked to the other side of the room, rang the bell, and directed the carriage to be instantly sent back to the depot to see if Miss Eva was not waiting there. Then he resumed his place upon the hearth-rug, resting his elbow upon the mantle, and continued:

"I entreat you, Miss, not to feel so badly over a slight mistake, and one to which any one was liable. It is more laughable than otherwise. As soon as the carriage returns I will see that you are taken safely to your friends."

"I thank you, sir," she replied, slowly removing her hands and wiping away the tears; "but if you do not know who they are, how shall I be able to find them? I know only that my uncle's name is Nathan Griswald, and that he lives in University Place. His carriage was to meet me at the depot, and I understood the coachman to say 'Griswald,' but he was so muffled, and in such a hurry, that I had no time to question."

A vigorous ringing of the door bell, and he excused himself for a moment, and stepped into the hall to meet his sister. Poor Jane could hear their voices—the sister playfully scolding because she had been so long kept waiting in the horrid depot, until she was almost frozen, and then had to ride in a lumbering old hack, and closed by standing on tiptoe, and giving him a sisterly kiss.

Jane could see through the half open door, and felt like a guilty usurper as the little lady continued to pour forth her complaints.

"Why, Fred, you aren't a bit glad to see me. I expected to be hugged and kissed out of breath, as usual, and I meet with as formal a reception as if you were my grandfather—or husband!" And her laugh rang out as clear as the notes of a silver bell.

Concluded to-morrow.

ANECDOTE OF DANIEL WEBSTER.—In the somewhat famous case of Bodgen's will, which was tried in the Supreme Court some years ago, Mr. Webster appeared as counsel for the appellant. Mrs. Greenough, wife of Rev. William Greenough, late of Weston—a tall, straight, queenly-looking woman, with a keen, black eye—a woman of great self-possession and decision of character — was called to the stand as a witness on the opposite side.

Mr. Webster, at a glance, had the sagacity to foresee that her testimony, if it contained anything of importance, would have great weight with the court and jury. He therefore resolved, if possible, to break her up. And when she answered to the first question put to her, "I believe," Mr. Webster roared out, "We don't want to hear what you believe; we want to hear what you know!" Mrs. Greenough replied: "That's just what I was about to say, sir," and went on with her testimony.

And, notwithstanding his repeated efforts to disconcert her, she pursued the even tenor of her way till Webster, quite fearful of the result, arose, apparently in great agitation, and drawing out his large snuff box, thrust his finger to the very bottom, and carrying the deep pinch to both nostrils, drew it up with a gusto; and then extracting from his pocket a very large handkerchief, he blew his nose with a report that rang through the hall, and asked:—"Mrs. Greenough, was Mrs. Bodgen a neat woman?"

Mrs. G.—"I cannot give you very full information as to that, sir; she had one very dirty trick." Mr. W.—"What was that, ma'am?" Mrs. G.—"She took snuff." The roar in the courthouse was such that the defender of the Constitution subsided, and neither rose nor spoke again till Mrs. Greenough had vacated her chair for another witness, having ample time to reflect on the inglorious fate of the man who had a stone thrown upon his head by a woman.

Brighton Tallow 7c per lb; Country Tallow 6c ₱ lb.

Sheep and Lamb Skins 62 @ 75c each; Calf Skins 17 @ 18c ₱ lb.

The quality of the Cattle in market this week was not much different from that of last. The trade was quicker but we do not think the prices were any higher. Poor Cattle sell dull and the market has been overstocked with them for several weeks past. Many of the best lots were taken at a Commission, the best Cattle selling at 11½ @ 11c ₱ lb, and in some instances a few sold at a trifle more than our highest quotations. A large number of the Cattle were sold Tuesday.

Store Cattle—Yearlings $12 @ $22; two year olds $22 @ $45 ₱ head, or much according to their value for Beef. The trade for Store Cattle has not been very active yet this season.

Working Oxen—The demand for Working Oxen is better than it was a few weeks ago. The supply in market is larger. We quote sales at $140, $150, $160, $110, $115, $144, $15, $120, $200, $137, $155, $150, $170 @ $227 50 ₱ pair.

Milch Cows—Extra $85 @ $115; ordinary $50 @ $80; Store Cows $35 @ $55 ₱ head. Most of the Cows in market are of a common grade. There are but few extra or fancy breeds of Cows brought into market for sale.

Sheep and Lambs—Extra and select lots $4 @ $4 50; ordinary $2 @ $3 50 ₱ head, or from 3 @ 6c ₱ lb. The supply in market was large. Most of the Western and Eastern Sheep were commissioned or taken to slaughter by the butchers.

Swine—Store Pigs, wholesale 10 @ 12c ₱ lb; retail 10 @ 11c ₱ lb. Fat Hogs—4000 at market; prices 10½ @ 10½c ₱ lb. But few in market.

JAM-BO-REE.

[Young Jam-Boo-Ree, a boy about thirteen years old, son to the bar-keeper of the Phreeneazie Saloon, remained at his post, in the back room, (in a single-handed game of euchre,) after the game had broken up in general "bust," and every "hand" had been abandoned except his own and that of one remaining adversary.]

The boy stood on to the greasy "deck,"
Whence all but him had fled;
The lamp threw its light on his last red check,
And he hadn't another "red,"

Yet beautiful and bright he sat,
As born to win and lose;
With the ace of trumps hid under his hat,
And a "bower" or two in his clothes.

The game went on he would not "go"
Without his father's word;
That father, drunk on the floor below,
His voice no longer heard.

He called aloud: "Say, daddy, say,
Hadn't I better go it alone?"
He knew not that the toper lay
Unconscious of his son.

"Speak, daddy!" once again he cried;
"I'm playing my best for even;
And"—but the man on the other side
"Ordered him up on the seven."

His countenance fell when his ear caught that,
But it wasn't a time to grieve;
So he played him the ace from under his hat,
And the right bower out of his sleeve.

And he shouted loud once more at last,
"My daddy! must I stay?"
While o'er the table thick, and fast,
The fluttering card-boards play.

The tallow-dip burned fitfully wild,
And flickered up on high,
And gleamed in the face of the gallant child,
And nearly blinded his eye.

It flickered up and flickered down,
And at last disappeared in the socket;
And the man at the table, who "hailed from town,"
Slipped all the stakes in his pocket.

And then, with a burst of thunder sound,
He kicked over table and chairs,
And cleared the door with a single bound,
And slid down the banister stairs.

THE PROTESTANT COW.—Paddy Murphy and his wife Bridget, after many years of hard labor in ditching and washing, had accumulated a sufficiency to purchase a cow, (of course they had pigs,) which they did at the first opportunity. As it was bought of a Protestant neighbor, Pat stopped on his way home, at the house of the priest, to procure a bottle of holy water with which to exercise the false faith out of her.

"Isn't she a foine creature?" asked Pat of the admiring Bridget. "Just hold her till I fix the shed."

To save the precious fluid from harm, he took it into the house and set it up in a cupboard until he had "fixed" things. Then he returned and brought the bottle back, and while Bridget was holding the rope, proceeded to pour it upon her back.

But poor Pat had made a slight mistake. Standing within the same closet was a bottle of aquafortis, that had been procured for a far different purpose, and, as it dropped upon the back of the poor cow, and the hair began to smoke and the flesh to burn, she exhibited decided appearance of restlessness.

"Pour on more Paddy," shouted Bridget, as she tugged stoutly at the rope.

"I'll give her enough now," quoth Pat, and he emptied the bottle.

Up went the heels of the cow, down went her head, over went Bridget and half a dozen of the "childers," and away dashed the infuriated bovine down the street, to the terror of all mothers and the delight of the dogs.

Poor Pat stood for a moment, breathless with astonishment, and then, clapping his hands upon his hips, looked sorrowfully after the retreating cow, and exclaimed:

"Be jabbers, Bridget, but isn't the Protestant strong in her—the baste?"

TO PHYSICIANS.

NEW YORK, AUG. 15th, 1868.

ALLOW ME TO CALL your attention to my PREPARATION OF COMPOUND EXTRACT BUCHU. The component parts are BUCHU, LONG LEAF, CUBEBS, JUNIPER BERRIES.

MODE OF PREPARATION.—Buchu, in vacuo, Juniper Berries, by distillation, to form a fine gin. Cubebs extracted by displacement with spirits obtained from Juniper Berries; very little sugar is used, and a small proportion of spirit. It is more palatable than any other in use.

Buchu, as prepared by Druggists, is of a dark color. It is a plant that emits its fragrance; the action of a flame destroys this (its active principle,) leaving a dark and glutinous decoction. Mine is the color of ingredients. The Buchu in my preparation predominates; the smallest quantity of the other ingredients are added, to prevent fermentation; upon inspection, it will be found not to be a Tincture, as made in Pharmacopœas, nor is it a Syrup—and therefore can be used in cases where fever or inflammation exist. In this, you have the knowledge of the ingredients and the mode of preparation.

Hoping that you will favor it with a trial, and that upon inspection it will meet with your approbation,

With a feeling of confidence,
I am, very respectfully,
H. T. HELMBOLD,
Chemist and Druggist of 19 Years' Experience.

[From the largest Manufacturing Chemists in the World.]

NOVEMBER 4, 1854.

"I am acquainted with Mr. H. T. Helmbold; he occupied the Drug Store opposite my residence and was successful in conducting the business where others had not been equally so before him. I have been favorably impressed with his character and enterprise."

WILLIAM WEIGHTMAN.
Firm of Powers & Weightman, Manufacturing Chemists, Ninth and Brown Streets, Philadelphia.

HELMBOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU, for weakness arising from indiscretion. The exhausted powers of Nature which are accompanied by so many alarming symptoms, among which will be found, Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Memory, Wakefulness, Horror of Disease, or Forebodings of Evil; in fact, Universal Lassitude, Prostration, and inability to enter into the enjoyments of society.

The constitution once affected with Organic Weakness, requires the aid of Medicine to strengthen and invigorate the system, which HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU invariably does. If no treatment is submitted to, Consumption or insanity ensues.

HELMBOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT OF BUCHU, in affections peculiar to Females, is unequalled by any other preparation, as in Chlorosis, or Retention, Painfulness, or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrus State of the Uterus, and all complaints incident to the sex, or the decline or change of life.

HELMBOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU AND IMPROVED ROSE WASH will radically exterminate from the system diseases arising from habits of dissipation, at little expense, little or no change in diet, no inconvenience or exposure; completely superseding those unpleasant and dangerous remedies, Copaiva and Mercury, in all these diseases.

Use HELMBOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU in all diseases of these organs, whether existing in male or female, from whatever cause originating and no matter of how long standing. It is pleasant in taste and odor, "immediate" in action, and more strengthening than any of the preparations of Bark or Iron.

Those suffering from broken-down or delicate constitutions, procure the remedy at once.

The reader must be aware that, however slight may be the attack of the above diseases, it is certain to affect the bodily health and mental powers.

All the above diseases require the aid of a Diuretic. HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is the great Diuretic.

Sold by Druggists everywhere. PRICE—$1.25 per bottle, or 6 bottles for $6.50. Delivered to any address. Describe symptoms in all communications.

Address Dr. H. T. HELMBOLD, Drug and Chemical Warehouse, 594 Broadway, N. Y.

None are Genuine unless done up in steel engraved wrapper, with fac-simile of my Chemical Warehouse, and signed H. T. HELMBOLD.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR,
For Restoring Gray Hair to its Natural Vitality and Color.
A Dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for Preserving the Hair. Faded or gray Hair is even restored to its original color, with the glossy and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use.
Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remains can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a nasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor, can only benefit but not harm it.
If wanted merely for a HAIR DRESSING, nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Editorial Jottings.

ONE OF THE DAYS. Kenoza Lake, at Haverhill, Mass., and the glories thereof, have been immortalized in story and story—but just such a gathering as that of Tuesday last, was never seen there before. Dr. J. R. Nichols, the great manufacturing chemist, of Boston, and the editor and publisher of the valuable and popular Journal of Chemistry, invited his fellow editors of the Massachusetts Association, to spend the day at Haverhill, where he resides, and especially to visit Kenoza Lake, and his farm there.

So on Tuesday morning, at 8 o'clock, the special train of fire elegant cars, furnished as a compliment to the profession and the host of the day, by Superintendent Merritt of the B. & M. Railroad, took the party of two hundred and fifty ladies and gentlemen, from Boston to Haverhill, doing the thirty miles in an hour.

Arriving there, Dr. Nichols met his guests, and conducted them a few rods to the steamboat, where the fine large Queen of the Merrimac, in tow of a steam-tug, (the T. Weed) took the party down the beautiful river to West Newbury and Amesbury, returning to the wharf at 11 o'clock.

Dr. Nichols we have for some time known as a very able and interesting member of the editorial fraternity, in his special line — although his engagement and experience therein is merely incidental, and almost accidental, to his numerous other cases and duties; but his ability in a new character was shown on this occasion—that of a sumptuous host, on a grand scale. We never saw, and can scarce imagine an entertainment more complete. From first to last, there was no hitch, no lack; and a printed programme given to each guest in the cars, detailed the exact order of the day's festivities,—which was exactly carried out.

The music of the day was a most gratifying feature. Besides that of the spheres, which were attuned to their sweetest harmony on this occasion,—the Haverhill Cornet Band furnished really fine music throughout the day; the Mendelssohn Quintet Club played as they only can; and one of the best vocal quartets we ever heard, consisting of Mrs. (Houston) West, who now resides in Haverhill, Mrs. Barry, Mr. Whitney, the superb basso, and Mr. Packard, the new and excellent tenor in Boston, added greatly to the enjoyment of all. And it shows the esteem in which Dr. Nichols is deservedly held by his friends and neighbors, that both the Haverhill Band and charming vocal quartet kindly volunteered their valuable services for the day.

On returning from the sail, the party proceeded, in carriages or on foot, to the Dr.'s residence, a quarter of a mile; and none seemed averse to going for the doctor, this time. As the procession passed along the main business street, the shoemakers and shoe dealers of Haverhill, (there's nothing like leather there, and not much else but that,) filled the doors and windows of stores and houses, to see the brigade of ink-slingers who had invaded the new city.

One old lady seeing the long procession, two and two, cried out, "Lord a massy, what's all this, a funeral?" "Yes," replied Ben Perley Poore, the editorial corpse,—"the greatest set of dead-heads you ever saw." At any rate, that's his story,—although some folks do charge Perley with being sensational. The citizens evinced much interest in the visit of the distinguished strangers throughout, and rendered all the aid in their power to render it a pleasure. The waving of handkerchiefs, even, along shore, to bid the barge adieu on leaving and welcome on her return, show kindly feeling and so helped to promote such.

Dr. Nichols' fine house was neatly draped with flags, and the Mendelssohn Club's sweet strains constrained the happy throng to enter, and be entertained. [I am aware that punning is a punishable offense, but after Ben. Guild's (B. F. Guild) be guiling speech that day, I submit that our puny attempts may well be forgiven.] And even this large company did not crowd the spacious house, but all found room for a glass of lemonade and slice of cake, from the bounteous supply. The elegant rooms, especially the fine paintings, including many from the first American artists, among which is the large scene of Kenoza Lake, by Thos. Hill, landscapes from Beirstadt, Titcomb, and others; and the well arrayed grounds, including grapery, stables, &c., were duly visited and admired.

Then, oh, ye sons and daughters of ink, to chariots, and away to Kenoza Lake. The way was through beautiful scenery, but dusty now. Haverhill is beautifully located, on both the high rising banks of the river; and a fine view is presented from either, of the opposite shore. The hills in the neighborhood are beautiful, if not grand; and of the three lakes, one is no less than sixty feet higher than Kenoza—although all lakes are very low now, you know.

Kenoza Lake, (so named by Whittier, who was born near its banks—and the word being Indian for pickerel) is a charming sheet of clear water, perhaps a mile long, by half that length in width; very deep and pure,—all the ponds in this region being fed by living springs; and the banks on all sides beautifully irregular, and running up into hills quite high, in some parts prettily wooded and all forming a scene well deserving the term picturesque.

On or near the shore of this, Dr. Nichols has for several years been successfully trying, on his formerly-sterile farm of a hundred acres, the experiment of how to get something out of nothing. This he does, raising Indian corn for 50 cts. a bushel, and grapes by the cart-load; and in his barn, as we drive through his farm, the long row of Jersey and native cows from which he last year sold $1800 worth of milk, were seen. But of these things, at another time—this day for pleasure.

On the shore, the Dr. and other citizens have erected a neat stone cottage, for picnics and other social uses; and near it is a fine boat-house, well stored with appropriate crafts, which were soon called into requisition. A large and handsome circular tent was pitched close by; and the same not being very close, after all, it was easy to see that our host was hospitably intent. Here were tables for 300 persons, loaded with cold meats, &c., and a superabundance of tempting-looking grapes, and we afterwards found delicious peaches and pears—all the fruit being plucked on the farm. The gardener told us he grows seven varieties indoors, of which we recollect black and white hamburgh, black and grozzled frontignac, and the other names we swallowed with the fruit; but the quantity cut for this occasion we did not quite swallow, and it was nine bushels.

The cottage, tent and grove were decorated by Col. Beals. On Front was inscribed, Welcome all; and inside the tent, the oft-misquoted, or misapplied couplet, The pen is mightier than the sword; but the ornamental Colonel, like almost everybody else, omitted the context, Beneath the rule of men entirely great,—which makes a mighty diffence. Perhaps he meant to intimate that editors can eat more than soldiers—and, however, that may be, these didn't consume half the rations that day provided.

After vocal and instrumental music, sailing, rowing, lounging, and social intercourse, dinner was called, promptly; and opening with an old fashioned Lake Kenoza chowder, (you couldn't get it better at the Shoals,) served hot, and with plenty of soup all through, and the primest hot tea and coffee; and winding up with delicious ices sufficient for double that number, and luscious fruit as much left as eaten—and the after dinner feast of reason and flow of soul, literal and best of all, as at Rye Beach—led us to say, for Commissary, give us Dr. Nichols, and his lieutenant Mr. H. Smith of Boston.

The speeches were spicy, like the viands; but the supply was not so profuse, although there was no lack of good cheer in this line. Neither did anybody get surfeited with talk, as we fear some might with the edibles, though there was no liquor here. The host, in a few neat and fitting remarks, cordially welcomed his friends and brethren, and called upon Mr. Stockwell of the Boston Journal, President of the Massachusetts Association, for a few remarks—the time of each speaker, being limited by the card to five minutes. Mr. Stockwell responded briefly; and in the absence of Gov. Claflin, from sickness, Judge Russell of Boston responded for the State, and of course spoke handsomely. Whittier was also kept away by illness, but the sweet poem of his on this lake was read by the presiding genius of the day.

We should like to give the speeches in full, especially those of B. F. Guild of the Commercial Bulletin, Lt. Geo. A. Marden of the Lowell Courier, and Maj. Poore. But words lose much, without the peculiar manner of the authors' utterance. These gentlemen will always be remembered at the press dinner at the Sagamore House, not long since; and the mad wag Guild, who sat with Marden at table, based his remarks on his friend largely. We never saw more fun in such an hour; and shall set Marden and Poore down (nobody got set on this occasion, remember) as exceedingly jolly and humorous, while Guild's chat was about the wittiest we ever went anywhere.

Alluding to Rye Beach, Mr. Guild said that he should not plead the usual falsehood of no preparation, but when they asked him to say something at Sagamore, he told them he was not used to performing under canvas, and learning Marden was also to appear, he remarked that he had always observed that both the clowns in a circus were not a success, and he feared one would fizzle there—and, added he, one did fizzle, and it wasn't Marden! Looking vacantly around on his laughing audience, he remarked, "I didn't get up here be laughed at"—but we never saw anybody more highly complimented in that way.

He kept the tables in a constant roar, and after getting off innumerable puns, of the most pungent sort, he said he wished he had been able to turn some glowing periods. "But after all," said he, "why should a period be called glowing? I always thought the most glowing part of a sentence ought to be where you put the col on." He poked great fun at Mr. Marden, whose poems at Sagamore and elsewhere had brought him under the control of the Bureaus of Lyceums and subjected him to appearing for $50 or $100 a night before dull audiences; to rise early for trains, and leave his wife, (Guild is a bachelor); to be introduced by country committees, as Mr. Garvin or Marvin, and spoken of by the local newspaper as a young gentlemen from Lowell. All this as the sad penalty for showing under canvas, as aforesaid.

When Marden was called upon, he retorted handsomely upon his friend of the humorous, Guild of good fellows, and said that he didn't want his brother printers to think he got that sort of advertising for nothing, but that he paid full price to the Bulletin for it, only he got the wholesale rate, in consideration of appearing in 100 papers. He then read some of the verses which nobody is ever averse to his making, and which we hope he will allow us to publish. The Boston Advertiser's reporter well says that Mr. Marden's last poem always seems the best, and this was no exception.

Dr. Nichols then said that the quartette, to whom they were already much indebted, would favor them with another selection. Mr. Guild's interruption, Here's more than a "quart eat," pointing to Marden, caused uproarous laughter.

But we can't say any more of these wags now. Mayor Whittier of Haverhill gave a brief address of welcome to the company. Remarks were made by Rev. Dr. Seeley of that city, Mr. Slack of the Boston Commonwealth, Mr. Bull of the Buffalo Commercial Advertiser, Rev. Asa Bullard of the Wellspring, and Ex-Gov. Brown of the New England Farmer. Mr. Warren the great paper maker, and Mr. Robbins of Waltham watches, were called upon, but declined.

The hour announced for the time of departure having arrived, the company separated after passing a vote of thanks to Dr. Nichols and to the Boston & Maine Railroad. They would all have subscribed to Mr. Marden's opinion expressed in his poem, "that Dr. Nichols of all cute farmers was the pharmaceutist." The special train under the courteous conductor, Mr. Philips, left at five o'clock, reaching Boston at six.

Here ended the enjoyments of the day to all the party except yours truly, —save in the pleasures of memory. But we being the only guest present from out the State of Massachusetts, except Mr. Bull of Buffalo, we believe,—had the still greater pleasure of so cordial and pressing an invitation for both the Doctor and his agreeable lady to pass the night with them that we were fain to accept. And right merrily was the day wound up, in that elegant, chaste, and most hospitable home. The gayety so well begun, was not allowed to lag;

"And jests went round, and laughs that made
The house-dog answer with his howl,
And kept astir the barn-yard fowl."

A more pleasant day and evening we have never passed, and we were sorry when it had passed. On Wednesday, the editorial party by invitation of Chandler Robbins, Esq., the Agent, visited the Waltham Watch Factory, via the Fitchburg Railroad from Boston, and were most elegantly entertained, of which, more anon. ☞ Quite a large spot, round and black, was visible on the sun's lower limb Thursday morning at sunrise, visible to the naked eye; and an oblong spot, with a small round one near it, to be seen at midday through smoked glass. "TIME TRIES ALL THINGS," and has proved that Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry is the remedy par excellence for the cure of coughs, colds, croup, whooping-cough, bronchitis, asthma, phthisic, sore throat, and influenza. It cures coughs and colds instanter! It soothes the irritated parts; it heals the inflammation; and even consumption itself yields to its magic influence.

SPOTTED LIKE DOMINOES.—The teeth soon become speckled if every defilement is not removed from them every twenty-four hours. To do this effectually, there is nothing like SOZODONT. It literally renders the enamel impervious and indestructible.

"SPALDING'S" celebrated Glue, useful and true.

We would not recommend the frequent or constant use of any medicine. It is important to take even a good article judiciously. Parsons' Purgative Pills are safe, prompt, and reliable as a laxative or cathartic.

Base ball is undoubtedly good exercise and capital amusement, but it often occasions bunged eyes, broken shins and blistered hands. We can tell you that in all such cases if Johnson's Anodyne Liniment is resorted to, it will reduce the swelling and stop the pain.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

The Shivering Season.

The loss to the laboring classes of the United States caused by fever and ague, has been estimated at upwards of two millions of dollars per annum. Whole settlements are sometimes prostrated by the disease, and it is regarded in some localities, as one of those visitations of providence which cannot be avoided. This is a mistake. As certainly as any of the evils which are invited by neglect may be forestalled by precaution—so certainly may an attack of intermittent (or remittent) fever be prevented by invigorating the system with HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, in advance of the season, at which this malady prevails. Prevention, it is needless to say, is the wisest policy; but it is consoling to know that where time has not been thus taken by the forelock, and the paroxysms have actually commenced, a complete cure may, in all cases, be rapidly effected by the use of this powerful vegetable tonic.

The reputation of the Bitters as a specific for dyspepsia, liver complaint, constipation and nervous debility, has in some thrown into the shade its merits as a preventive and cure of other ailments, but all who have ever taken it, either as a protection against or a remedy for malarious fevers, will admit that it surpasses in efficiency all the so-called specifics (including quinine,) usually prescribed for these maladies, while it is at the same time entirely harmless, and decidedly palatable.

Batchelor's Hair Dye.

This splendid Hair Dye is the best in the world: the only true and perfect Dye; harmless, reliable, instantaneous; no disappointment; no ridiculous tints; remedies the ill effect of bad dyes; invigorates and leaves the Hair soft and beautiful, black or brown. Sold by all Druggist and Perfumers, and properly applied at Batchelor's Wig Factory, No. 16 Bond Street, New York. lydawje2

Vegetable "Pain Killer,"

After THIRTY YEARS trial, is still receiving the most unqualified testimonials to its virtues, from persons of the highest character and responsibility. Physicians of the first respectability recommend it as a most effectual preparation for the extinction of pain. It is not only the best remedy ever known for Bruises, Cuts, Burns, &c., but for Dysentery or Cholera, or any sort of bowel complaint, it is a remedy unsurpassed for efficiency and rapidity of action. In the great cities of India, and other hot climates, it has become the Standard Medicine for all such complaints, as well as for Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, and other kindred disorders. For Coughs and Colds, Canker, Asthma and Rheumatic difficulties, it has been proved by the most decisive and convincing testimony, to be an invaluable medicine. Sold by all druggists. dawlmsf

NAVAL. — Lieut. Comdr. Geo. A. Menzies is detached from this Station.

THEATRE.—Leslie & Locke's company will appear here on Wednesday and Thursday, Sept. 28th and 29th.

☞ A very large mackerel fleet is off our harbor preparing to come in should it storm. The fog is heavy outside.

☞ The Jubilee Excursion in the steamer Appledore is to come off to-morrow, Saturday, and not to-day as previously announced. See adv't.

☞ Mr. Gustavus V. Rowe, formerly one our most active business men, died in this city, suddenly, Thursday morning. Mr. Rowe had been ill for months, but feeling better than usual, attended the Salisbury beach gathering the day before his death. Mr. Rowe was a liberal, public spirited citizen, and will be sadly missed in the circle in which he moved.

CUSHING'S QUADRILLE BAND has been re-organized for the season of 1870-71, and can't be beaten by any similar organization this side of Boston. Mr. Cushing is one of the finest first violinists in New England, and Mr. Tompson's cornet playing is too well known to need commendation. Messrs. Proven and Shillaber are old favorites, and Mr. Bramhall is said to be an excellent performer on the violin. The dancing community will have rare music the coming season.

FINE STONE WORK.—A very handsome monument has recently been erected by Mr. John S. Treat, on the family burial lot of Hon. Frank Jones, at the South Cemetery. It is of marble, about sixteen feet in height, and surmounted by a cross and crown. The lower portion is square, and has four panels for inscriptions, the words Faith, Hope, Charity, occupying three sides of the cornice. The monument rests on a pedestal of dressed granite, about two feet high; and the lot is surrounded by a very heavy railing or fence, also of granite. The whole, though costly, is neat, chaste and appropriate, and reflects much credit on the taste which planned and the mechanical skill which executed it.

BASE BALL.—The third and last of the series of games of base ball, between the Heavy Muffers and Foul Batters, came off Wednesday afternoon, at the Plains. As in the previous games, there was some remarkable play shown—remarkably bad, much of it; and the participants—even including the one who tried to stop the ball with his nose, and the number who got lame hands,—had a good afternoon's sport. There were but eight innings played, darkness putting a stop to the game at that stage, when the score stood; Heavy Muffers 54, Foul Batters 43. The H. M.s claimed the game, as they were 11 runs ahead at the finish; and the F. B.s also claimed it, on the plea that it should be decided by the first five innings, (as the game was not finished,) which would give them 3 runs ahead. The umpire allowed both claims, and all parties returned to the city well satisfied, as each side had won. The score is as follows:

☞ During the 24 hours ending at half-past six o'clock, Tuesday, there were thirteen deaths from yellow fever in New Orleans. Seven of the victims were natives of Italy, four of France, one of England, and one of Illinois.

☞ The fires in York and South Berwick have spread rapidly, and on Thursday the church bells at South Berwick summoned the citizens to fight fire. Nearly the whole population responded.

☞ Tuesday afternoon, a large building in course of erection in Glasgow, Scotland, fell with a great crash. Eleven workmen were buried in the ruins, five of whom were killed.

☞ In the U. S. Circuit Court, the case of Hayes & Drew, of Dover, for smuggling lumber in September last, was dismissed on the payment of $1800 and costs of Court.

☞ The Georgia legislature has at last ordered a State election this fall.

☞ The mackerel fleet off this coast are reported to be doing well the past two days.

☞ It is reported that Mr. Edward S. Marshall is to build a hotel at York beach, next year. Success to him.

☞ Professor William Woodruff Niles of Trinity College, Conn., was consecrated Bishop of the Episcopal diocese of New Hampshire, Wednesday. Sermon by Bishop Doane of Albany. The bishop elect was presented for consecration by Bishops Williams of Connecticut and Neilley of Maine.

Rev. Dr. Parker of Exeter read a portion of the morning service, the congregation joining. Rev. Dr. Herrick of Northfield read a portion of the 105th Psalm. Rev. James A. Colt of Concord read the first morning lesson. Rev. R. W. Clark of Portsmouth read the 8th chapter of St. Luke, being the second morning lesson. Bishops Nealy of Maine and Williams of Connecticut read selections of scripture. The communion service, the Lord's Prayer, and the collects were also read, singing being frequently interspersed.

WAR NOTES. — The Crown Prince has informed the Queen from Versailles, of the investment of Paris, from Versailles to Vincennes. The French troops have been driven back. The capture of an earthwork with seven cannon was executed with little loss.

The Prussians investing Paris have been defeated on the plains of Mendon and Sevres, with heavy loss.

In the affair of the 19th inst., 13 Prussian regiments were nearly annihilated.

Napoleon is preparing a manifesto to the French people.

The members of the late Senate and Corps Legislatif will probably reassemble at Limoges, in the northwest of France.

A band of German Republicans under Herr Jacoby assembled at Konigsberg, and passed strong resolutions against the forcible annexation of Alsace and Lorraine. The meeting was dispersed by the police and Jacoby was arrested.

Advices from Belfort announce that the Prussians made an assault upon Strasburg on the 17th, and were repulsed with heavy loss,

J. EDGAR THOMPSON, JAMES L. FROST. } Trustees.

The greater part of the road is already completed, and the earnings from the finished portion are already more than sufficient to pay operating expenses and interest on the bonds. The balance of the work is progressing rapidly, in time for the movement of the coming grain crops, which, it is estimated will double the present income of the road.

The established character of this line, running as it does through the heart of the most thickly settled and richest portion of the great State of Iowa, together with its present advanced condition and large earnings warrant us in unhesitatingly recommending these bonds to investors, as, in every respect, an undoubted security.

These bonds have 50 years to run, are convertible at the option of the holder into the stock of the company at par, and the payment of the principal is provided for by a sinking fund. The convertibility privilege attached to these bonds cannot fail to cause them at no distant day to command a market price considerably above par, besides paying about 9 per cent., currency, interest in the meanwhile. U. S. Five-twenties, at present prices only return five per cent.; and we regard the security equally safe.

PROPOSALS.

NAVY DEPARTMENT,
BUREAU OF YARDS AND DOCKS,
WASHINGTON, D. C., September 1, 1870.

SEALED PROPOSALS to furnish materials for the several Navy Yards for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1871, will be received at this Bureau until 10 o'clock, A. M., of the 29th of September next, at which time the proposals will be opened.

Printed schedules, in which the materials and articles required are embraced, with form of offer and guarantee, will be furnished on application, and sent by mail, if so requested, to persons desiring to offer to contract, for any or all of the classes named therein, by the commandants of the several Navy Yards, for the classes for the yards under their command, or by the paymaster nearest thereto, or by the Bureau for any or all of the yards.

To prevent confusion and mistakes in sealing the offers, no bid will be received which contains classes for more than one Yard in one envelope; nor any bid which is not perfect and complete in itself, according to the forms of offer and guaranty, and each individual of a firm must sign the bid and contract.

Bidders are referred to the printed instructions, which will be furnished with the schedules, and they are hereby cautioned, and particularly notified, that their offers should be made on the printed form prescribed by the Bureau, and be mailed in time to reach their destination before the time expires for receiving them.

No bid will be considered which shall be received after the period stated, and no allowance will be made for failures of the mail.

The proposal must be accompanied by a certificate from the Collector of Internal Revenue for the district in which the bidder resides, that he has a license to deal in the articles for which he proposes; and by direction of the Department, bids or offers will be received only from parties who are bona fide dealers in, or manufacturers of, the articles they offer to furnish. The guarantors must be certified by the Assessor of Internal Revenue for the district in which they reside.

The contract will be awarded to the person who makes the lowest bid and gives the guarantee required by law, the Navy Department, however, reserving the right to reject the lowest bid, or any which it may deem exorbitant.

Sureties in the full amount will be required to sign the contract, and their responsibility must be certified to the satisfaction of the Navy Department, and the bidder must state distinctly at what paymaster's office he desires all his bills to be paid.

To guard against offers being opened before the time appointed, bidders are requested to use the printed envelopes, furnished by the Bureau, endorsed thus: "Proposals for classes Nos. (name the classes) for the Navy Yard at (name the yard.)" To the Chief of the Bureau of Yards and Docks, Navy Department, Washington, D. C."

The schedule will state the times within which articles will be required to be delivered. If any articles are named in the schedules which are not known to be in common and general use, the bidders will ascertain promptly whether such articles can be procured or not, and if they cannot be obtained, the fact must be reported to the Bureau at once, before bids shall be received. with

All offers not made in strict conformity will, the instructions accompanying the schedules at the option of the bureau, be rejected.

As additional security, twenty per centum will be withheld from the amount of the bills until the contract shall have been completed, and eighty per centum of the amount of each bill, approved intuplicate by the commandant of the respective yards, will be paid, by the paymaster of the station designated in the contract, within ten days after the warrant for the same shall have been issued by the Secretary of the Treasury.

The classes of this bureau are numbered and designated as follows:

Morning Chronicle.

Concluded from yesterday.

GETTING IN THE WRONG CARRIAGE.

But it was suddenly cut short. She had followed her brother into the reception-room, and started back in astonishment at the beautiful stranger who sat there with streaming hair and watery eyes. The timid, shrinking manner increased the lovliness of June, and the impulsive Eva stood for a moment in mute admiration, and then gasped out:

"Who is she, Fred?"

"This is Mis——" he began.

"Tracy," suggested June.

"Miss Tracy, who, by a stupid blunder of the coachman, was brought here in your place. That is why you were kept waiting at the 'horrid depot.'"

"Well, I am glad she happened to fall into the hands of a gentleman," replied Eva, looking up proudly at her brother.

She welcomed her unexpected guest most cordially—made her feel instantly at home—declared that she would keep her until morning, that until then nothing should be done to ascertain where Mr. Griswald lived, and in the end triumphed, and took her to her own bright room, that she might arrange her hair.

In the company of the spirituelle Eva, June soon forgot her vexation, and the late dinner and the evening passed pleasantly—had almost forgotten her singular entrance into the family. But now and then a smile would curl the dark moustache of Fred Buswell as he thought of his funny mistake, and how agreeably it had turned out; and the tell-tale blush deepened upon June's cheek as she caught the expression of his eyes, and revealed that she had not forgotten his over-warm manner of greeting.

To one acquainted with the city and its directories, the finding of the uncles's home was not a difficult task, and after breakfast both Eva and her brother escorted her thither, promised to call soon, and then separated, mutually pleased. Uncle Nathan received her kindly, but in a very different manner from Fred Buswell. He was tall, gaunt, grim; wore old-fashioned clothes, and a huge pointed shirt collar, that constantly threatened to amputate his ears. With a few words he handed her over to the care of his sister, who fitted the name of Prudence perfectly, and was an exact counterpart of himself, clothed in petticoats.

"My dear child," she exclaimed, holding up her hands in holy horror, "what a terrible risk you ran in taking the wrong carriage. The gentleman who called upon us this morning explained the matter, and I never was so much shocked in all my life."

"Mr. Buswell is a gentleman," returned June, seeing that some reply was expected.

"Well!—hem!—yes, I suppose so. But come up stairs now and take off your things. To think of you being alone with a strange young man! I know I should have fainted."

June blessed her stars that her aunt knew nothing of what had really transpired—nothing save that a mistake had been made—nothing of the warm embrace and kisses; and mentally thanked Fred Buswell for his reticence.

"This is your room, my dear. When you have arranged your toilet, your uncle and I will be happy to see you in the sitting-room.

Everything bore the marks of wealth, but was as antiquated as its mistress. The heavy, tall-posts, old-fashioned iron bedstead, with its quaint canopy and curtains, must have belonged to the great grandfather of Miss Prudence. It contrasted grimly with the pretty French one she had occupied with Eva Buswell; so, in fact, did everything. But the room was large and pleasant; everything was neat, and arranged for comfort, and June soon became at ease and happy. At least she would have been if Aunt Prudence had not so frozen the Buswells when they called, that there was little danger of their attempting to repeat it.

The truth was, the old maid distrusted the good-looking Fred. She could not but own to herself that he was a gentleman in every respect, but, as she had concluded to adopt June, she was not going to have any horrid man around to persuade her into foolishly getting married, when she intended her to be the comfort and nurse of her declining years. Henceforth June, with all her life and youth, and loveliness, was to be a sort of prisoner—never going out save to ride in the old barouche of the Griswalds when the weather was pleasant, with the stern, yellow face of Miss Prudence, looking older and more ugly by contrast with the bright, dove-eyed, golden-haired girl who accompanied her. Occasionally they met Eva Buswell and her brother dashing along in their neat phaeton, surrounded by a party of friends, and June turned away sighing, and with difficulty keeping back the tears. But she dared not give expression to her thoughts.

"The Buswells are nothing to you, my child—never can be," said Aunt Prudence, when they chanced to be discoursing one day upon the manner of her coming. "They did only what was proper under the circumstances; just what your uncle Nathan and I would have done; but they are frivolous, fashionable people, and the sooner you cease even to recognize them the better."

June thought with a smile, of how uncle Nathan would look and feel, hugging and kissing a blooming girl like herself. But she only gave another sigh, thought of what might have been, and answered:

"They were very kind, aunt."

"Yes, I know, and your uncle and I wrote them a formal letter of thanks. That balanced the obligation."

It was the last time the subject was mentioned between them, and at length they passed each other as almost strangers. Not that Eva and her brother did so until they found it impossible to keep up the acquaintance. They reasoned correctly, that such a state of affairs was not according to the wishes of June, to whom they had taken a great fancy, especially Fred.

"The devil take that old ogress of an aunt," he muttered, as he saw June passing, looking even more lovely than on the night of their first meeting. "I wish that something might happen so that I could gain the entree of the house."

He wouldn't have confessed even to himself, that he had fallen in love with the girl at first sight. No, nothing of the kind. He only pitied her on account of her close confinement, when, like other girls of her age and beauty, she ought to have been enjoying life, as a bird does sunshine and liberty to flit among flowers. But try as he would to think of some plan of visiting her, he could determine upon nothing, and was about to give up in despair when an accident came to his relief.

In returning home one evening from a ride, he saw a crowd gathered in front of his door, and upon inquiry was told that an old man had fallen from a stroke. One glance revealed to him who the man was, and he instantly ordered him to be carried into the house, and dispatched his sister for Prudence Griswald and her neice. They came. Physicians were called, but all in vain. Nathan Griswald never roused from his sleep—was never moved until he was taken to his last earthly resting place.

Dark days followed. The blow was a terrible one to his sister. He had been to her as husband, children, brother, everything. All her love was centered in him, and she was completely prostrated.

Fred Buswell pitied her sufferings, and did all that a son could have done to relieve them. He attended to all her business, would not listen to her leaving the house until everything had been arranged to her satisfaction, and then he and Eva accompanied her and June to a little cottage he had hired, and seen furnished for her, upon the banks of the river where she had been born.

"You will not leave me?" said the old lady, whose entire character had appeared to have changed since the death of her brother. "I have not long to stay on earth, and poor June, what will become of her when I am gone?"

She glanced up quickly, saw the eyes of those she had mentioned meet, understood their meaning, and was satisfied. All through the summer months she lingered, tended by her affectionate niece, and when the leaves began to fade and fall she died.

During the last few weeks of her life, Eva Buswell took up her abode at the cottage, and cheered June in the dark, trying hours. And when at last Aunt Prudence found she was dying, she looked from the grave face of Fred Buswell to the weeping June, and endeavored to speak, but the palsied tongue refused to articulate a word. Then she took June's hand and placed it in that of her lover, who pressed it to his lips, and, stooping, breathed into her dull ear his thanks.

"I will tenderly cherish and care for her while I live," he said, wiping his eyes.

Thus they were betrothed in the solemn presence of death, and when the days of mourning were passed for June—when the air was freshest and sweetest, and the flowers the brightest—in that month for which she was named June, she became his wife. They live in the old Griswald mansion, remodeled and refitted to suit the times and their taste, and the happy young wife does not regret that she made the embarrassing mistake that gained her so good a husband.

No Church Schools at Public Cost.

I remember, I remember,
After Sumpter fell,
How all petty griefs were stilled
And our leaping pulses thrilled
At the signal of the bell.
Ring out, ye bells, a new alarm
Against more wily foeman;
And peal o'er mill and forge and farm
The watchword of our yeomen:
Aye, aye! Millions for Common Schools,
But not a cent for Roman.

I remember, I remember,
With his heart aglow,
How our gray-haired pastor threw
Curses on the Rebel crew
Clear as crashed 'round Jericho.
Pulpits, breathe out your blasts of truth
And break this Ring of foemen
Who dare conspire to chain, forsooth,
The Bible of our yeoman;
Aye, aye! Millions for Common Schools,
But not a cent for Roman.

I remember, I remember,
When the flags were raised,
How the farmers' faces shone
As the stars all merged in one
In the sunlight while they gazed.
O, flags throughout the country hid,
Without a thought of foeman,
Come forth, and flash as once ye did,
The duty of our yeomen!
Aye, aye! Millions for Common Schools,
But not a cent for Roman.

I remember, I remember,
When the call was made,
How our boys like lightning came,
And with patriot zeal aflame,
Grasped no bounty but a blade.
Americans! arise and hurl
Against your children's foeman,
The ballot, lest the plotters furl
The free flag of our yeomen!
Aye, aye! Millions for Common Schools,
But not a cent for Roman.

Correspondence of the Chronicle and Gazette.

DEERFIELD, Sept. 22.

The census returns are as follows:—males 879, females 889; total 1768. There are 64 persons between 70 and 80 years of age, 16 between 80 and 90, and 4 over 90. On 277 farms there are 215 farmers (owners), and 95 farm laborers; and 119 are shoe makers.

We think Deerfield healthy: for of the 1080 persons over 20 years of age, every thirteenth is over 70 years of age.

The drought is worse than for 50 years past. More than three-fourths of the wells have failed, and most of the springs and mill streams have ceased to run.

The town has voted 5 per cent. of its valuation to aid in the construction of the Nashua & Rochester Railroad.

The corn crop proves of excellent quality and medium in amount, except on sandy soil. Potatoes, except Early Rose, very poor. Apples abundant.

☞ A very amusing affair happened at the Treasury Department, Wednesday. The assessor of the Covington, Kentucky, district was escorting nine lady friends through the internal revenue office, when a report was circulated among the clerks that Brigham Young had arrived with a number of his wives. From down stairs and up stairs came the clerks, and soon the halls and corridors were filled with a curious throng of both sexes, who forgot all about official business in their overpowering anxiety to get a peep at the supposed most-married man of the age. The excitement lasted twenty minutes before an explanation took place, and the gentleman was released from the perplexing attention he was receiving.

☞ This is from a paper of a city where the people are dying with the base-ball fever, and where the "Red Stockings" are esteemed as demi-gods.

"The Red Legs, the great, are fallen, are fallen, are fallen, and become a byword and a laughing stock with the inhabitants of the city that sitteth at the foot of the great lake. For Porkopolis had drank of the wine of the joy of their triumphs, and democratic politicians had sought to commit abominations with them, and the proprietor of the Gibson House had waxed fat through the abundance of the custom which they brought him. But in one hour has their greatness departed, and Cincinnati sitteth in sackcloth and ashes. Waiter, bring us a potsherd, that we may scrape ourselves withal."

—The World calls Bancroft, our Minister at Berlin, a "trivial and flighty literary flibbertigibbet," which reminds us of the Welsh, who call people they don't like bjdcmpskgnzstitxjorqijlmx—and so on till they choke, or the disagreeable person faints.—Newark Jour.

—A spiritual strike is recorded in Elko, Cal. By digging where a medium indicated, some believers uncovered a ledge which panned out at $15,000 per ton.

TO PHYSICIANS.

NEW YORK, AUG. 15th, 1868.

ALLOW ME TO CALL your attention to my PREPARATION OF COMPOUND EXTRACT BUCHU. The component parts are BUCHU, LONG LEAF, CUBEBS, JUNIPER BERRIES.

MODE OF PREPARATION.—Buchu, in vacuo, Juniper Berries, by distillation, to form a fine gin. Cubebs extracted by displacement with spirits obtained from Juniper Berries; very little sugar is used, and a small proportion of spirit. It is more palatable than any other in use.

Buchu, as prepared by Druggists, is of a dark color. It is a plant that emits its fragrance; the action of a flame destroys this (its active principle,) leaving a dark and glutinous decoction. Mine is the color of ingredients. The Buchu in my preparation predominates; the smallest quantity of the other ingredients are added, to prevent fermentation; upon inspection, it will be found not to be a Tincture, as made in Pharmacopeas, nor is it a Syrup—and therefore can be used in cases where fever or inflammation exist. In this, you have the knowledge of the ingredients and the mode of preparation.

Hoping that you will favor it with a trial, and that upon inspection it will meet with your approbation,

With a feeling of confidence,
I am, very respectfully,
H. T. HELMBOLD,
Chemist and Druggist of 19 Years' Experience.

[From the largest Manufacturing Chemists in the World.]

NOVEMBER 4, 1854.

"I am acquainted with Mr. H. T. Helmbold; he occupied the Drug Store opposite my residence and was successful in conducting the business where others had not been equally so before him. I have been favorably impressed with his character and enterprise."

WILLIAM WEIGHTMAN.

Firm of Powers & Weightman, Manufacturing Chemists, Ninth and Brown Streets, Philadelphia.

HELMBOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU, for weakness arising from indiscretion. The exhausted powers of Nature which are accompanied by so many alarming symptoms, among which will be found, Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Memory, Wakefulness, Horror of Disease, or Forebodings of Evil; in fact, Universal Lassitude, Prostration, and inability to enter into the enjoyments of society.

The constitution once affected with Organic Weakness, requires the aid of Medicine to strengthen and invigorate the system, which HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU invariably does. If no treatment is submitted to, Consumption or insanity ensues.

HELMBOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT of BUCHU, in affections peculiar to Females, is unequalled by any other preparation, as in Chlorosis, or Retention, Painfulness, or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrus State of the Uterus, and all complaints incident to the sex, or the decline or change of life.

HELMBOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU AND IMPROVED ROSE WASH will radically exterminate from the system diseases arising from habits of dissipation, at little expense, little or no change in diet, no inconvenience or exposure; completely superseding those unpleasant and dangerous remedies, Copaiva and Mercury, in all these diseases.

Use HELMBOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU in all diseases of these organs, whether existing in male or female, from whatever cause originating and no matter of how long standing. It is pleasant in taste and odor, "immediate" in action, and more strengthening than any of the preparations of Bark or Iron.

Those suffering from broken-down or delicate constitutions, procure the remedy at once.

The reader must be aware that, however slight may be the attack of the above diseases, it is certain to affect the bodily health and mental powers.

All the above diseases require the aid of a Diuretic. HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is the great Diuretic.

Sold by Druggists everywhere. PRICE—$1.25 per bottle, or 6 bottles for $6.50. Delivered to any address. Describe symptoms in all communications.

Address Dr. H. T. HELMBOLD, Drug and Chemical Warehouse, 594 Broadway, N. Y.

The Daily Chronicle.

Portsmouth, N. H.

SATURDAY, SEPT. 24, 1870.

WAR NOTES.—Rumors of the capture of Strasbourg are afloat but lack official confirmation. The French account states that an assault was made on the works by the besiegers on the 18th, but they were repulsed with great loss. There was fighting on the 17th and 18th, but it is believed in consequence of the sorties made by the garrrison and not an assault.

Fresh complications between Russia and Turkey in regard to war between the two powers are probable.

Favre informs his associates in the government that the cession of Alsace will certainly be the ultimatum of Prussia, and he has little hope of the success of his mission.

The Cologne Gazette declares that the Prussians will not insist on the annexation of Lorraine.

A general revolt of the Arabs has occurred at Algeria, and the Chasseurs d'Afrique have consequently been sent back from Marseilles.

There is a strong movement on the part of the clergy of France in favor of national defence.

Faction is making the position of the French committee of defence a hard one. Riots are threatened in Paris, and the "Reds" are making movements.

The French have been attacked by the Prussians, to the south of Paris, and have been totally routed and driven in disorganized masses upon Paris. The slaughter was terrific.

New Hampshire Items.

Granville Cook, a prominent citizen of Nashua, severed the cords of his wrist about a week since, by an accidental blow from a hatchet, with which he was splitting wood at the time. He has gradually failed since until Monday when he died.

The Kingston Fair closes to-day. Saturday.

The executive appointments for Trustees of the State Normal School, to be located under the law of June last, are as follows:—Hiram Orcutt, of West Lebanon (at large); Rev. Dewitt C. Durgin, of Hampton Falls; Col. Chas. W. Pickering, of Greenland; Rev. George Dustin, of Peterborough; Amos Hadley, of Concord; Geo. A. Bingham, of Littleton; Col. A. H. Bellows, of Walpole.

YORK COUNTY.—Messrs. Charles H. Sayward and Charles A. Grant, having purchased the farm of Daniel Beston at York Beach, propose erecting an extensive hotel, and have already broken ground for the same. Mr. Sayward has rented the mansion and farm formerly owned and occupied by the late Capt. Geo. Moody, for two years past, and his lady has won an enviable name as hostess. Messrs. S. & G. are enterprising men, and have the confidence and good wishes of their towsmen.

One night last week some scamp stole a valuable horse from the stable of E. C. Spinney, Esq. of Kittery. He was found several days later in the town of York.

The residence of Mr. John Cochi, at York, was in imminent danger of destruction from the fire in the woods, Friday; great exertions were being made to save the buildings, but at last accounts it was doubtful if they would be successful.

☞ John O'Conner, a blind beggar, and his wife Mary, were burned to death in a wretched tenement on Young's Court, Boston, Thursday night. They were both drunk at the time, and their bed-clothes took fire from a pipe which one of them was smoking. Their daughter, thirty years of age, was also drunk at the time—too drunk to help them, though she did manage to reach the door and call for help; but as all the neighbors were asleep, no one arrived in time to save the lives of the wretched pair.

☞ The Supreme Court of York County, criminal term, commenced its session at Alfred, Thursday. The Grand Jury was empanelled and sent out to report bills of indictment. There are at present 175 new entries in the civil docket, the smallest number for three years. The number of contended cases is six hundred. Of the new entries 15 are libels for divorce.

☞ The Maine State Fair, at Augusta, was attended by an immense crowd. It is said to be the best ever held in the State. The exhibition of stock was large and of superior quality.

... Mr. Selwyn B. Plummer, of this city, has taken charge of the Boston Wholesale Boot and Shoe store of Mr. Thomas S. Nowell, and entered upon his duties Thursday.

Correspondence of Chronicle and Gazette.

BOSTON, Sept. 22.

I had the misfortune, Messrs. Editors, of being the companion of your contributor, "P." in his ride from Portsmouth to this much abused burgh. I purposely refrained from limning its beauties that he might have an opportunity for the exercise of his fertile (don't read that fur tile) imagination in delineating the beauties incident to this trip.

But what does he do? Dismissing a delightful ride of sixty miles with a charming companion (that's me) in a general summary of as third as many lines, he devotes the balance of his peroration to matters anything but germane to the subject.

Firstly, he neglects to state that the sons of our old friend Meinerth, at Newburyport, are imbued with the versatile spirit of their father; shown in the well-filled aquaria, the birds and squirrel, the rare and thrifty plants, and the large and choice entomological collections which adorn his rooms. Master Charlie may well be proud of the latter:—gathered as the beautifully prepared specimens have been at early dawn, under the glare of the noonday sun, and in the uncertain shades of twilight,—from marshy fens, from fields redolent of clover and violets, amid the whispering pines or where the tangled brier strives to block all passage into nature's wilds.

Sixteenthly, his comments upon the two young men whom we saw imbibing from a black bottle, involve the publication of sentiment privately expressed:—a course never in good taste, though I must confess those derelict young men smacked their lips as though there was no bad taste to the beverage they had consumed. If they chose to invest their hard earnings for drink which stimulates and debases at the same time, I can not see that I have more to do therewith than with those who squander their substance for fine rainment, for fast horses, for fashionable frivolities, for elegant houses, or anything else they can not honestly afford. That a thing is objectionable to me does not afford me a right to circumscribe my neighbor.

Finally, he giveth to the Boston mosquito precedence over those of all the rest of the world for size, ferocity, &c. Now Boston has local pride of ample sufficiency, without striving to excel in that which is bad or disagreeable, and I boldly state, in defiance of P.'s arrogant assumption, that travellers will readily admit that the mosquitoes which assail 'em at Salem are more vicious than those of the hub.

Last evening, Post 15 G. A. R., John A. Andrew Encampment, (the largest I believe in New England,) dedicated their new hall, in the building corner of Essex and Chauncy streets, formerly Dr. Adams' church. The rooms are spacious and fitted with much taste, the annual rental amounting to $4000 and taxes. There was a very large and select audience present, completely filling every seat and all the standing room in the hall, and even the two ante-rooms were quite well filled with very interested spectators. The programme included a deal of fine music by the Mendelssohn Quintette Club, A. Regenstein, Carlyle Petersilea and Miss Graziella Ridgway. The Germania Band appeared on the platform shortly after ten o'clock and the dancing continued till a late hour. The apartments will afford very comfortable and convenient accommodations for the commandery. They consist of a large hall measuring about seventy feet long by forty feet wide, and four ante-rooms, two of them leading directly from the hall.

Among those present I noticed Mr. and Mrs. Frank Adams of your city, Ex-Gov. Harriman, Judge Russell, and others.

Our fire department had its annual parade on Saturday last, but I don't suppose that had anything to do with the four alarms of fire in four hours last evening. The parade shew an efficient department, whose workings are in the charge of a fine looking body of men. M.

☞ In the Beacon Park races, at Boston, Thursday, the first prize in the race for 2:27 horses (purse $2000—$100 to first horse, $700 to second, $300 to third,) was won by J. L. Doty's Surprise; Bell Strickland second, N. B. Palmer third. The meeting closed Friday with a race for all horses, in which Goldsmith Maid, American Girl and Mountain Boy were entered.

☞ The Florida mosquitoes, blown over, for the first time, this season, to the English coast, were taken in that country for a new species of snipe.

—Never preach self-denial with tobacco in your mouth, or its smell on your clothes.

—The lady who bordered on distraction is going to try real thread lace.

THE DROUGHT.— From all quarters we have complaints of the drying up of wells and springs. Water is scarce, and it seems as if the rain was all used up,—at least, none is available for immediate consumption. Cattle suffer much from thirst, and in many places are driven long distances for water, or the water is hauled long distances for them. We are informed that Hon. Frank Jones has to draw water from his brewery to his farm, for his live stock; and a wealthy farmer in York County, Me., carts drink for his animals more than two miles, and considers himself lucky to get it even with that trouble.

The ground in many places in this vicinity is baked hard, and wells and springs hitherto supposed to be unfailing, have entirely given out. One well that had two feet of water during the dry season of last year, now contains only about three inches of a sort of mush, compounded of ooze, dead crickets and grasshoppers, and two or three quarts of water.

Crops in general have suffered greatly, though fruit is reported to be abundant; and in particular, melons and cucumbers have done finely, though they are little more than bags of water, anyway. Where they have found the water to swell themselves up with, this season, is a mystery. The trees about here are a month ahead of their usual time in adopting Fall fashions, and will probably show the effects of the drought greatly next Spring, in the shape of dead limbs, or by many of them being dead altogether.

The grass and woods being dry as tinder, large and destructive fires have occurred in many places, sweeping over fields and through forests, destroying grass, timber, firewood, fences, and in several instances houses and barns. A resident of York County (where the fires have been very destructive and are still raging furiously,) suggest to us that the end of the world is approaching,—and we suppose it is getting closer, every day; but we don't imagine that the world will finally go up in this style, a little piece at a time.

P. S. After the above was in type, proof was given that the rain is not all used up yet, for the drops commenced to fall cheeringly. Let 'em fall—they can't do any harm now.

Sheep and Lamb Skins 62 @ 75c each; Calf Skins 17 @ 18c ₱ lb.

The supply of Cattle from the West this week was not any better in quality than that of last. There were nearly 600 head of Texas Cattle among them, most of which sold at the lowest quotations. The trade for good Cattle was quick, but for those of a poorer grade the trade has not improved from our last quotations. Prices for all grades remain unchanged. There were some very good Cattle among those from Maine, which sold at 13 @ 13½c ₱ lb. But few Cattle sold for over 14c this week.

Store Cattle—Yearlings $12 @ $23; two year olds $23 & $45; three year olds $45 & $65 ₱ head. Nearly all the small Cattle that are in a fair condition are bought up to slaughter. The trade for Store Cattle has not been very active this season, except for Working Oxen.

Milch Cows—Extra $75 @ $100; ordinary $38 @ $70 ₱ head. Most of the Cows offered for sale are of a common grade. Prices depend much upon the fancy of the purchaser.

Working Oxen—The trade has been fair, and the supply for several weeks past large. Most of the Working Oxen come from Maine. We quote sales at $140, $150, $175, $120, $135, $210, $215 @ $225 ₱ pair.

Sheep and Lambs—Extra and select lots $3 50 @ $5 50; ordinary lots $2 @ $3 25; Lambs $2 50 @ 5 ₱ head, or from 3 @ 7c ₱ lb. Many of the Sheep and Lambs come on drift to the butchers. There are but few of the Western Sheep offered in market for sale. There were more Lambs from Maine this week than for some time past; we quote 460 at $4 50, 497 at $4 25, 167 at $2 75 ₱ head.

Swine—Store Pigs, wholesale 10 @ 11½ ₱ lb; retail 11 @ 14c ₱ lb. Fat Hogs—6600 at market; prices 10 @ 10½c ₱ lb.

☞ ADVERTISEMENTS, whether transient notices or by yearly contracts, are inserted in both the Daily Chronicle and Weekly Gazette, or in either one of these papers only, as desired. ☞ JOB AND CARD PRINTING is neatly promptly and cheaply done at the Chronicle and Gazette Office; and the patronage of friends in this line is respectfully solicited, and satisfaction guaranteed.

NEW SUBSCRIBERS who now pay in full in advance, for the DAILY CHRONICLE or the N. H. GAZETTE, for the year 1871, will be furnished with either paper gratis until Jan.

☞ THE NEW HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE for this week, is now ready for delivery, at the Chronicle Office. Each number contains all the reading matter of the week's Dailies. BUSINESS NOTICES.

☞ The Best Teas and Coffees are those from the ORIENTAL TEA Co., of Boston. H. M. Smith is the Agent in Portsmouth, at his Lunch Rooms in Ladd Street. Pure Teas and Coffees at the lowest Boston prices. je25dawtf

Blessed are they who seek relief from "Liver Complaint," "Billiousness," severe lingering Coughs and Bronchitis, by using Dr. Pierce's Alt. Ext. or Golden Medical Discovery, for they shall be happy in knowing that the cure is complete. $1,000 reward is offered by the proprietor for a medicine that will equal it in the cure of all the diseases for which it is recommended. For constipation of the bowels and a blood purifier, for the cure of Pimples and Blotches on the face, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, and all skin and Scrofulous diseases, this medicine is unequalled. Sold by druggists.

We would not recommend the frequent or constant use of any medicine. It is important to take even a good article judiciously. Parsons' Purgative Pills are safe, prompt, and reliable as a laxative or cathartic.

Base ball is undoubtedly good exercise and capital amusement, but it often occasions bunged eyes, broken shins and blistered hands. We can tell you that in all such cases if Johnson's Anodyne Liniment is resorted to, it will reduce the swelling and stop the pain.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

The Shivering Season.

The loss to the laboring classes of the United States caused by fever and ague, has been estimated at upwards of two millions of dollars per annum. Whole settlements are sometimes prostrated by the disease, and it is regarded in some localities, as one of those visitations of providence which cannot be avoided. This is a mistake. As certainly as any of the evils which are invited by neglect may be forestalled by precaution—so certainly may an attack of intermittent (or remittent) fever be prevented by invigorating the system with HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, in advance of the season, at which this malady prevails. Prevention, it is needless to say, is the wisest policy; but it is consoling to know that where time has not been thus taken by the forelock, and the paroxysms have actually commenced, a complete cure may, in all cases, be rapidly effected by the use of this powerful vegetable tonic.

The reputation of the Bitters as a specific for dyspepsia, liver complaint, constipation and nervous debility, has in some thrown into the shade its merits as a preventive and cure of other ailments, but all who have ever taken it, either as a protection against or a remedy for malarious fevers, will admit that it surpasses in efficiency all the so-called specific (including quinine,) usually prescribed for these maladies, while it is at the same time entirely harmless, and decidedly palatable.

Batchelor's Hair Dye.

☞ Mr. H. C. Locke has handed in to this office a box of the largest, fairest and most delicious Concord Grapes we have ever had the good fortune to see and taste. They are from the celebrated farm of Mr. Barker of Stratham, and are immense every way, three bunches filling a common grape-box. Mr. Locke has purchased a ton of them, on the vines; and they are delivered in lots and at times to suit his convenience, so that purchasers can get them fresh from the vineyard,—by calling at his Fruit Store, on Market Street.

☞ The workmen employed at Came Brothers' Carriage Manufactory, to the number (including ladies and invited guests) of about 70, on Thursday evening surprised Mr. Samuel W. Came (one of their employers) and lady, by presenting to the newly married couple a very handsome and costly easy chair, as a token of their respect and esteem.

The presentation was made by Mr. E. H. Winchester 2d, on behalf of the employes; and Mr. Came responded briefly and appropriately, thanking them for their kind regards. The occasion will be remembered with pleasure by all the parties interested.

IN BOARD OF ALDERMEN, Thursday evening, petition of Mrs. Wm. Laighton for relay of sidewalk on Austin and Summer Streets, was referred to Committee on Streets.

Petition of Wm. P. Jones and others protesting against Steam Fire Engine No. 2 leaving the city to attend the Haverhill muster, was accepted and laid on the table. The committee on Fire Department were instructed to publish in the daily papers the reasons for so doing.

On the hearing for the widening of Fleet Street, the Committee on City Lands and Buildings were requested to report as to the required width.

WILL A STEAM FIRE ENGINE FLOAT? This question has been finally settled in the negative, by a costly experiment. The reservoirs at the Navy Yard having given out, one of the Steam Fire Engines at the station was put aboard the anchor-hoy, and the tug Port Fire towed the improvised water-tank up the river, Tuesday, to bring down a cargo of water, in bulk. The huge hoy, (holding about 100,000 gallons,) was too much for the steamer, and both took the ground at Dover Point on the way down, Thursday; Steamer Clara Bateman went up, towed them off, and the two steamers then lashed alongside the hoy; but a rope got overboard, fouled the Port Fire's screw and disabled her, and the whole raft—hoy and steamers—brought up to the Port Fire's anchors; and those on board (unable to see, as it was now night,) supposed the ground-tackle was holding until "Boiling Rock" was heard roaring, as they neared it, when the Clara Batemen cast off to save herself. What became of the Port Fire just then we are unable to say, as the stories are mixed up; but the hoy went bang against Portsmouth Bridge, the fire engine went to the bottom and is there yet, and the last we heard of the hoy she was floating about up river, bottom up; the Port Fire is at the Yard, all safe. This account is the result of about fifteen different stories, sifted down to the best of our ability. We hear that Mr. Horatio Trefethen, the pilot of the Port Fire, protested against making the trip. The result of this trip made the cost of the water obtained exceed by as much as two bits what it could have been purchased for in Portsmouth,—and it isn't obtained now.

CUBA.—The landing of steamer Salvador was completely successful. The expeditionists and the greater portion of the arms are now safe in the interior. The vessel leaking, and being unseaworthy, was abandoned to the Spaniards, and the pilot and six firemen surrendered. During the voyage the passengers were constantly bailing, carrying coal and shifting the cargo. The authorities were deceived, and supposed she would land on the other side of the island.

☞ The President has appointed Senator Morton of Indiana, Minister to England. Mr. Morton accepts.

—The Scotch pronunciation of summer was not far out of the way this season—simmer.

A CARD.—The Aldermanic committee on fire department of the city of Portsmouth, in accordance with a vote passed unanimously by the Board of Mayor and Aldermen at their regular meeting held Thursday evening, September 22, hereby respectfully represent to the citizens and tax-payers of the city, and particularly to the signers of a petition which was by said Board laid upon the table at said meeting, the following facts:

A large and respectable delegation of the firemen of this city are desirous of attending a firemen's muster to be held in Haverhill, Mass., and it is deemed by them necessary that they be allowed to take with them one of the steam fire engines belonging to the fire department. In accordance with their wish, the Board, at their regular meeting, held September 15th, voted that their request be granted.

Realizing the importance of having the property of the city well guarded against devastation by fire during the dry season, the Board of Engineers adopted the following precautionary measures: During the absence of the steamer Sagamore, which it is expected will be about 48 hours, the two steamers remaining in the city are to be kept in constant preparation to answer an alarm, and the new steamer Kearsarge is to have horses standing ready to take it out at a moment's warning. Arrangements have also been made with the executive officer at the navy yard to respond promptly to any signal from this city by day or night, and send a steam fire engine from the yard to the aid of our fire department. Other precautionary measures have been adopted, of which it is unnecessary to speak in detail.

The Board of Aldermen deem it advisable to allow a delegation of firemen to attend the muster to which they have been invited, and take with them one of the three steam fire engines. They also believe that these precautionary measures will enable the members of the department remaining at home, to protect the city from danger equally as well as when all three are at home.

Respectfully submitted,
JOHN PENDER,
THOS. S. NOWELL,
Com. on Fire Department.

☞ Capt. Alfred Foster, master of schooner Columbia, from Bristol, Me., bound to Boston with a load of wood, fell overboard in our lower harbor, Thursday evening, while endeavoring to clear his vessel from another schooner which had run into her, and was drowned.

....The elegant monument executed by Mr. Treat for the lot belonging to Hon. Frank Jones, at the South cemetery, has just been placed in position, and is an excellent piece of workmanship. It is of the finest marble, composed of eight sections, the whole resting on a heavy granite base, making a shaft over 20 feet in height. Surmounting it is an elegantly carved cross, on which is placed a very rich crown. Thus far, this is the finest monument yet placed in this "city of the dead," and reflects great credit on the the taste and skill of its maker.

The greater part of the road is already completed, and the earnings from the finished portion are already more than sufficient to pay operating expenses and interest on the bonds. The balance of the work is progressing rapidly, in time for the movement of the coming grain crops, which, it is estimated will double the present income of the road.

The established character of this line, running as it does through the heart of the most thickly settled and richest portion of the great State of Iowa, together with its present advanced condition and large earnings warrant us in unhesitatingly recommending these bonds to investors, as, in every respect, an undoubted security.

These bonds have 50 years to run, are convertible at the option of the holder into the stock of the company at par, and the payment of the principal is provided for by a sinking fund. The convertibility privilege attached to these bonds cannot fail to cause them at no distant day to command a market price considerably above par, besides paying about 9 per cent., currency, interest in the meanwhile. U. S. Five-twenties, at present prices only return five per cent.; and we regard the security equally safe.

Morning Chronicle.

EARLY CALVES.—A correspondent of the Country Gentleman says:—There is a good deal more depending on an early start than is generally supposed; yet every farmer who has raised stock must be aware of the advantages attached to a calf or a colt born in March or April, over one not coming into existence till June. The early young animals become strong against their first winter, and go through the cold spells without the check those that are younger or tenderer receive, and having gained a good clear start, they will never lose it, and it is the same with lambs, pigs, and young poultry.

How attentive to this matter should those be who possess highly bred stock, for if it is worth consideration with good common stock, it must be of immense importance to those who breed animals coming to be worth as many thousands as the average grades are hundreds. In England the winters are very much milder than in the Northern States; yet this is seriously studied with every variety of live stock, for the first winter is the most critical period of agricultural animals' existence, and when the young stock is brought to grass at about fourteen months old, plump and fat as they can be, to be perfectly healthy and growing, there is an end to all anxiety concerning them.

DEEP SOIL AND DEEP ROOTS.—A working farmer says, "I have seen the roots of strawberries extend five feet down into a rich deep soil, and those plants bore a crop of fruit five times, and twice as handsome and good as the common produce of the soil only one foot deep. "The average vertical depth to which roots descend into well disintegrated soil, is thirty-four inches, and their length, as above stated, is often much greater; but the horizontal travel is occasionally very great and gradually deepening to thirty-four inches. If a hill of corn be raised upon an artificial knoll, formed of well disintegrated soil, and when ripe the top of the stalk be fastened to a gallows frame, and the earth be washed from the roots so as not to abrade them, they will be found to measure five and a half feet in length, and many of them so fine as to be singly invisible to the naked eye; but like the ultimate fibres of silk, when several are conjoined, are easily observed. With these facts before us who can doubt the necessity of deep ploughing.

NEW VARIETIES OF OATS.—In a communication to the Statesman. Levi Bartlett, the veteran farmer of Warner, thinks the Norway oats the same as the Siberian or Tartarian oat, described by Allen twenty years ago in his "American Farm Book." The grains are black or brown, thin and small, and turned mostly to one side of the pelicle, and the straw is coarse and reedy. Still Mr. Bartlett urges farmers to experiment with the Norway, the Excelsior, the white Swedish, the white Poland, the New Brunswick, and the Surprise. He thinks the Excelsior the best oat. He produced some of this variety which weighed 40 pounds to the bushel, while his Norway weighed only 34 pounds. Mr. Bartlett remarks that if there can be an increase in yield and weight of from 25 to 50 per cent. as there manifestly can, it certainly is an object worth attending to, even if an extra price must be paid for a small lot of seeds as a starting point.

—One of the observers sent out to Kentucky to observe the late eclipse of the sun requested an old negro living near his observatory to watch carefully his big flock of hens, for at 4:45 they would go to roost. After the eclipse was over he came evidently much excited. "How was it?" said the doctor. "Beats the debbil," said the negro. "When de darkness come ebry chick'n run for de hole in de barn. De fust ones got in, and the next ones run ober one anudder, and de last ones dey just squat right down in de grass. How long you think dis ting was a coming?" "Oh! I reckon we knew it more than a year," said the doctor. "Beats de debbil! Here you away in New York knowd a year ago what my chick'ns was gwine to do dis bery afternoon, an' you nebber see de chick'ns afore nudder!"

ABSORPTION OF LIGHT BY AIR.—Prof. H. Wild has been for some months investigating this subject, and now makes known several interesting and valuable facts. Among others he finds that dry air is more transparent than damp; a conclusion apparently at variance with common observation; for instance: we know that the atmosphere is clearest after a shower, when the air is supposed to be laden with moisture. In explanation of this he goes on to show very conclusively that, in ordinary circumstances, dust in suspension in the air diminishes its transparency in a very marked manner, and that the clearness noted succeeding a shower is owing to the fact that all the dust has been washed out by the falling rain-drops.

—Some experienced philosopher says that if you kill a mosquito when he is engaged in drawing blood from you, the poison remains in the wound, while if you let him slide until he gets a cargo of blood and retires, you will suffer no inconvenience. That may be all right in theory, but the practice of mashing them on the spot is what does one's soul good.—Portland Advertiser.

—The explanation of the origin of the phrase "by hook or by crook," is, that in the old time persons entitled to get firewood in the King's forests, were limited to such dead branches as they could tear down with "a hook or a crook, without hurt to His Majesty's trees."

—A time server—The town clock.

TEN THOUSAND CABINET ORGANS PER ANNUM.—Mason & Hamlin, the famous cabinet-organ makers, are again obliged to add to their manufacturing facilities, which have been doubled about every three years since they commenced business. So great is the reputation of their work and so large the demand for it that there has been no time for years when they have not been largely behind orders. Recently they purchased some two acres of ground in Cambridgeport, on which is now completed another large new factory. This, with their other factories, will give them capacity to produce two hundred cabinet organs each week, or over ten thousand per annum. They are, of course, much the largest manufacturers of this class of instruments in the world.

They are introducing improvements in their organs, the present season, which they regard as very valuable, and for which patents were granted them in June and August last.—Boston Advertiser.

Mr. A. Pearson is sole agent for Mason & Hamlin's Organs, for Portsmouth and vicinity.

CONCRETE.—The following from the New York Sun will be amusing and surprising to Concord people:

"The magnificent fraud, the tar concrete pavement of the Fifth avenue, which has cost the taxpayers of the city about five dollars a square yard to lay down, will soon have to be taken up or relaid in a different and more complete manner. It is now justly complained of as a nuisance. In fine weather the tar dust finds its way through doors and windows, and proves certain destruction to carpets and curtains and other delicate fabrics. In wet weather the street is a perfect mass of slush, covering the shoes and boots two or three inches high."

It apparent that the men who put down that concrete didn't know any thing about the business. If they will send a man here, he can learn the trade in a day, and he can then instruct them so that they can put down a concrete pavement that will stand for all time, and neither turn to dust in hot weather nor to slush in wet weather; but remain as hard and smooth as hammered granite in all kinds of weather.—Concord Patriot.

—An old millionaire named Lyman Allyn, recently died at Taylor's Hotel in Jersey City, who had bonds and money in his room to the amount of $600,000, besides a large amount of other securities. He occupied a little room in the upper story of the Hotel, and was found dead sitting in a chair at the table. For five or six years the old man, who dressed in the roughest garments, had been gliding silently from his garret to the dining room and back again to his retirement. What his occupation was no one knew, or seemed to care. Only one person was ever admitted into his room. This was the chambermaid, who was permitted to arrange his room while he was at dinner. When questioned, the girl replied always that there was nothing remarkable in the room, except the absence of anything to make it comfortable. The hotel keeper and the bar keeper, were all who knew his name. He left, will made fifteen years ago, giving his property to a sister and her children living in Connecticut.

—At a recent meeting of the Farmers Club of the American Institute, Dr. J. J. Babcock gave the following recipe for the destruction of the curculio. One of his neighbors was successful in raising plums. His plan was as follows:—He selected the ground for his plums near his barn. Having planted the trees he inclosed them in a high picket fence. He then built a hennery in the inclosure, and in addition to the fifty hens which he kept, placed two pigs in the orchard. The hens being fond of worms, destroyed the insect as they were shaken off, while the affected plums were eaten by the hogs immediately after they had fallen to the ground.

ANYTHING ELSE BUT SORRY.—"Once upon a time," a big, strapping, awkward youth, fresh from Vermont, entered the Dummer Academy at Byfield, Mass., for a little share of erudition, which is doled out at this Temple of Minerva at economical prices. At that time—we know not how it is at present—the boys and girls were kept in one appartment, only the middle aisle separating them. One day, this Vermont stripling, who had just been helping one of the girls through a hard sum—he was cute on cyphering—thought it not more than fair that he should take toll for his valuable services; accordingly he threw his stalwart arm around the rosy damsel and gave her a sly but rousing smack which startled the whole assembly. "Jedediah Tower, come up here!" roared out the preceptor.

The delinquent appeared, his face glowing with blushes like a red hot warming-pan—and looking as sly as a ninny.

"Hold out your hand, sir!" said the pedagogue. "I'll teach you not to act thus in this institution."

The huge paw was extended to a horizontal line toward the instructor, who surveyed its broad surface with a mathematical eye—calculating how many strokes of his small ferule it would take to cover the large number of square inches which it contained.

"Jedediah," at length, he said, "this is the first time that you have been called up for any delinquency; now, sir, if you will say that you are sorry for what you have done, I will let you off this time without punishment."

"Sorry," exclaimed the youngster, striking an attitude of pre-indignation; "sorry! No, sir! I am not. And I will do jest so agin if I hev a chance. So, put on, old teller, jest as hard as you like. By the jumpin' Sheshiphat! I'd stand here and let you lick me till kingdom kum, afore I'd be sorry at that—by thunder, I would!"

THE CIRCULAR FRAUD.—John Hoey, Superintendent of the Adams Express Company, was visited by a butcher who resides in the vicinity of New York, and who confessed that he had forwarded $25 to one of the gang who pretend to deal in counterfeit money. He solicited Mr. Hoey to assist him in having the man arrested in order to get his money back. Mr. Hoey wrote a note addressed to the Chief of Police, and as he was handing it to his visitor he inquired: "What will you reply when the Chief of Police wants to know why you sent for counterfeit money?" The visitor, becoming alarmed, said that he thought he would not pursue the matter any further, and then he hastily left the office. Mr. Hoey says that Adams Express has unwillingly done all it could to check the swindlers' business conducted through its agency, and he is not surprised that the swindlers succeed in entrapping hundreds of victims, when almost daily he sees men who are thought to be good citizens inquiring for boxes which they expect will contain counterfeit money.—New York Tribune.

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS,

FOR ALL PURPOSES of a LAXATIVE MEDICINE,

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative PILL. The obvious reason is that it is more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that the cures they see in their neighborhood and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these PILLS rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken freely to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhea, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Stitch and Lockjaw, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings, they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken, as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a DINNER PILL, take one or two PILLS to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these PILLS makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus. aw3m1eod1m

Dr. J. C. AYER & CO., Practical Chemist, LOWELL, MASS., U. S. A.

Sold by W. R. PRESTON, and all Druggists in Portsmouth and everywhere.

TO PHYSICIANS.

NEW YORK, AUG. 15th, 1869.

ALLOW ME TO CALL your attention to my PREPARATION OF COMPOUND EXTRACT BUCHU. The component parts are BUCHU, LONG LEAF, CUBEBS, JUNIPER BERRIES.

MODE OF PREPARATION.—Buchu, in vacuo, Juniper Berries, by distillation, to form a fine gin. Cubebs extracted by displacement with spirits obtained from Juniper Derries; very little sugar is used, and a small proportion of spirit. It is more palatable than any other in use.

Buchu, as prepared by Druggists, is of a dark color. It is a plant that emits its fragrance; the action of a flame destroys this (its active principle,) leaving a dark and glutinous decoction. Mine is the color of ingredients. The Buchu in my preparation predominates; the smallest quantity of the other ingredients are added, to prevent fermentation; upon inspection, it will be found not to be a Tincture, as made in Pharmacopœa, nor is it a Syrup—and therefore can be used in cases where fever or inflammation exist. In this, you have the knowledge of the ingredients and the mode of preparation.

Hoping that you will favor it with a trial, and that upon inspection it will meet with your approbation,

With a feeling of confidence,
I am, very respectfully,
H. T. HELMBOLD,
Chemist and Druggist of 19 Years' Experience.

[From the largest Manufacturing Chemists in the World.]

NOVEMBER 4, 1854.

"I am acquainted with Mr. H. T. Helmbold; he occupied the Drug Store opposite my residence and was successful in conducting the business where others had not been equally so before him. I have been favorably impressed with his character and enterprise."

WILLIAM WEIGHTMAN.

Firm of Powers & Weightman, Manufacturing Chemists, Ninth and Brown Streets, Philadelphia.

HELMBOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU, for weakness arising from indiscretion. The exhausted powers of Nature which are accompanied by so many alarming symptoms, among which will be found, Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Memory, Wakefulness, Horror of Disease, or Forebodings of Evil; in fact, Universal Lassitude, Prostration, and inability to enter into the enjoyments of society.

The constitution once affected with Organic Weakness, requires the aid of Medicine to strengthen and invigorate the system, which HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU invariably does. If no treatment is submitted to, Consumption or insanity ensues.

HELMBOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT OF BUCHU, in affections peculiar to Females, is unequalled by any other preparation, as in Chlorosis, or Retention, Painfulness, or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrus State of the Uterus, and all complaints incident to the sex, or the decline or change of life.

HELMBOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU AND IMPROVED ROSE WASH will radically exterminate from the system diseases arising from habits of dissipation, at little expense, little or no change in diet, no inconvenience or exposure; completely superseding those unpleasant and dangerous remedies, Copaiva and Mercury, in all these diseases.

Use HELMBOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU in all diseases of these organs, whether existing in male or female, from whatever cause originating and no matter of how long standing. It is pleasant in taste and odor, "immediate" in action, and more strengthening than any of the preparations of Bark or Iron.

Those suffering from broken-down or delicate constitutions, procure the remedy at once.

The reader must be aware that, however slight may be the attack of the above diseases, it is certain to affect the bodily health and mental powers.

All the above diseases require the aid of a Diuretic. HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is the great Diuretic.

Sold by Druggists everywhere. PRICE—$1.25 per bottle, or 6 bottles for $6.50. Delivered to any address. Describe symptoms in all communications.

MONDAY, SEPT. 26, 1870.

WAR NOTES.—Three divisions, composed of picked men, under the command of Generals Ducrot and Cansadado, attacked the Prussians who were massed in the woods of Clamart, Verrieres and Meudon. The assault was gallantly made and the woods almost reached when the Prussians opened on the advancing column. The Prussians had masked at the entrance to the woods heavy batteries of artillery, which, suddenly uncovered and from them a terrific fire of grape and canister was opened upon the moving French. They were staggered and their ranks torn to pieces by the sudden and awful nature of the destruction poured into them almost point blank. The Prussian guns were served unremittingly and their fire was terribly accurate, inflicting great loss upon the French. The latter were completely surprised and the greatest confusion ensued, causing a dreadful mistake. In the bewilderment two regiments of French collided. The Mobiles mistook the 16th regiment for a force of the enemy, and poured a galling fire into their ranks, killing many by their grievous blunder. The commands became separated and fired wildly into each other. The French commanders, seeing the disastrous turn of the engagement, ordered a retreat, which was effected in great confusion. The Prussians, availing themselves of the retreat, gained the heights of Mendon and St. Cloud, and dragged up their guns to the summit. Here they established their batteries, and from this elevation began to play upon the French regiments, composed of reserves and recruits who had not been under fire. The well-directed guns of the Prussian batteries made terrible havoc among the green troops, who, disregarding all commands broke and fled. Shells were poured into them from the heights, and their retreat became a rout.

The garrison at Sevres, midway between Versailles and Paris, consisting of 2000 Garde Mobiles has been captured by the Prussians. The Mobiles met their foes with great determination at first, but were overwhelmed by superior forces of Prussians and compelled to surrender.

Information received through Prussian sources state that a terrible famine is spreading among all classes in the provinces of Alsace and Lorraine. The people have been so impoverished and stripped by foragers and stragglers from both armies, that nothing now remains, and the greatest suffering and misery ensues.

Jules Favre is understood to offer upon the part of the provisional government of France, the following concessions as the terms of peace:—

1. France is prepared to render complete indemnification to Prussia for he costs of the war.

2. She guarantees the demolition of all the fortifications at the cities of Metz and Strasbourg; and

3. She will surrender part of the French fleet.

The Franes Tireurs at Thionville make constant sallies, and have inflicted much damage on the Prussians.

Another balloon from Bazaine's headquarters at Metz has fallen within the territory controlled by the French. It contained 137 letters. From these it seems that butcher's meat is very dear at Metz, and the army and citizens are eating horse flesh. There is a great quantity of provisions other than meat.

Toul surrendered on Friday.

Two small villages between Mesieres and Epinay have been burned by the Prussians. The inhabitants attempted to extinguish the flames, but the Prussians opened fire on them with artillery, compelling them to desist, and the villages were entirely destroyed. The Prussians have bombarded Mantes La Ville.

General De Wimpffen, in a recent letter, says that the Emperor surrendered in a very cowardly manner at Sedan. He (Wimpffen) proposed a movement which would have redeemed everything, but it was overruled at once.

Favre's mission to Bismark is a failure.

Another revolution is reported at Paris.

☞ President Grant is coming East to place his son at school in Cambridge, Mass., and his daughter at school in Concord, N. H.

RUSSIA is in motion to seize the Black Sea and probably the Dardanelles. A war between the Czar and Soltan is imminent.

☞ The population of New York city by the full returns is 885,026. In 1860, it was 805,958; increase, 49,368.

☞ Gold, Saturday, 113.

MISCELLANEOUS. — The drought is very severe in Candia and vicinity. Most of the wells in the village have failed. Fires are doing much damage in the northerly part of the town, and Allenstown. A large number of men are employed in subduing the devouring element. Some of the citizens are alarmed for the safety of their buildings. No drought in the recollection of the eldest citizen, will compare in severity and duration with the present.

Deerfield contains a population of 1768—298 less than in 1860. It is made up mostly of a class of substantial farmers. There are many good buildings in town; only one house, however, built of brick, which is owned by Stephen Prescott, Esq.

In the recent railroad disaster in Candia, Edmund R. Ingalls, shoe-freighter, lost his pocket-book, containing $140 cash. A.

☞ Wendell Phillips, in an article on Europe in the National Standard, says that the first step that Prussia made from Sedan to Paris destroyed forever all Bismark's claim to be thought a statesman, and the next generation of Prussia will have cause to weep that her supposed statesman became the willing tool of a bigot king. After condemning the course of Bismark and defending the French people, Phillips says: "Our government should protest against this vengeance on unoffending France, and speak for humanity, amid this breathless and cowardly silence of kings."

☞ Hon. John L. Dawson of Pennsylvania, formerly a prominent Democratic politician, is dead. He was the author of the homestead act of 1854, being then a member of Congress from the Covode district.

IMPORTANT NEWSPAPER CHANGE.—The HEARTH AND HOME, a finely illustrated family journal of a high character, hitherto issued by Messrs. Pettingill, Bates & Co., has been purchased by Messrs. Orange, Judd & Co., of 245 Broadway, New York, the well-known publishers of the American Agriculturist. Messrs. S. M. Pettingill & Co., whose great Advertising Agency, established in 1849, is one of the largest and most reputable in the world, find that their extensive business requires their exclusive attention, and they therefore transfer HEARTH AND HOME to the new Publishers, whose long experience and abundant facilities will enable them not only to maintain the past high character of the paper, but to add materially to its value. The new Publishers also announce a reduction of the terms to $3 per year. The change will not at all affect the American Agriculturist, which will continue on independently as heretofore.—The illustrations and reading matter of the journals will be entirely different. Either of the journals will be furnished from now to the end of 1871 (15 months,) at the yearly subscription rate, viz: the Weekly HEARTH AND HOME, at $3; the Monthly AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST, $1 50; or the two for $4.

WE ALL CONSIDER IRON the embodiment of strength and power, but how few are aware that it is this element in the system, that gives us strength and vigor, and that an insufficiency of it causes weakness and debility. The Peruvian Syrup, a protoxide of iron, is prepared expressly to supply this vitalizing element.

We would not recommend the frequent or constant use of any medicine. It is important to take even a good article judiciously. Parsons' Purgative Pills are safe, prompt, and reliable as a laxative or cathartic.

Base ball is undoubtedly good exercise and capital amusement, but it often occasions bunged eyes, broken shins and blistered hands. We can tell you that in all such cases if Johnson's Anodyne Liniment is resorted to, it will reduce the swelling and stop the pain.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

A Tainted Atmosphere.

Malarious fevers are most prevalent in the fall. Heavy and unwholesome exhalations then arise from the earth, and the great disparity between the temperature of day and night predisposes the system, enfeebled by the summer heats, to epidemic diseases. The secretive organs, the liver especially, are apt, at this period of the year, to become inert and sluggish, and all the bodily powers require renovation. The best, indeed the only protection against the morbid influences of the season is a wholesome medicated stimulant. Pre-eminent among the restoratives of this class, and indeed foremost among the medicinal and preventive medicines of modern times, stands HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS.

Its reputation is co-extensive with the Western Hemisphere; it has been a standard article for twenty years; its sales (as may be ascertained by the revenue returns) are far larger than those of any other proprietary preparation on this continent; and the testimony in its favor embraces letters of approval from the most distinguished members of all the learned professions and from well known residents of almost every city in the Union. These are its credentials. To state what it is doing to prevent and assuage the sufferings of the human family would require more space than can be given to the subject here. The dyspeptic, the bilious, the nervous, the weak and emaciated, the decending, the broken down, find in its renovating and regulating properties a sure and immediate means of relief. It is a pure vegetable specific, at once safe and powerful, and for which the whole materia medica affords no substitute.

In the great cities of Asia, and other hot climates, it has become the Standard Medicine for all such complaints, as well as for Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, and other kindred disorders. ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT?

IF SO, SELECT THE BEST, which is the

AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.

It has proved itself, West, North and South, to be the best Paint known. It will not peel, crack, nor chalk off, and will last twice as long as the best Lead Paints.

It is cheaper, handsomer and more elastic, than the best of other Paints. It is the most convenient Paint made, being mixed, ready for application; it dries rapidly, and retains its shade perfectly, with a beautiful surface and glossy finish, and for years retains its gloss and beauty. It is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper, making a smooth glossy finish, which can be cleaned with hot suds without injury.

One Gallon of Mixed Lead Paint weighs 20 lbs. and costs $2.72, and will only cover 2 square yds., 2 coats: while one gallon of the Chemical Paint only weighs 10 lbs., and costs but $2.50, and will cover 20 square yds., 2 coats,—thus making a saving of 22 cts., per gallon, besides covering 4 yards more than Lead Paint, and will last twice as long and look far better.

The Chemical Paint is sold by the gallon in quantities to suit purchasers, in 40 different shades and pure white, and will be applied by experienced workmen and satisfaction guaranteed in every case; or in case of dissatisfaction in one year after put on, the whole cost of Paint will be refunded.

The sale of these unequalled Paints are daily increasing. Call and examine these ready mixed Paints, both in kegs, and applied to Buildings one year ago, before buying elsewhere, and save your money and money, and beautify your dwelling by using the ☞ Portsmouth has six temperance groceries, and 156 groceries where liquor is sold.

☞ We regret to learn that Mr. Charles E. Buzzell, Principal of the Hanover Street Grammar School, is sick with bilious fever.

NAVAL.—The order assigning Lieut. Comd'r Yates to duty at this Navy Yard, has been revoked, and he is ordered to the Naval Academy. Lieut. Comd'r. Yates is one of the most popular officers at this Station.

THEATRICAL.—Locke & Leslie have postponed their re-appearance here until some more convenient season, but Jennie Kimball with a stock company will give one performance on Thursday evening. Jennie draws the boys, old and young.

THE NEW ASSOCIATE JUSTICE.—The Republicans in this part of the State generally felt the propriety of appointing a Democrat to succeed Judge Nesmith, and so far as we know or believe were united in wishing the appointment of J. S. H. Frink, of Greenland. We do not know what considerations have controlled the appointment; but the people of this part of the State believe Mr. Frink would have made a good Judge, and regret that he has not been appointed.

It is but justice to say in this connection, that no better appointment could have been made from the democratic party than that of Mr. Hibbard. He is an able and honorable lawyer and scholar, and will make an upright and acceptable Judge.

Communication.

Messrs. Editors:—Your Boston correspondent, "M," has seen fit to blow me up for what he deems inaccuracies in my account of a recent ride to Boston. He says I neglect to state that the sons of our old friend Meinerth, at Newburyport, are imbued with the versatile spirit of their father; shown in the well-filled aquaria, the birds and squirrel, &c. Here "M." is wrong—all wrong. There isn't one spark of the "spirit of our old friend Meinerth" in that inhospitable squirrel; for while the latter proceeded to bite me as quick as possible after I got within reach of him, the former, though I was for a full hour in his company, never offered to bite me at all.

Speaking of the two young men whom we saw drinking from a black bottle, he says that if they choose to spend their money for drink, it isn't his business any more than it is if they "squander their substance for fine raiment, "or anything else they cannot honestly afford." I suppose he thought I wouldn't know what he was hinting at here; but I do. He meant that "fine raiment" allusion as a very mean and unkind slap at the box of paper collars which I purchased in Ipswich, and got him to pay for, afterwards forgetting to refund the money. I scorn his insinuations. Besides, he invited me to take a trip down Boston harbor, and then wouldn't pay for my ticket—cost me twenty cents; so we are square.

He denies that the Boston mosquito is the ferocious quadruped I have described, and says the Salem one beats him. This is another misstatement. The Salem bug is possessed of much ability in his line, certainly, and the night we spent in that city was made lively indeed by his music and feasting; and I remember that "M." several times during that night made use of strange words in an unknown (to me) tongue, which I should have supposed to be anathemas had I not found a tract in his hat next morning. But I never saw in Salem,—nor anywhere else till I went to Boston—a mosquito larger than a bumble-bee, and able to pierce a man's foot through the heel of his boot. P.

LOOKING AHEAD.—The Atlanta, Ga., New Era hoists the name of President Grant for re-election, and that of Attorney-General Akerman for Vice President.

☞ We call attention to the advertisement of the New York Observer in another column. It is sent free on trial to all applicants one month.

☞ The Nilsson concerts in Boston are to be on the evenings of November 4th, 5th and 7th.

☞ The prevalence of vomito is creating a great panic in the maritime cities of Spain.

HUMANE.—The use of kerosene oil on board revenue cutters in the service is prohibited.

MRS. HAMLET'S SOLILOQUY.

To vote, or not to vote, that is the question;
Whether 'tis nobler to forego the suffrage
And bear the arrows of outrageous fortune,
Or take up arms against our sex' s troubles,
And, by opposing, end them? To live—to wed—
No more; and by a marriage say we end
The heartache, only to nurse the little ills,
Women are heir to—'tis a consummation
Not for Joseph, if the Court herself doth know;
And that she doth is most indubitable.
To vote—to act, perchance, a farce; ay,
There's the rub; for by this act what fights may
When we have shuffled off our crinoline? [come
This makes us pause; this, too, is the respect
That makes calamity of woman's suffrage;
For who would bear the kicks and cuffs of men,
The oppressor's fists, our lords' contumely,
Assault and battery, and the law's delay,
The insolence of bummers, and the spurns
That patient women from rough loafers take,—
When, to avoid it, she could stay at home
And use her bodkin? Who would muskets bear,
Or groan of sweat under a mechanic's life,
But for the pleasures of Emancipation—
The rich Golconda, from whose gaping jaws
The flesh pots yawn in tantalizing plenty?
But there's the afterclap! This puzzles the will,
And makes us rather bear the ills we have,
Than fly to the horrid inexpressibles.
Thus cowardice makes babies of us all;
And thus our petted suffrage resolutions
Are sickled over with the pale cast of fear;
And enterprise of glorious ballot-stuffing
Must fade, alas, because our suffering sex
Dare not imbibe the soul-inspiring rye
To give us vim and action.

CANNOT LIVE.—It is now believed by the physicians who have attended Mr. Preston, the engineer who was so severely injured in consequence of the accident on the C. & P. R. R. about two weeks since, that he cannot recover. His brain was contused at the time, though it was hoped that he would survive as he very soon after recovered his senses. For the most of the time since the accident he has been in a stupor, which indicates great injury to the brain. Friday night he had a lucid interval and told his wife that he could not get well.—Man. Union.

☞ British Brig Dominion, Capt. White, from Lingan, C. B., arrived at this port, Saturday. Capt. White reports that on the 8th of Sept. he experienced a severe gale, lost all his topsails, put into Halifax, N. S., repaired and left on the 16th. On the 18th, he took the N. E. gale and lost his topsails again. He says the gale was very severe.

—A late paragraph for the benefit of soldiers applying for pensions was in error. No bill was passed at the last session extending the time for such applications, but the time for filing claims for additional bounty was extended to next December. By the law all who served two years are entitled to fifty dollars, and those who served three years to one hundred dollars. Those who were disabled from wounds received in the line of duty are entitled to full bounty without regard to time. —Advertiser.

—An exchange says that two men were lately seen tearing up the street in a neighboring city, and the same day several persons were observed in the very act of pulling up the river. It may also be mentioned that there is scarcely a railroad line in the country whose train is not broken up every day by some of their employes.

BASE BALL ACCIDENTS.—A lad 13 years old was instantly killed on the base ball ground in Chicago by being struck by a ball.

John A. Lowell of the Lowell club of Boston broke an ankle while running bases, on Friday.

☞ A United States detective is at work to get the notorious bank robber, Charley Adams, pardoned out of the Maine State prison, in order to save the government $70,000.

☞ In the Nevada Democratic State Convention, the candidates for the various nominations were each obliged to make a deposit of $20 before voting commenced.

☞ The mathematician of the Manchester Mirror has counted or estimated that the list we published last week, of persons paying over $50 tax, contains 525 names.

—A sleepy church-warden, who often played at cards, hearing the minister use the words, "shuffle off this mortal coil," started up, rubbing his eyes, and exclaimed: "Hold on—it's my deal!"

—Mrs. Partington wants to know, if it were not intended that women should drive their husbands, why are they put through the bridal ceremony?

—Not a witty-schism—that which divides a church.

J. EDGAR THOMPSON, CHARLES L. FROST, } Trustees.

The greater part of the road is already completed, and the earnings from the finished portion are already more than sufficient to pay operating expenses and interest on the bonds. The balance of the work is progressing rapidly, in time for the movement of the coming grain crops, which, it is estimated will double the present income of the road.

The established character of this line, running as it does through the heart of the most thickly settled and richest portion of the great State of Iowa, together with its present advanced condition and large earnings warrant us in unhesitatingly recommending these bonds to investors, as, in every respect, an undoubted security.

These bonds have 50 years to run, are convertible at the option of the holder into the stock of the company at par, and the payment of the principal is provided for by a sinking fund. The convertibility privilege attached to these bonds cannot fail to cause them at no distant day to command a market price considerably above par, be sides paying about 9 per cent., currency, interest in the meanwhile. U. S. Five-twenties, at present prices only return five per cent.; and we regard the security equally safe.

Morning Chronicle.

The Mother of Louis Napoleon.

If it were possible to investigate the history and parental antecedents of the great men of every age and race, it would be found that the large majority of them inherited their mother's traits, and derived from her the abilities which make them famous.

Washington was pre-eminently his mother's child, and whatever was noble, unselfish and heroic in him, he inherited from that woman who was fit to be a Roman matron when Rome produced demigods. Napoleon Bonaparte was the offspring of Letitia Ramolini, rather than her amiable husband, Charles; and the unchanging devotion and respect which he lavished upon her through life, and the tributes he paid her memory when she was dead, are proofs that he recognized and was proud of the fact.

The checkered career of Louis Napoleon Bonaparte—his early obstinacy and folly, his many failures, his unyielding confidence in his own destiny, and the tremendous game on which he staked the fortunes of his empire and his dynasty, all combine to make him one of the most remarkable characters that has ever appeared upon the stage of human affairs. What, and how much of the past, the present and the possible future does he owe to his mother? Josephine Rose Tascher was a French creole, born on the Island of Mantinique. At the age of fifteen she was betrothed to the Viscount Alexander de Beauharnais, a French nobleman of wealth and high social position, who had met her while on a visit to his colonial estates. Tradition says that Josephine was at the time deeply attached to a young man whom she had known from childhood; that a partial engagement existed between them which was to terminate in marriage as soon as he had completed his studies in Paris. During his absence, Beauharnais arrived, became desperately enamored, and proposed for her hand. She was disposed to reject him, and did indeed discourage his addresses, but her uncle and guardian were flattered with the brilliant match thus offered his penniless niece, and urged her acceptance. Relatives and friends joined their importunities, every argument likely to flatter the pride and ambition of a young and unsophisticated woman was brought forward, and the natural and general result in such cases followed. She consented to discard the man she loved, because he was poor, and to marry the man she did not love, because he was rich.

Crossing the ocean in 1770, Josephine took up her residence in Paris, pending the arrangement of the coming nuptials. Here, it is said, she met her abandoned lover, and the old emotions which she thought and hoped were dead and buried, revived in full force; but she had gone too far to retreat, and after an interview in which agony and remorse drove her to the verge of madness, the final parting came. For three months she sought refuge in the convent of Pantheomont, striving to forget her unrelling sorrow, amid the quiet surroundings and religious influences of cloister life.—In 1776 she was married; in 1781 her first and only son, Eugene, was born, and on the 10th of Jan., 1783, her first and only daughter, Hortense. Beauharnais was no better and no worse than the majority of titled Frenchmen of his day, but he did not appreciate his wife, indulged in every species of fashionable dissipation, and love soon vanished from the unhappy household to return no more. Writing to an intimate friend in Martinique, poor Josephine says:

"Were it not for my children I should renounce France without a pang forever. My duty requires me to forget William. And yet if we had been united together, I should not now be troubling you with my grief."

By an unlucky chance the husband saw this letter and a stormy scene ensued, which ended in a temporary separation. Taking Hortense, then but three years old, the almost broken-hearted woman returned to her island home, and there remained for several years, living in closest seclusion upon her plantation. Meanwhile Beauharnais was smitten with repentance, and urged his wife to forgive him his manifold transgressions and rejoin him. She consented, not for his sake, however, but for the sake of her son, who pleaded piteously for a mother's care and affection. She landed in Paris in 1789, when the revolution was beginning to throw its terrible shadow over France, and before that shadow had departed it had robbed her of her husband.

Beauharnais was guillotined in July, 1794, and Josephine herself was only saved from sharing the same fate by the fall of Robespierre. In March, 1796, she married Napoleon Bonaparte and thenceforth her history is blended with that of the last of the Cæsars. Hortense, then thirteen years of age, was placed at the celebrated school of Madame Campan, in company with Napoleon's sister Caroline, afterward the wife of Murat and Queen of Naples. Here she remained until she had completed her education, winning the love of her teachers and class-mates by a simple, unaffected modesty of demeanor, and bright and cheerful temper which never deserted her through all the changes and bitter trials of a weary and wretched life. The Duchess D'Abrantes gives in her sparkling "Memories" the following sketch of Hortense Beauharnais at eighteen:

"She was as fresh as a rose, and though her fair complexion was not relieved by much color, she had enough to produce that freshness and bloom which was her chief beauty. A profusion of light hair played in silky locks round her soft and penetrating blue eyes. The delicate roundness of her slender figure was set off by the elegant carriage of her head. Her feet were small and pretty; her hands very white, with pink, well-rounded nails. But what formed the chief attraction of Hortense was the grace and suavity of her manners. She was gay, gentle, amiable. She had wit which, without the smallest ill-temper, had just enough malice to be amusing. A polished education had improved her natural talents. She drew excellently, sang harmoniously, and performed admirably in comedy. I have seen many princesses, both in their own courts and in Paris, but I have never known one who had any pretensions to equal talents."

The nearest and most unselfish friend Napoleon ever had was undoubtedly Michael Duroc, grand marshal of the palace under the empire, and Duke of Friuli. He fell at the battle of Bautren, May 23, 1813, and the Emperor never recovered from the blow which his loss inflicted. He speaks tenderly of him in the St. Helena memoirs, and one of the largest legacies left in his will was to the daughter of the man who had loved him so well and served him so faithfully. When Hotense entered society Duroc was a rising young general of twenty-nine, handsome, brave, and already distinguished. The pair were necessarily thrown much into each other's company, and love sprung up between them as naturally as flowers leap from the earth to welcome the smiles of the sun. They would have married but for Josephine. She had long since given up all hopes of having a child herself, and believed that if a union could be effected between Napoleon's brother Louis and her daughter, the offspring would be adopted by Bonaparte and recognized as heir apparent. Napoleon was not unconscious of her plans, and according to what Aourrienne once remarked:

"Josephine labors in vain. Duroc and Hortense love each other, and they shall be married. I am attached to Duroc. He is well born. I have given Caroline to Murat, and Pauline to Lo Clerc. I can as well give Hortense to Duroc. He is as good as the others. He is General of Division. Besides, I have other views for Louis."

But Josephine succeeded, nevertheless, and the marriage occurred in 1802. Louis, in his memoir, says:—Never was there a more gloomy wedding. Never had a husband and wife a stronger presentiment of a forced and unsuited marriage. Before the ceremony, during the benediction, ever afterwards, we both and equally felt that we were not suited to each other.

The couple were mutually wretched from the outset, and neither the persistent efforts of Napoleon and Josephine, nor the birth of children, could ever bring them into harmony. They finally separated, and after the banishment of Napoleon, in 1815, Hortense retired to Switzerland with her youngest son, the present Emperor of the French, and devoted all her time and care to his education. To her he owed that thorough mental discipline, that courage in adversity, that indomitable will, that fixedness of purpose, that faith in the Napoleonic star, which have accompanied him through poverty and distress, sorrow and disappointment, imprisonment and exile, and placed him upon the proudest throne of Europe. He, in turn, repaid her with a love amounting almost to idolatry, and when in 1837 the tidings reached him in New York that she lay on the death bed at Arenemburg, he hastened across the sea to her side, and arrived just in time to close her eyes. She recognized him, threw her arms about his neck, whispered a mother's last blessing upon his lips, and died.

As the French soldiers recently marched towards the Rhine, the bands of every regiment played the melody which Hortense, in her happier hours, composed; and it is the son's affection for the mother which is translated in "Partant pour la Syrie."

—A tavern keeper in one of the small towns of Wisconsin employed an honest old German blacksmith to do a certain job, for which he paid cash at once. Afterward a neighbor got a similar job done on credit, for a less price. Upon being asked the reason, the blacksmith replied: "You zee I have zo much sharge on my books, and I zometimes lose 'em; and zo ven I have good cash customers, I sharge good price; but ven I puts it on my book, I do not like to sharge zo much; zo if 'em never pays, I no loze zo much."

The Chronicle.

JOVIAL CREATURES.—A special to the Boston Journal, dated New York, Sept. 22d, gives the following amusing sketch of the funny doings of the Democratic delegates from New York city to the Rochester Convention. The happy fellows are evidently worthy representatives of the census-extending, ballot-box-stuffing patriots who send gambling-hell owners, roughs, and men "who only escape the penitentiary by being tried one day too late," to represent them in the National Congress.

The New York delegation to the Rochester Convention returned this afternoon, the journey both ways having been distinguished by as much lawlessness and brutality as even New York roughs are capable of. All along the line, stores were robbed, private dwellings were sacked, and all manner of outrages committed at each large place.

The police were notified before of the approach of the ruffians, but as they were in the minority their presence was no check upon the scoundrels. The Chief of Police at Jersey City, Thursday afternoon received a telegram informing him of the approach of the trains, and giving descriptions of the most lawless of the desperadoes. He at once detailed officers to meet the trains as they came.

Delegations got on the cars at Passaic and came down in the midst of the thieves, detecting many of them in the very act of robbing passengers. At Jersey City twenty-two of the pickpockets were arrested, and the officers were waiting for a train which was expected at 10 P. M., but was delayed by some accident.

On the persons of all the prisoners arrested were found a number of watches and other articles of jewelry, but not much money. William M. Tweed has sent agents up the road as far as Rochester to see what amount of damage was done by the gentlemen of his party. It is said that he proposes to foot the bills.

All but four of the rascals were discharged by the courts on Friday. "A fellow feeling makes us wondrous kind."

DEMOCRATIC PURITY. — We alluded last week to the fact that the returns of the census, in New York city, were seriously alarming to the Democratic leaders, who have become accustomed to calculate upon carrying the Empire State every time by election frauds in the metropolis. Mayor Hall has found his pure mind stirred within him at the revelations of the census, which prove that the real population is much too small to turn out so many Democratic voters as the election returns have been wont to show. Mayor Hall is indignant because Sharpe cannot find a bigger population in sundry Democratic wards, and threatens to have the census taken again. But Marshal Sharpe is not alarmed, and responds to the irate Mayor as follows:

"I believe it would be well to test the accuracy of the census; and I respectfully invite the Mayor of the City of New York to unite with me in the appointment of Mr. Samuel J. Tilden, Chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, and Mr. Jackson S. Schultz, President of the Union League Club, to review the census returns of the Xth Election District of the Sixth Ward, where the total number of inhabitants is found to be 870, and the total vote last fall was 707. I have many other districts in which I will in the future invite the Mayor to examine the census returns."

That is certainly fair; but the Mayor shows no haste in accepting the Marshal's proposition.—Concord Statesman.

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS,
FOR ALL PURPOSES of a LAXATIVE MEDICINE,
Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative PILL. The obvious reason is that it is a more certain, safe, and efficacious remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or negligence in its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we do not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their power of coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.
They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.
Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these PILLS rapidly cure:—
For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.
For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.
For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.
For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.
For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings, they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.
For Suppression a large dose should be taken, as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.
As a DINNER PILL, take one or two PILLS to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.
An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these PILLS makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus. dawje21eodim

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT?
IF SO, SELECT THE BEST, which is the
AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.
It has proved itself, West, North and South, to be the best Paint known. It will not peel, crack, nor chalk off, and will last twice as long as the best Lead Paints.
It is cheaper, handsomer and more elastic, than the best of other Paints. It is the most convenient Paint made, being mixed, ready for application; it dries rapidly, and retains its shade perfectly, with a beautiful smoothness like ivory finish, and for years retains its gloss and beauty. It is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper, making a smooth glossy finish, which can be cleaned with hot suds without injury.
One Gallon of Mixed Lead Paint weighs 20 lbs. and costs $2.72, and will only cover 16 square yds. 2 coats: while one gallon of the Chemical Paint only weighs 10 lbs., and costs but $2.50, and will cover 20 square yds. 2 coats,—thus making a saving of 22 cts., per gallon, besides covering 4 yards more than Lead Paint, and will last twice as long and look far better.
The Chemical Paint is sold by the gallon in quantities to suit purchasers, in 40 different shades and pure white, and will be applied by experienced workmen and satisfaction given to every case; or in case of dissatisfaction in one year after put on, the whole cost of Paint will be refunded.
The sale of these unequalled Paints are daily increasing. Call and examine these ready mixed Paints, both in bottles and in buildings erected one year ago, before buying elsewhere, and save your money and money, and beautify your dwelling by using the
AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINTS,
which are for sale at the
GROCERY AND PROVISION STORE,
No. 16 and 18 Cabot Street, where are kept the best of Meats and Groceries, as low as can be bought in the city.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR,
For Restoring Gray Hair to its Natural Vitality and Color.
A Dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for Preserving the Hair. Faded or gray Hair is soon restored to its original color, with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use.
Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remains can be saved from premature decay by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor, can only benefit but not harm it.
If wanted merely for a HAIR DRESSING, nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Portsmouth, N. H.

TUESDAY, SEPT. 27, 1870.

WAR NOTES. — At Toul, the Prussians captured 109 officers, 2230 men, 120 horses, an eagle, 197 guns, including 48 rifled cannon, 3000 rifles, 2000 sabres, and 500 cuirasses. A large amount of supplies, ammunition, bombs and other war material was also surrendered.

Marshal Bazaine has offered to capitulate at Metz, on the condition that he be allowed to take his baggage and arms. He engages not to take up arms for three months.

Great anxiety and depression is reported in Berlin in consequence of the preparations for a winter campaign. It was hoped that the war might be over by the end of September at the furthest, but the war office is now ordering an immense amount of supplies for protracted operations in the winter. Vast quantities of blankets, woolen shirts and camp furniture are daily going forward, and a deep gloom overspreads the people.

From Namur there are the worst possible accounts of the state of things in Ardennes. At Rethel the typhoid pestilence is raging with dreadful violence, sixty deaths a day being reported in a town of less than 10,000 souls. The average in the German camps and in scattered villages is higher.

The south of France is one vast camp, and the population is arming from the Alps to the Pyrenees.

It is officially announced that an army of the Loire has been constituted. It is to occupy the position beyond the Loire, and is estimated at 150,000 men, with ample supplies of artillery and ammunition.

MM. Cremieux, Glais-Bizoin and Fourichon, have issued the following "Proclamation to France! Before the siege of Paris, Favre went to see Bismark to know the intention of the enemy. The following is the declaration of the enemy:—

"Prussia wishes to continue the war in order to reduce France to a second-rate power.

"Prussia demands Alsace and Lorraine as far as Metz by right of conquest.

"Prussia, before consenting to an armistice, demands the rendition of Strasbourg, Toul and Mont Valerien.

"Paris is exasperated, and will rather bury herself beneath her ruins. To such insolent pretensions, we can respond only by resistance to the last extremity. France accepts the struggle and counts upon her children."

The government intends to issue a decree for a levy en masse.

Throughout Brittany there is a voluntary uprising.

In Tours all the men are drilling.

Advices from the departments show that the proclamation announcing the breaking off of negotiations and the postponement of the meeting of the Constituent Assembly was well received, and the people on all sides cry for arms.

THE AMENDED LIQUOR LAW. — We learn that a few real estate owners in Manchester, who let buildings to persons who deal in liquors, have notified their tenants that they must not violate the amended temperance law. As a general rule, however, but little attention is paid to the subject. All cases which are brought under this law, like every one, must finally go to a jury. If the law is too rigorous or in conflict with the sentiments of the people, it will be as difficult to convict under it as under the old law. If the people at large do not respect the law, it matters but little what members of the Legislature may enact.—Manchester Union.

That is it, exactly. If the people, the great majority, really desire a law to be executed, it will be—otherwise, it cannot be; for witnesses, juries and Courts will not support officers in attempting it. For instance, the citizens of Portsmouth do not wish the rum-shops and houses of ill-fame to be closed, and so the officers cannot close them; but they do wish that thieving shall be punished, even if the stealings be the illegal and ill-gotten gains of the rumseller and harlot—and so the officers can convict thieves, usually.

POLITICAL.—Postmaster-General Creswell, who has been in Maryland trying to adjust differences in the republican ranks, reports that everything is now going on smoothly, and that the republicans are sure of carrying three out of five congressional districts.

Attorney-General Akerman, who resumed the duties of his office Saturday, says that the prospect of carrying Georgia at the election next December is very good, and that the republicans are better organized than ever before.

—The New Haven Register says: "What we know about gardening" will be interesting. The "senior" has picked, this season, three cucumbers, seven ears of corn, and four tomatoes, which cost him $4.48 each.

OLD TIMES CHRONICLES, No. 17.

BY UNCLE JOSEPH.

REV. JOSIAH STEARNS, EARLY MINISTER OF EPPING.—Epping was a part of Exeter. It was incorporated in 1741, the first year that Benning Wentworth was Governor of the Province of New Hampshire.

A Congregational church was formed in 1746 or '47 and in the last named year Rev. Robert Cutler was ordained pastor. He continued about 8 years, when in 1755, being charged with immoral conduct, he was dismissed.

While Mr. Cutler was in Epping, people carried their guns to meeting, stacked them near, and placed a sentinel over them, to be ready to defend themselves if the Indians should come.

Rev. Josiah Stearns was the next minister. He continued 30 years. This was the longest pastorate ever in the town. Rev. Peter Holt, his successor, was there 28 years.

We are indebted to the late Rev. Dr. French of North Hampton for some account of Mr. Stearns' genealogy. Isaac Stearns came from England with Gov. Winthrop in 1630, and settled at Watertown, Massachusetts. He had a son John, who also had a son John, born in Billerica. This John was the father of Mr. Stearns of Epping. He was born in Billerica, Mass., Jan. 20, 1732. At school he was so well behaved and gave such application to books that a teacher urged his parents to give him a collegiate education. He entered Harvard College at the early age of 15, and graduated at 19, in 1751. He gave what attention he could to the study of theology, and at the age of 21 commenced preaching. He declined taking pastoral charge till 26 years of age, when, being called to Epping, he was ordained there March 3, 1758.

Mr. Stearns was a close student, an exemplary man and a very faithful minister. His parish was the whole town, with the exception of a few Quakers in the west part, who came a few years after he was settled. And the population was large for a town in that period, being 1410 in 1767, and 1569 in 1775. It never has been so great since.

His congregation was large, sometimes filling the seats, gallery stairs and passage ways, and in warm weather some standing outside at the doors and windows. The Congregationalists, Methodist, Episcopalians and Quakers altogether do not now number so many at church as Mr. Stearns had then.

Mr. Stearns commanded great respect. Once he passed some military officers, one of whom was very profane. He instantly ceased. After Mr. S. had gone, one told the officer he was timid. His reply was, "Parson Stearns would awe the devil!"

He was a warm supporter of the cause of the country in the war of the Revolution. He attended a Convention at Exeter early in the struggle, and on returning, told his children if the cause failed, for the stand he had taken, his head would be a button for a halter.

In those days there were some slaves in quite a number of towns. Epping had at one time 9; Mr. Stearns had 1. The war for freedom awakened his attention to the inconsistency of holding men in bondage. Mr. Jefferson gave it as his opinion that the Declaration of Independence would free the country of slavery.

Mr. S. called Peter to him, and told him if he would go into the army he might be free. He concluded to go, but said if he was sure Massa would live as long as he, he would not leave him.

Mr. Stearns died in Epping, July 25, 1788, aged 56. Rev. Sam'l Stearns, (pastor in Bedford, Mass., for many years,) was his son. And that Mr. Stearns had three sons, who became ministers. A grandson of Mr. Stearns of Epping, Rev. Josiah H. Stearns, is now pastor at Epping.

☞ Margaret Walters, the English baby-farmer, having been found guilty of the wilful murder of forty infants, has been sentenced to be hanged.

☞ The Navy Department has issued orders for despatching two parties to Sicily to observe the total eclipse of the sun next December.

SATISFACTORY REASON. — During a dense fog a Mississippi steamer took a landing. A traveller, anxious to go ahead, came to the unperturbed manager of the wheel and asked why the boat had stopped.

"Too much fog; can't see the river."

"But you can see the stars overhead."

"Yes," replied the urbane pilot, "but till the biler bursts we ain't going that way."

Passenger went to bed satisfied.

—Why should we expect vice to be on the increase during the hot season? Because everybody is anxious to get into loose habits.

LUBBERLY SET.—Happening in Boston, the other day, and passing the Common, we found a great crowd of men and boys, including a posse of police, surrounding a loose ox that had somehow strayed in there. Not one of the thousand idlers dared approach him, and after galloping through and among the rabble once or twice, without knocking down one or a dozen of them, as we expected he would, the startled but evidently not vicious steer dashed out of the gate on Charles St., and ran down Boylston Street, followed by the crowd. Being brought to by somewhere, he presently returned and ran up Tremont St., and after a full hour's chase, was caught in Essex Street, and tied behind a wagon.

The valiant police followed all the way, and numerous big negroes, half grown boys, and teamsters, threw stones, clubs, base ball bats and stakes at the poor beast—but not one of all the throng dared walk up and deliver him a knock-down blow, or to catch him by the horn and capture him, as we are sure one or two resolute men could easily have done at any time, when he was so hemmed in by teams. It was reported that several persons were knocked down by the animal before he was secured, and they richly deserved this, at any rate. The only wonder is, that in this ridiculous and cruel chase, the poor beast did not become so maddened as to do fatal damage in his frenzy. It was one of the most pitiable and disgusting spectacles we ever saw, and a great reproach to the Boston police.

—A youth went in a saw-mill in Madison, Wis., the other day, and after looking at the circular saw, thought he would examine more closely its construction imagining in his innocence that it was standing still. He entirely satisfied himself, with the loss of an arm.

—Man is like a potato, never sure when he will get into hot water.

Soreness of the flesh, tenderness of the scalp, are cured by using Renne's Pain-Killing Magic Oil. This is excellent also for sore throat, pain in the joints, and people say "It works like a charm."

Blessed are they who seek relief from "Liver Complaint," "Billiousness," severe lingering Coughs and Bronchitis, by using Dr. Pierce's Alt. Ext. or Golden Medical Discovery, for they shall be happy in knowing that the cure is complete. $1,000 reward is offered by the proprietor for a medicine that will equal it in the cure of all the diseases for which it is recommended. For constipation of the bowels and as a blood purifier, for the cure of Pimples and, Blotches on the face, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, and all skin and Scrofulous diseases, this medicine is unequalled. Sold by druggists.

We would not recommend the frequent or constant use of any medicine. It is important to take even a good article judiciously. Parsons' Purgative Pills are safe, prompt, and reliable as a laxative or cathartic.

Base balls is undoubtedly good exercise and capital amusement, but it often occasions bunged eyes, broken shins and blistered hands. We can tell you that in all such cases if Johnson's Anodyne Liniment is resorted to, it will reduce the swelling and stop the pain.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

A Tainted Atmosphere.

Malarious fevers are most prevalent in the fall. Heavy and unwholesome exhalations then arise from the earth, and the great disparity between the temperature of day and night predisposes the system, enfeebled by the summer heats, to epidemic diseases. The secretive organs, the liver especially, are apt, at this period of the year, to become inert and sluggish, and all the bodily powers require renovation. The best, indeed the only protection against the morbid influences of the season is a wholesome medicated stimulant. Pre-eminent among the restoratives of this class, and indeed foremost among the remedial and preventive medicines of modern times, stands HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS.

Its reputation is co-extensive with the Western Hemisphere; it has been a standard article for twenty years; its sales (as may be ascertained by the revenue returns) are far larger than those of any other proprietary preparation on this continent; and the testimony in its favor embraces letters of approval from the most distinguished members of all the learned processions and from well known residents of almost every city in the Union. These are its credentials. To state what it is doing to prevent and assuage the sufferings of the human family would require more space than can be given to the subject here. The dyspeptic, the bilious, the nervous, the weak and emaciated, the desponding, the broken down, find in its reanimating and regulating properties a sure and immediate means of relief. It is a pure vegetable specific, at once safe and potent, and for which the whole materia medica affords no substitute.

Batchelor's Hair Dye.

This splendid Hair Dye is the best in the world: the only true and perfect Dye; harmless, reliable, instantaneous; no disappointment; no ridiculous tints; remedies the ill effect of bad dyes; invigorates and leaves the Hair soft and beautiful, black or brown. Sold by all Druggist and Perfumers, and properly applied at Batchelor's Wig Factory, No. 16 Bond Street, New York. lydawjc2

1840. PERRY DAVIS' 1870.

Vegetable "Pain Killer,"

After THIRTY YEARS trial, is still receiving the most unqualified testimonials to its virtues, from persons of the highest character and responsibility. Physicians of the first respectability recommend it as a most effectual preparation for the extinction of pain. It is not only the best remedy ever known for Bruises, Cuts, Burns, &c., but for Dysentery or Cholera, or any sort of bowel complaint, it is a remedy unsurpassed for efficiency and rapidity of action. In the great cities of India, and other hot climates, it has become the Standard Medicine for all such complaints, as well as for Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, and other kindred disorders. For Coughs and Colds, Canker, Asthma and Rheumatic difficulties, it has been proved by the most abundant and convincing testimony, to be an invaluable medicine. Sold by all druggists. dawlmsl

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

New Advertisements to-day.

Notice—Samuel Taylor.
Dry Goods—L. Blumauer & Co.
Temple—Florence's Sensation Troupe.

☞ The Marine Band (Harlow's) at this Naval Station is to be discharged by order of the department, Sept. 30th. The Band has made good music, and its members have won many friends by their gentlemanly bearing; and the opposition of the Chronicle (the only paper in this vicinity to oppose the expenditure for the Band,) has been solely on public grounds.

☞ The New Hampshire Gazette completed its 114th year with the last number, and commences volume 115 the present week. The little wooden building wherein it was first printed by Daniel Fowle, is still standing and in good preservation, on Pleasant Street. We are very sure that no issues of the paper ever exceeded the last and present in interest and value, and certainly it was never before in so prosperous condition.

☞ In another column will be found the advertisement of Florence's Burlesque and Character Troupe, who are to appear at the Temple next Thursday evening, September 29th. The favorite artist, Miss Jennie Kimball, is among them,—an announcement sufficent of itself to collect a large audience; and she is supported by a good company. The entertainment will include Burlesque, Opera, Songs, Dances, &c.

Communication.

TEMPERANCE STORES.—Messrs. Eds: You say that there are six temperance groceries in this city, and 156 groceries where liquors are sold. Of course, what is in the paper is always true; but I can count at least fifteen grocery stores in Portsmouth which are presumed to be temperance stores. And there have only been about 100 liquor licenses issued the present year, including all places of every kind where liquor or ale is sold. I do not think there are much above fifty grocery stores in the city, where intoxicating drinks are sold. P. P.

☞ The body of Admiral Farragut will probably be removed from the tomb to the U. S. S. Brooklyn, this morning at 10 o'clock, and the vessel will speedily sail for New York.

The Catafalque, which is to be placed on board the Brooklyn, has been constructed at this Navy Yard, under direction of Mr. E. Washington Brown, who is to go round to New York in the steamer, to set up the structure on entering that harbor—on which the body will be in state. The catafalque will not be removed from the vessel, being for the naval use only.

Mr. Roethe of Boston, had charge of draping the catafalque, assisted by Mr. Brown,—who also had the body of Admiral Farragut in charge, in preparation for the first funeral. The catafalque is an imposing structure, 12 feet long, 7 feet wide, and the spires 18 feet high—richly ornamented with black velvet, silver fringe, &c., and mounting muskets, howitzers, &c.

"PACKET FASHIONS" IN A SMALL CRAFT. — Lawrence Moore, colored, was arrested Saturday morning as a deserter from the sloop "Bull Run," of Bath, Charles Gardner master, and put on board the vessel. In the evening the police learned that the man had been ill-treated during the day, and at once went on board the dug-out to see about it. The unlucky darkey was found handcuffed and jammed into a little den in the sloop, and bearing abundant evidence of having been brutally beaten—much bruised, and what little clothing he had on in rags. The skipper and one Israel (of this city) had been mauling him to their hearts' content, as he couldn't defend himself; at least, that is the man's statement,—and somebody had been pounding him, beyond question.

The man was brought to the Police Station, and the gallant captain was placed in a cell to reflect on the glory he had won—and to get sober. The joke of the thing is, that the darkey does not belong to the Bull Run at all; so the skipper had no more right to take him on board than he has to grab the Police Judge himself. Probably Capt. Gardner rendered himself liable for an illegal arrest and imprisonment, as well as for an assault—had the charges been pressed; but he got off by paying a small fine, Monday. The other cowardly scoundrel has not been arrested, but he should be, quick.

Our maritime laws need overhauling, the worst kind; and they may get it, if mud-scow skippers commence to abuse their sailors in big ship fashion, in port. Rum was probably at the bottom of the whole affair, in this case.

☞ The sale at auction of house on Daniel Street to-day, will be without postponement, it being sold without reserve, to close an estate of a person deceased in an eastern city.

☞ U. S. Steamer Brooklyn arrived in the lower harbor on Monday, and was three hours dodging through the fleet of mackerel catchers, numbering about 1000 vessels. The funeral services of the late Admiral Farragut at New York are to take place on Saturday next, and the Brooklyn is to carry the remains to that place.

☞ There are 30 cases of yellow fever in Mobile, and the disease is reported to be spreading.

BASE BALL. — The Chicago White Stockings have won the championship from the Atlantics. Score 9 to 4.

NAVAL. — United States steamship Bibb, whose loss at sea was recently announced, arrived safely at Hatteras Inlet.

☞ Port Master James O. Trefethen of Kittery, has a company from Biddeford boring a well. If he should be successful it will bring about quite a revolution in the water line over there, nearly every well in his part of the town being dry. It cost only $1.50 per foot, ready to put the Pump in.

THE RAILROAD CASE.—It is well known that Gov. Stearns and ex-Gov. Smyth were appointed receivers of the property of the Concord Road, under an order of Court which decreed that they shall take and hold posession of all property of the road, and transact the business of said corporation, during the pendency of the suit. Judge Doe, in issuing the order, stated that the present decision must not be taken as an indication of the final disposition of the case. At present there is not a majority of the Court ready, upon the evidence now before them, to hold the lease to be valid, neither is there a majority of Judges ready to transfer the road to the Ring. So, pending the decision, which may not be reached for years, a receiver is appointed from each party, with suitable bonds—but, says Judge Doe, "no inference can be drawn from the present result, as to the conclusion which the Court may reach in the end on the general merits of the case. The case is interlocutory, and the order definitely establishing the possession during the pending of the suit might prejudice one party or the other."

Nevertheless, the arrangement must be regarded as a regular half-and-half affair, and a mere compromise among the judges, though perhaps no harm can result from it. Mr. Smyth we regard with far more favor than some of the ring, and the new receivers are said to be working harmoniously together. The Court provided that in case of necessity, an umpire would hereafter be named. At the first meeting of the Receivers, Supt. Kendrick was re-appointed, and subordinate officers were also appointed, and boards of appraisors, consisting of eight different gentlemen, of whom Mayor Weston of Manchester is one.

The Amherst Cabinet says—of the appointment of receivers: "this decision is generally considered a triumph for the new board, as it leaves very little doubt that the contract will be pronounced invalid in December," but we don't see how the editor can know more about it, or guess any nearer, than Judge Doe. We fail to see how the interests of railroad progress, safe banking, fair dealing and good government generally, could be promoted by the success of the Ring.

J. EDGAR THOMPSON, CHARLES L. FROST, } Trustees.

The greater part of the road is already completed, and the earnings from the finished portion are already more than sufficient to pay operating expenses and interest on the bonds. The balance of the work is progressing rapidly, in time for the movement of the coming grain crops, which, it is estimated will double the present income of the road.

The established character of this line, running as it goes through the heart of the most thickly settled and richest portion of the great State of Iowa, together with its present advanced condition and large earnings warrant us in unhesitatingly recommending these bonds to investors, as, in every respect, an undoubted security.

These bonds have 30 years to run, are convertible at the option of the holder into the stock of the company at par, and the payment of the principal is provided for by a sinking fund. The convertibility privilege attached to these bonds cannot fail to cause them at no distant day to command a market price considerably above par, be sides paying about 9 per cent., currency, interest in the meanwhile. U. S. Five-twenties, at present prices only return five per cent.; and we regard the security equally safe.

Kittery in the Olden Time.

BY HON. MARK DENNETT.

HISTORICAL SKETCHES.

The early settlements made on the eastern bank of the Piscataqua River, between the years 1623 and 1647, were known as the Piscataqua Plantations. In 1645 the Court, consisting of the Counsellors appointed by Gorges, laid on the Province a tax of £4, 11s., apportioned as follows:

Piscataqua Plantations	£2, 10s
Gorgeana	1, 00
Saco	0, 11
Casco	0, 10
	£4, 11s

At a Court held Oct. 29, 1647, the Piscataqua Plantations were formed into a town by the name of Kittery. The existing records of Kittery commence as follows:

"At this Town Meeting, 19th of March, 1648, it was ordered that if any one hath a Lot laid out, if he do not improve it within one year, it shall be forfeit and return to the Town to dispose to any other."

The early inhabitants of Kittery seems to have been cautious of their rights and interests:—When they chose their first Representative, James Emery, Sen., Esq., to represent them in the General Court of Massachusetts, May 9, 1653, they chose also a Committee, viz. Elihu Gunnison, William Scriven, Ensign Thomas, Abbot and Christian Remick, to give instructions.

"Also voted at the same meeting, neme contradicting, that the said Town would stand to maintain ye privileges of the River, as to entring and clearing of Vessels according to Pattent—either in behalf of William Pepperell or any other."

This last vote perhaps was passed under the influence of Mr. Pepperell, as he at first performed military services at Newcastle, but soon a Garrison House was erected near his house, and as early as 1700 a Fort was erected and called by his name, and in 1714 Massachusetts made Kittery Point a Port of Entry.

During the Indian Wars the inhabitants of this town suffered considerably from the sly assaults of the Indians, several persons were killed and some taken captive. A family by the name of Hutchings were surprised by several Indians; the husband was shot at the door, and the wife compelled to march away with the Indians. She first pulled the body of her husband into the house and shut the door, and then with her two little boys was obliged to march with the Indians. One of the boys was soon unable to keep up with them, and one of the Indians took him in his arms and ran away with him. After several days his mother met him again, under the care of the kind Indian.

While with the Indians, one of the boys received a present of a pair of Indian wooden shoes, which he wore on his feet; and either accidentally or intentionally, with an Indian hatchet, he split one of them from toe to heel. The Indians expressed their gratification that he did not cut his foot. The other shoe Mrs. Hutchings brought home with her, which has been preserved in the family, and is still in possession of Hon. Gowen Wilson, who is a great-grandson of Mrs. Hutchings.

Ship-building was a large business in Kittery from the early settlement. After Mr. John Bray, the Pepperells did a great business in ship-building; and after them, several others, on a smaller scale of business, built many ships and other smaller vessels, in various parts of the town, until the late war.

On what is known as Badger's Island, the government built a 74 gun ship during the revolution. About 1793 or 1794 the government built a war ship called the "Cresent," which was ceded to the government of Algiers for the redemption of a number of seamen whom they held in servile imprisonment, and put to hard labor. Nathaniel Keen of Kittery was one of them. About 1795 or 1796 government built the frigate Congress. Mr. Hackett was the Constructor.

About 1797 or 1798 government bought the present Navy Yard Island of Wm. Dennett, Jr., and paid $5,500. In 1808 government bought the Island usually called Trefethen's Island, for the enlargement of the Navy Yard, and paid the several inhabitants the sum of $105,000. The two Islands are connected with a bridge. 31 Ships of War have been built on this Island—12 before 1860, 18 during the war, and 1 since.

From the early settlement of Kittery until recently, the people did a large business in the fisheries. A large number of schooners of various sizes, between twenty and one hundred tons, were employed. Crews usually from four to ten men. They were commonly successful. Sometimes otherwise, but seldom were there any wrecked. But on the 9th of October, 1804, fifteen families were put in mourning at once.

The sun rose clear in the morning, but was soon obscured by dark, black clouds floating from northeast; early in the day a northeast wind sprung up. A number of Kittery schooners were fishing off Jaffrey's Ledge, two of them were named "The Dove" and "The Robin." Other vessels set sail for harbor; they, the Dove and Robin, being hailed by passing vessels, replied they would start soon. They were catching the fish, and delayed so long, and the wind rising almost to a hurricane, with rain and snow, that they failed to enter the harbor, were driven by the harbor and on to the beach, and both crews of fifteen men all lost. Superstition ever after excluded the name of a bird from a fishing schooner as unlucky. The next morning, on the land, the ground was covered with snow, fences blown down, and trees and corn prostrated.

When the Piscataqua Plantations were incorporated as Kittery, it included all the settlements on the east bank of the Piscataqua River, which now consist of Kittery, Eliot and the Berwicks. Berwick was incorporated in 1723, and Eliot in 1810. From the date of its incorporation, the town in its corporate capacity exercised ownership over the Commons or unoccupied lands within its limits, and granted them to individuals from time to time, as appears by the record. Sessions of the Judicial Courts were holden at Kittery Point for many years.

RELIGIOUS INSTITUTIONS.

The people set up religious institutions early. Sometime before 1681, Mr. Woodbridge officiated at Kittery Point as Minister. In 1682, Sept. 25, a Baptist Church was organized as a branch of the Boston church, with Wm. Scriven as Elder. They were persecuted by Mr. Woodbridge and Magistrate Hooke, Scriven fined 10£, and forbidden to hold meetings on the Sabbath.

In 1695 Mr. John Newmarch was resident in this town, and in 1814 a Congregational Church was organized and Mr. Newmarch ordained. 1751 Rev. Benjamin Stevens was ordained as Colleague with Mr. Newmarch. 1792 Jonas Hartwell succeeded Dr. Stevens, and was dismissed 1798. Same year Wm. Briggs ordained, and dismissed 1814. In 1820 Rev. Stephen Merrill was ordained, and several years afterwards asked dismission.

In 1750 the Parish, then embracing the whole of the present town of Kittery, was divided, and a new Parish incorporated, and Josiah Chase ordained its minister. 1782, July 3, Rev. Joseph Litchfield was ordained successor to Mr. Chase, he having died.

About 1725 to 1730, an Episcopal Church edifice was erected in the northwest part of the town, in which Rev. John Eveleth officiated, who died August 1, 1734, aged 65.

In the year 1806, a Christian Church was organized in the southwest part of the town.

About the year 1825, the Freewill Baptist Society was organized at the Point.

About the year 1828, a Methodist Society was organized in the north part of the town.

1843, the Second Christian Society was organized at the Navy Yard village.

1868, another Methodist Society was organized at the Navy Yard village.

1870, a Universalist meeting is holden at the village.

EDUCATION.

One public school only was maintained in the town, then including Eliot, until the year 1779, when they voted there should be a Grammar School, and a school for reading and writing. Prior to that time, it was customary for the town to choose the school-masters by vote. For many years Mr. John Parry or Mr. Robert Eliot Gerrish were chosen, and they generally voted £40 for his year's service.

With one school only in a town ten or twelve miles in length, but a small portion of the youth could conveniently attend; but after 1779 the privileges were in some measure improved, and in later years the town voted $500 for District Schools, in addition to the Grammar School. The wages for the District School Teacher was usually about $13 per month.

Very little was taught, even in the Grammar School, beyond reading, writing and arithmetic; and the teachers of the other schools were not competent to teach anything further. The man is yet living, who believes he was the first boy who studied English Grammar in the public Town School. That system of Grammar and District Schools continued until 1821, when the law abolished Latin Grammar Schools, and required every teacher of the public schools to be qualified to teach the English language grammatically. Although between 1800 and 1821 a few scholars attended to English Grammar in the public schools, yet after the change in the law, it was attended to more generally; and for many years past the school in every district has its classes in English Grammar.

The study of Geography was unknown in the public schools until about 1820, when the School Atlas was introduced, and soon afterward it became general.

Physiology has been introduced into some of the schools, but not generally. In 1803 the town was divided into districts, and soon school-houses were built in the several districts, and recently several of the districts have provided convenient wooden-constructed school-houses, and at the Navy Yard village they have a two-story brick edifice.

OVER THE BARS.

'Twas milking time, and the cows came up
From the meadows sweet with clover,
And stood in the lane, while pretty Jane
Had a quiet chat with the drover.
Such a quiet chat that it scarcely seemed
That a single word was spoken;
While a magic spell with the night dew fell,
And the rythm of song was unbroken.

The cattle stood at the lover's side,
Without any show of vexation,
As though impressed that a five-bar rest
Was a part of their rea-toration.
And as Jane listened to the notes that came Right under the bars and over,
Her heart took wing like a silly thing,
And nestled up close to the drover.

She heard him say that his home was poor,
That he'd nothing but love to give her;
And she smiled content, as though love had spent
Every arrow he had in his quiver;
She smiled content, as the evening air
With the voices of birds was ringing;
And her lips confessed that a lowly nest
Should never prevent her singing.

So over the bars the lovers lean,
In the joy of sweet communion;
And their looks declare that poverty ne'er
Shall be a bar to their union.
Oh, sweetest music, go thread your rhymes,
Now under the bars and over!
Where pretty Jane, in the fragrant lane,
Betwitched the heart of the drover.

CUT THIS OUT AND KEEP IT.—Franklin Dyer, a highly respectable and intelligent farmer of Galena, Kent county, Maryland, gives the following as sure cure for the bite of a mad dog. As will be seen, he has tested it with the most gratifying results:

"Elecampane is a plant well known to most persons, and is to be found in many of our gardens. Immediately after being bitten take one and a half ounces of the root of the plant—the green root is perhaps preferable, but the dried will answer, and may be found in our drug stores and was used by me—slice or bruise, put into a pint of water, strain; and when cold drink it — fasting at least six hours afterwards. The next morning, fasting, repeat the dose, using two ounces of the root. On the third morning take another dose, prepared as the last, and this will be sufficient. It is recommended that after each dose nothing be eaten for at least six hours.

I have a son who was bitten by a mad dog eighteen years ago, and four other children in the neighborhood were also bitten; they took the above dose, and are alive and well to this day. And I know a number of others bitten who applied the same remedy. It is supposed that the root contains a principle which, being taken up by the blood in its circulation, counteracts or neutralizes the deadly effects of the virus of hydrophobia. I feel so much confidence in this simple remedy that I am willing you should give my name in connection with this statement."

HOME PRIDE.—There is such a thing as generous emulation for home interests—an honest maintenance and pressing of them in the face of, or against the world. In the family it is a characteristic, and constitutes one of the strongest charms of home. In the country it is glorious, as the dictate of genuine patriotism.

—One of the myths about Mohammed is that a dove from heaven used to whisper revelations to him, which is explained by the fact that the great imposter owned a tame pigeon, and used to make it pick wheat out of his ear, looking, of course, as though it whispered to him.

—A Western editor accuses another of having stolen his report of a meeting, which was recognized by certain ear-marks. The retort courteous is that the first editor "should tie his ears over the top of his head while writing, to keep them out of the ink-bottle.

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS,
FOR ALL PURPOSES of a LAXATIVE MEDICINE,
Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative PILL. The obvious reason is that it is a safer, surer, and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. They show its adaptedness to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.
They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—restore the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.
Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these PILLS rapidly cure:
For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.
For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.
For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.
For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.
For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings, they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.
For Suppression a large dose should be taken, as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.
As a DINNER PILL, take one or two PILLS to promote digestion and relax the stomach.
An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these PILLS makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus. dawje16ed4m

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT?
IF SO, SELECT THE BEST, which is the
AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.
It has proved itself, West, North and South, to be the best Paint known. It will not peel, crack, nor chalk off, and will last twice as long as the best Lead Paints.
It is cheaper, handsomer and more elastic, than the best of other Paints. It is the most convenient Paint made, being mixed, ready for application; it dries rapidly, and retains its shade perfectly, with a beautiful enamel and glossy finish, and for years retains its gloss and beauty. It is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper, making a smooth glossy finish, which can be cleaned with hot suds without injury.
One Gallon of Mixed Lead Paint weighs 20 lbs. and costs $2.72, and will only cover 16 square yds, 2 coats: while one gallon of the Chemical Paint only weighs 10 lbs., and coats but $2.50, and will cover 20 square yds., 2 coats,—thus making a saving of 22 cts., per gallon, besides covering 4 yards more than Lead Paint, and will last twice as long and look far better.
The Chemical Paint is sold by the gallon in quantities to suit purchasers, in 40 different shades and pure white, and will be applied by experienced workmen and satisfaction given in every case; or in case of dissatisfaction in one year after put on, the whole cost of Paint will be refunded.
The sale of these unequalled Paints are daily increasing. Call and examine these ready mixed Paints, both in kegs and ready for Buildings one year ago, before buying elsewhere, and save your money and money, and beautify your dwelling by using the
AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINTS,
which are for sale at the
GROCERY AND PROVISION STORE,
No. 16 and 18 Cabot Street,

AYER'S
HAIR VIGOR,
For Restoring Gray Hair to its Natural Vitality and Color.
A Dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for Preserving the Hair. Faded or gray Hair is soon restored to its original color, with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use.
Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remains can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of soiling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor, can only benefit but not harm it.
If wanted merely for a HAIR DRESSING, nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white clothes, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

The Daily Chronicle.

Portsmouth, N. H.

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 28, 1870.

WAR NOTES.—The French gunboat Talisman has arrived at Havana with the German brig Apollo as a prize.

The French Committee of Defence, after hearing the terms of peace offered to M. Favre by Count Bismark, unanimously voted not to accept them. Trochu made a brave speech, asserting that he would not advise a nation any more than an individual to commit suicide, but he believed France had men and resources sufficient to make a successful resistance.

There has been no severe fighting around Paris so far as known, although there are various indefinite rumors of skirmishes.

The Prussian armies have been reorganized.

In England and Austria there have been imposing demonstrations by the sympathizers with republicanism in France.

Madrid is excited by a report that Prim and King William of Prussia are conspiring to place a son of the King of Saxony on the Spanish throne.

Bazaine has made another unsuccessful attempt to escape from Metz.

Substantial French successes are reported as having occurred in the vicinity of Paris.

The Strasbourg cathedral is not yet destroyed, and the astronomical clock is still going.

Bazaine claims to hold his position for the Emperor, as he knows nothing of any republic!

☞ At the late annual meeting of the B. & M. Railroad, Mr. Wm. A. Currier of Exeter raised quite a discussion by offering a resolution, the purport of which was to make it the duty of the Directors to include in their annual report a statement of the names of persons or companies to whom sums of money, exceeding $100 in amount, had been paid, giving the total amounts so paid. He thought "the stockholders were entitled to know whence their money was received and to whom it was paid. They wanted to know the salaries paid to their employees, and they had reason, in view of what they saw and heard of the conduct of some of the officers of the road, and of the style in which they lived, to suppose that some of them were in receipt of pretty high salaries."

The President remarked that the statement would require the printing of the names of nearly two thousand persons who are employed by the Corporation. He put the question, however, and the resolution was adopted by a hand vote; but was afterwards reconsidered, and after a good deal of discussion, was tabled and defeated by a stock vote. Mr. Judd, the Secretary, stated that the details formerly published had put the Corporation to a disadvantage, as these authenticated figures had in several instances been used against the Corporation in suits at law. The resolution was taken up at a later hour, but without much discussion it was again tabled.

During the debate there was a growl of dissatisfaction uttered on account of free passes given certain persons, when stockholders had to pay their fares. It was replied to in the statement, that in consequence of the failure of the officers to grant a pass to a certain person, he had during the year turned $5000 in freight money from the treasury of the Boston & Maine to that of the Eastern Road. It was policy to grant passes in certain instances.

☞ The examination before the United States judges in Raleigh in the matter of the persons arrested during the late troubles, has resulted in holding forty-nine for trial, in two of the three counties where inquiries were made. Four of these were charged with murder, one with burning a schoolhouse, and most of the others with whipping citizens, in most cases negroes. The evidence thus far taken in these cases is now in print, and has reached Washington. Unless it is impeached by subsequent witnesses, it certainly establishes that quite as bad a state of affairs existed as was claimed by Governor Holden.

☞ Deacon Wm. R. Lovejoy, one of the oldest clothing dealers of Boston, and a wealthy and respected citizen, died on Monday in Chicago, where he was visiting his daughter.

☞ Five or six cars of the night freight train north, were off the track at West Andover Tuesday evening, blocking the road and delaying trains.

☞ Robert Cooper Grier, ex-judge of the Supreme Court of the United States, died in Philadelphia, Monday, aged 77 years.

New Publications Received.

The Choice of Paris; a Romance of the Troad. By S. G. W. Benjamin, author of the Turk and the Greek. Hurd & Houghton; Riverside Press. For sale by J. H. Foster. Price $1.25:

This is not a tale of the French city which now so deeply interests us,—though that is more romantic and tragic than any fiction—but a romance of the classic lovers, Paris and Helen; and is written in a very attractive style, and beautifully printed.

First Steps in English Literature. By Arthur Gilman, A. M. Hurd & Houghton. Price $1. For sale by J. H. Foster.

This is a delightful little book, giving a history of the rise and progress of English literature; and having as its motto, "The love of letters is friendly to sober manners and virtuous conduct, which in every profession is the road to success and to respect." It is a sort of Encyclopedia in brief, of English writers, and writings of note, and will be of interest to all who have any pretensions to or regard for English literature.

The Atlantic Monthly for October has more of Bayard Taylor's and Mrs. Stowe's Stories, a Poem (which we have already published) by Mrs. Thaxter, an article on English Workingmen by Justin McCarthy, another by Senator Henry Wilson on Judge Black and Secretary Stanton, (the Judge having been trying to black the memory of the immortal patriot Stanton,) Recollections of Dickens by his Secretary, The New Am. Polar Expedition, &c.

The American Odd Fellow for Sept. has eighty pages of choice reading matter. In its list of contents we notice. Danger from Tobacco; but who cares for that? Brain and Muscle, &c. $1.25 per volume, $2.50 per year. Address A. O. F. Association, P. O. Box, No. 4217, New York.

The Phrenological Journal for October contains twenty leading articles, with numerous illustrations, on Scientific, Social and Literary Subjects, and a large amount of rich miscellaneous matter, poetry, personal incidents, etc. Those worthy of special mention are Admiral Farragut; the leading generals in the European war; What can I do best? "Liberal Christians," as viewed by a Congregationalist; Franco-Prussian war. $3 a year, 30 cents per number. New subscribers for 1871, will receive the Oct., Nov. and Dec. numbers of this year free! Address Samuel R. Wells, 389 Broadway, New York.

The Little Corporal, Chicago; The Nursery, Boston; and The Children's Hour, Philadelphia — three excellent monthlies, all for the very little folks, Oct. number.

The Lady's Friend for October announces that new subscribers for 1871, shall receive the Nov. and Dec. numbers gratis. $2.50 a year (which also includes a large steel engraving). Four copies, $6. Published by Deacon & Peterson, Philadelphia. Sample copies sent gratis.

☞ The Massachusetts Editors with ladies, to the number of a hundred, visited the Waltham Watch Factory on Thursday, by invitation of the Agent, Mr. Royal Robbins; and were most handsomely received. After looking all through the wonderful mechanism of that grand and most complete establishment, a collation was served on the premises by the famous caterer, J. B. Smith. A most pleasant and attractive feature, was the scrupulous neatness and cheerfulness of the extensive premises—the rooms being furnished with pictures, flowering plants, &c.

S. N. Stockwell, the President of the Association, expressed the deep obligations the Association were under to Mr. Robbins and his associate directors, and referred to some of the wonders seen in the building. He said he had great faith in Mr. Robbins as a man of the strictest veracity, but he admitted it was put somewhat to a test when that gentlemen showed him screws of which it took 80,000 to weigh a pound, an instrument which would measure one-twenty-fifth of one-hundred of an inch, and a lady whose eye would divide that twenty-fifth of one-hundredth of an inch in four parts. These were but a few of the wonders they had seen, and which were truly marvelous.

Mr. B. F. Guild was loudly called on, and responded in a humorous speech, and concluded his remarks by referring to the happy time spent in the building. At the call of Mr. Stockwell, three hearty cheers were given for Mr. Robbins and the company; the carriages were then taken for the depot, and after another twenty minutes' ride the party was again landed in Boston.

☞ The census of Illinois is completed. The population for 1870 is 2,567,032; in 1860 it was 1,711,958.

Correspondence of the Chronicle and Gazette.

YORK, Sept. 26.

Messrs. Editors: As the schooner Alhambra was being towed out of York harbor, this morning, by her crew, her master, Capt. George C. Bridges, being alone on board, (with the exception of a small boy), he fell senseless to the deck, while steering. The little fellow hailed the crew, saying "the Captain is in a fit," and they immediately pulled on board, only to see their beloved Captain draw his last breath. Captain B. was about 26 years of age, unmarried, but leaves a widowed mother who depended upon him for her chief support. He was a capable and efficient seaman, smart and enterprising, and by his kind disposition had gained the respect and esteem of the community. As we took each other by the hand and exchanged a cordial greeting, Saturday evening, (the first for some months) we little thought it would be the last. P.

☞ The Rockingham Fair at Kingston, on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of last week, passed off very well; and is reported a pecuniary success, at any rate. We visited the grounds on Saturday, and were most courteously received by the officers—but are obliged by a great press of business (and pleasure,) to postpone our report till to-morrow. Nellie Locke, Lady Emma, Wild Eddie, St. Lawrence Maid, and perhaps other Portsmouth horses, won races; and Fearnaught Prince of Strathham Hill won both the Stallion race and the Stallion first premium, over 5 competitors. The track being short of a half mile, no time was taken.

Correspondence of Chronicle and Gazette.

KITTERY, ME., Sept. 27th.

As the historical sketch from the pen of our venerable fellow-townsman Hon. Mark Dennett, in yesterday's Chronicle, will be read with interest by hundreds at home and abroad, I desire to offer a brief correction of that portion relating to religious matters in this ancient town. So far as the Universalist meetings referred to are concerned, I would say that the "First Universalist Society of Kittery" was duly organized May 23d, and commenced holding services under the pastorship of Rev. G. W. Bicknell of Portsmouth, June 5th, 1870.

☞ We spent a day most delightfully, last week, sailing down Boston harbor. Taking steamer Rose Standish at Boston in the morning, after a charming trip of twenty miles to Cohasset, a friend met us at the wharf, and a drive of two or three miles amid wild and rocky scenery, brought us to his summer residence on the rock-bound ocean shore. A sharp appetite, indulged with a nice dinner, and an equally agreeable return at sunset by the same route, left us another exceedingly pleasant occasion to remember. Cohasset is one of the wildest and most inviting summer places we ever visited.

☞ We had no idea that three-masted schooners were so common. During a few hours' sail in Boston harbor, recently, we saw three, and a friend who spends the summer there, said he had counted half-a-dozen pass, sometimes, in a day. We suppose they are mostly colliers.

☞ A French frigate and two corvettes arrived at New London, Conn., Sunday night, and exchanged salutes with Fort Trumbull, Monday.

☞ The White Stocking base ball club have beaten the Athletics, 12 to 11.

☞ Five persons were bitten by a mad dog in Chicago, Sunday.

☞ Gen. Grant was in Boston on Tuesday.

☞ Gold, Monday, 113 1-4.

WE ALL CONSIDER IRON the embodiment of strength and power, but how few are aware that it is this element in the system, that gives us strength and vigor, and that an insufficiency of it causes weakness and debility. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., is the only man now living that can make the Genuine and original Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, and his private Government Revenue Stamp, bearing upon it his portrait, name and address, is upon every package of the genuine.

AN ENEMY IN YOUR MOUTH.—Do not put an enemy in your mouth, to steal away your teeth. Beware of destructive tooth washes, and tooth powders, many of which are base imitations of SOZODONT. Insure a life lease of sound teeth and fragrant breath, by adopting the fragrant SOZODONT.

"SPALDING'S GLUE," handy about the house, mends everything.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

A Tainted Atmosphere.

Malarious fevers are most prevalent in the fall. Heavy and unwholesome exhalations then arise from the earth, and the great disparity between the temperature of day and night predispose the system, enfeebled by the summer heats, to epidemic diseases. The secretive organs, the liver especially, are apt, at this period of the year, to become inert and sluggish, and all the bodily powers require renovation. The best, indeed the only protection against the morbid influences of the season is a wholesome medicated stimulant. Pre-eminent among the restoratives of this class, and indeed foremost among the remedial and preventive medicines of modern times, stands HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS.

Its reputation is co-extensive with the Western Hemisphere; it has been a standard article for twenty years; its sales (as may be ascertained by the revenue returns) are far larger than those of any other proprietary preparation on this continent; and the testimony in its favor embraces letters of approval from the most distinguished members of all the learned professions and from well known residents of almost every city in the Union. These are its credentials. To state what it is doing to prevent and assuage the sufferings of the human family would require more space than can be given to the subject here. The dyspeptic, the bilious, the nervous, the weak and emaciated, the desponding, the broken down, find in its renovating and regulating properties a sure and immediate means of relief. It is a pure vegetable specific, at once safe and potent, and for which the whole materia medica affords no substitute.

It is not only the best remedy ever known for Bruises, Cuts, Burns, &c., but for Dysentery or Cholera-morbus, or any sort of bowel complaint, it is a remedy unsurpassed for efficiency and rapidity of action. In the great cities of India, and other hot climates, it has become the Standard Medicine for all such complaints, as well as for Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, and other kindred disorders. For Coughs and Colds, Canker, Asthma and Rheumatic difficulties, it has been proved by the most abundant and convincing testimony, to be an invaluable medicine. Sold by all druggists. dawlmsl

FARRAGUT.—The body of the old Admiral was taken from the Marsh tomb at St. John's Church in this city on Tuesday afternoon, by the U. S. Naval officers at this station, and others, and conveyed on board the U. S. S. Guerriere, to proceed to New York for burial—where one of the grandest funeral pageants the country ever saw, will be observed on Friday. It is said that 20,000 soldiers, and probably at least 60,000 persons will join in the procession. It was ordered by the Navy Department that the U. S. S. Brooklyn should receive the body at this Station and convey it to New York, with the Guerriere for escort; but the Brooklyn being still engaged in coaling, Tuesday morning, Com. Pennock substituted the Guerriere, leaving the Brooklyn to act as escort. The latter vessel passed down through the Narrows at 9 o'clock Tuesday evening, and the two ships shortly proceeded on their way.

It had been the design of the family of the deceased here, to proceed in the cars to New York, with the body, and lay him to rest in the most quiet manner; but the City authorities and other prominent parties in the great metropolis learning the fact, somehow, insisted so strongly upon doing him public honor, that the family at last consented. Ald. Lawrence Jerome of New York, with others, were appointed a committee, and visited Portsmouth and Portland several weeks since, to negotiate arrangements.

Com. Pennock shew every possible honor to the occasion. All Naval officers at the Station were in attendance, in full uniform; with 100 Marines as escort, and Harlow's Marine Band discoursing fine music. The steamer Speedwell brought over the officers and men from the Yard, and a procession was formed under Maj. Lewis and Lieut. Webster, and marched to the Church. Here Com. Pennock, Lieut. Farragut, son of deceased, and Maj. Montgomery, his private secretary, as mourners; and Ald. Jerome of New York, Maj. Gen. C. K. Graham, Adm. Bailey, and Paymaster J. S. Cunningham, of the Naval Loyal Legion, as Committee from New York; with all the officers of the Station, and a detachment of sailors from the Brooklyn as body bearers, and the escort of Marines, received the body—the band saluting as it was received in line.

Mayor Adams and Ald. Nowell and Miller represented this City Government, by invitation of Com. Pennock, in the escort to the Guerriere; but were unable to proceed to New York, as desired.

The old Admiral's flag, a square of blue, with four white stars equidistant from centre and edges, and the national flag, were carried trailing in the rear of the body. (The present flag of an Admiral, is red and white stripes, but Farragut was allowed to retain his, which had become so dear to him.)

On starting, an Admiral's salute of 17 (minute) guns was fired from the Vandalia, and answered with the same from the battery at the Yard, while the procession was marching to and embarking on board the Speedwell; and when on board, the Admiral's flag was run up half mast at the main, while the national pennant occupied the same position at the fore.

The Guerriere lay well down the harbor, and on the Speedwell nearing her with the precious burden, the Guerriere's yards were manned by all hands; and the body being received on board that vessel, a salute of 17 guns was given, after which the Speedwell returned to this city.

Lieut. Farragut, Com. Pennock, and Maj. Montgomery accompanied, to take part in the funeral. The Marine Band also went round in the ship, for the same purpose. The widow has been in New York for several weeks.

The catafalque was of course placed on board the Guerriere, and will be set up on entering New York harbor.

A great Naval and other steam fleet is to meet the vessels from here, at Sandy Hook, twenty miles down New York harbor, to escort them to the city; and the display at the hero's burial will be as grand if not as terrible, as any scene of his eventful life. It is expected that the vessels with the body will arrive there on Thursday night, and proceed to the city Friday morning.

Well done, New York—it were glorious indeed to honor such a man, whose like we ne'er may look upon again. Kind friend, brave soldier, true patriot, devout christian—hail and farewell!

—A friend at a pinch—one who shares his snuff-box with you.

THE OLDEST NEWSPAPER IN AMERICA.—Our allusion to the Portsmouth (N. H.) Gazette, in the April issue, as "the oldest newspaper in America," has been disputed by the editor of the Williamsburgh (Va.) Gazette, who claims the title for that paper, on the ground that its publication was commenced in 1736, twenty years before the advent of its New England namesake. We accept the correction, and apologize for our unintentional mistake. The claim of the Portsmouth Gazette is based on the fact that it is "the oldest newspaper in America," that has been published uninterruptedly from its commencement to the present day. Regarding the date of commencement only, the Williamsburgh journal is of course entitled to any honor that may pertain to that circumstance. Want of space alone prevents our giving publication to the interesting statistics furnished by the editor of the latter paper.—N. Y. Typographic Messenger.

Well, we all are right; and nobody ever said that our Gazette was the first paper started in the country, but only that it is the oldest now living. The Williamsburgh paper (all were Gazettes in the early days) has been several times suspended, sometimes for half a dozen years together; so that we cannot haul down our flag of the oldest to it.

☞ Sedley Lowd, a young man and a native of this city, hired a team of Fogg & James at Manchester, to go to Londonderry, but went to Lowell instead, traded the buggy for a wagon, receiving $20 as "boot," and subsequently put up the team at a stable. The initials on the mat (F. & J.,) led to suspicion, Fogg & James were telegraphed to and answered "arrest," and young Lowd was caught at the depot as he was taking the evening train for Boston. He was subsequently identified by one of the firm from whom he hired the team. Lowd has distinguished himself in this line before, and has been caught more than once; but he does not seem to have learned much from experience.

☞ The Lebanon Free Press says, "The Portsmouth Chronicle attacks the record of Congressman Ela, of the first district, on the ground that he does not do enough to retain work in the Navy Yard and to keep the soldiers in Fort Constitution." This is a mistake—the article referred to was a communication, and stated so plainly.

—The Portsmouth Chronicle has been publishing some historical articles about old York,—a highly reprehensible proceeding, as the Maine Historical Society has the exclusive right to all information on this subject, and when its members die, knowledge will die with them.—Portland Advertiser.

This may be so, but by the shades of Popham, we mean to have a pop at 'em occasionally.

☞ The Centennary of Universalism was celebrated by an immense gathering at Gloucester, Mass., last week—the location of the first church of the denomination. One of the tents pitched there for the week, was labelled Portsmouth, N. H. Our condensed report is crowded out for a day or two more.

☞ Rev. C. M. Dinsmore's discourse to young men, on Sabbath afternoon in the Methodist Church, on "Manhood" is, by request, to be repeated at his earliest convenience.

☞ The House corner of Daniel and Bow Streets was sold at auction by William H. Hackett, on Tuesday, to Miss M. R. Hodgdon, for $1855.

☞ Jennie Kimball and Florence's Variety Troupe, at the Temple to-morrow evening. A good time is promised.

Kittery in the Olden Time.

BY HON. MARK DENNETT.

TEMPERANCE.

The inhabitants of Kittery were formerly in the habit of using spirituous liquors very generally. Anciently West India Rum was most in use. Ship builders furnished all their employees with a half pint of Rum gratis every day. Rum constituted a part of the fitting out of every fishing schooner and other vessel, and nearly every family treated visitors with some kind of spirituous liquors. Not only was it considered necessary at weddings and other convivial gatherings, but even at funerals the wine cup was passed around.

But about the year 1830 the Temperance Reform found its way into this town; but met with little success until about 1833, when the pledge began to be popular. There were about this time about twenty grog shops in town, including stores where it was sold. Two of the Selectmen refused to sign any license this year. Those who wished to sell and those who wished to drink, were enraged, and in 1834 carried the election of town officers. The friends of temperance continued their exertions, and obtained some six hundred names to the pledge, who, with those that sympathized with them, carried the election in 1835, and no more license was ever given to sell Rum.

GEOGRAPHICAL.

The branch of the Piscataqua river called "Spruce Creek," runs up through the centre of the town, to a point within a mile of the north line of the town. It is crossed by three bridges.

The Navy Yard Island is connected with the main land by a good bridge.

Gerrish Island and Cutts Island are situated between the main land and the Ocean, and each connected with the main land by a bridge.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Commissioners sent from Massachusetts to receive the submission of Maine held a court at the house of Wm. Everett at Kittery Point, November 15, 1652, and summoned in the inhabitants. A long parley ensued, and continued four days, when forty-one subscribed their subjection to the Massachusetts Government, viz: John Andrews, Philip Babb, Mary Baylie, John Bursley, Humphrey Chadbourne, W. Chadbourne, A. Cundy, D. Davis, J. Diamond, D. Downing, F. Durston, James Emerie, Wm. Everett, A. Emorie, Nichols Frost, Charles Frost, John Green, Hugh Gunnison, John Heard, Reynold Jenkins, Thomas Jones, G. Leader, Nathaniel Lord, Antipas Maxcricke, Robert Mendum, Joseph Mill, H. Mattome, Richard Nason, Wm. Palmer, Daniel Paule, Christian Remick, M. Nichols Shapleigh, Jemima Shores, Thomas Spencer, Thomas Spinney, J. Simonds, B. Thomas, Robert Weighmouth, John White, Gowen Wilson, John Wincoll, Thomas Withers, (of Gov. Godfrey's Council).

PERSONAL HISTORY.

Gorges & Mason having been joint proprietors of New Hampshire and the western part of Maine, the first occupancy under their authority was at Piscataqua, on both sides of the river, and buildings were erected as early as 1623 or 1624. Walter Neal, who had charge of the proprietors' interest, seems to have been the first notable man at Kittery Point, then known as Piscataqua Plantation. The business of those first inhabitants, was the fur trade, fishing and lumbering.

The next conspicuous man in the Piscataqua Plantation is believed to be Capt. Francis Champernoon, who owned and lived a part of his life at what is now known as Cutts' Island, and who was by his daughter, the ancestor of the Cutts family, in Kittery and Saco. Champernoon resided in the place some time prior to 1630, and had some charge of Gorges' interest, and Kittery Point was sometimes called Champernoon; and Gorges appointed him one of the first counsellors of Maine in 1639.

Cotemporary with Champernoon, was Nichols Shapleigh, who attended the court held by the said counsellors in 1640, and who received from Ferdinando Gorges a grant of 500 acres of land, running from Kittery Point into the woods, and who was one of Gov. Godfrey's Council in 1652, and then signed with others the submission of Maine to Massachusetts, and who was one of the Selectmen of Kittery in 1659, and in 1669 was arbitrarily dismissed by the court from the board of selectmen, as a Quaker, because he took part in defending the Quakers when they were persecuted. Although he had a grant of land at Kittery Point, yet he finally settled in that part of the town now Eliot.

Mr. John Bray came from Plymouth, England, about the year 1660, and purchased land at Kittery Point, where the ancient Pepperell mansion house now stands, and was engaged in ship and boat building during a long life. His daughter Margery became the wife of the elder Col. William Pepperell.

Mr. Thomas Wethers was chosen Selectman in 1659, and in other years as late as 1669.

Robert Mendum, believed to be the ancestor to all the Mendum families, was chosen Selectman in 1669, and in following years,—was a man of consideration, but could not write, and made his signature by a character resembling the letter "R," as appears by the town records. Hence the tradition, that the wife of Christopher Adams, who came from England and was a near neighbor to Mr. Mendum, "assisted the Selectmen in assessing their taxes."

Hugh Gunnison, who lived near Kittery Point, was one of them who signed submission to Massachusetts in 1652. He held several important offices.

Christian Remick was chosen Selectman in 1673.—He lived at the northwest corner of Kittery, on the lands now owned by Major Levi Remick and Mr. Washington Remick; also owned a large portion of the present Dennett Farm. Mr. Remick also signed the submission in 1652, and was elected to various town offices.

FERRY.

In 1692 Mr. John Woodman was authorized to keep a Ferry from Kittery to Strawberry Bank, by the Court, and the town voted their approbation of the same. That was the same ferry afterward kept by Alexr. Rice, Esq. Mr. Woodman was the maternal grand-father of Maj. Rice.

THE PEPPERELLS.

About the year 1680, the elder William Pepperell, an Englishman, having resided at the Isles of Shoals some four or five years, removed to Kittery Point, and married Margery, the daughter of Mr. John Bray, and built a portion of the Pepperell house, now standing. He went into business, and extended it largely in the fisheries and foreign trade. He also held military and civil offices; was Lieutenant Colonel of the militia; he also held the office of Justice of Peace from 1690 to 1725. In 1715 he was appointed one of the Justices of the Common Pleas Court, and continued on the Bench many years, although his early education was very limited. His children were two sons, Andrew and William, and six daughters, all of whom were married.

Wm. Pepperell, Jr., born 1696, was clerk of the Court of Common Pleas while yet a minor, and assisted his father in keeping his accounts and other clerical duties, and in due time became partner with his father in trade. In 1716, while yet a minor, young William negociated in his father's name with the representatives of Benjamin Blackman, who had purchased of Gibbons & Boaython a large part of the present town of Saco, extending from the sea several miles along the river. In 1729 William Jr., bought of William Corbain an adjoining tract eastward of the former, both together embracing a large part of the towns of Saco and Scarboro.

As soon as William had passed his minority, he was appointed Justice of the Peace and Captain of a Company of Cavalry, and at the age of thirty was made Colonel in command of all the militia of Maine. In 1726 he was chosen Representative of Kittery in the General Court. In 1727 he was a member of the Council of Massachusetts. He held that office thirty-two years successively—eighteen of which he was President of the Board.

The crowning honor of Pepperell's life was not the appointment to command the expedition against Louisburg, so much as the victory gained by his perseverence and bravery. War was declared between France and England, March, 1744. The Massachusetts troops sailed March 24, 1745. June 17, Pepperell marched into the city at the head of his troops, Governor Duchambou having agreed to a surrender. And for his good conduct in that affair, General Pepperell was made a Baronet by the king of England.

Elihu Gunnison, who married one of the sisters of Sir Wm. Pepperell, was a Judge of the Court of Common Pleas, and held other offices in the town.

Margery Pepperell, daughter of Andrew Pepperell, and grand-daughter of the elder Wm. Pepperell, and niece to Sir Wm. Pepperell, was married to William Wentworth, about 1730, from whom descended the present Wentworth families in Kittery. He held several important town offices.

GOING TO SLEEP.

Two tireless little feet all day have trotted
Across the parlor floors;
Two tiny dimpled hands have slyly plotted
Mischief behind the doors!

Two magic crystal orbs with watch uncasing,
Their glance on all have flung;
Two rose-red lips, their merry chattering, teasing,
In bird-like notes have sung.

Now, o'er those orbs the drowsy lids are closing,
Bidding adieu to light;
And lips, while hands and feet lie still, reposing,
Have whispered their "Good-night."

O blessed hour, when soft-winged sleep, descending,
Brings a desired release [ing,
To toil-worn mortals! all their troubles ending
In sweet oblivious peace.

For He who ever guides the sunlight's setting,
And gently veils the earth,
That deep repose may bring that self-forgetting
Prelude to newer birth—

Will ever guard the tender infant's slumber,
And send his angel bands,
The midnight watch and dawning hours to number
With star-tipped wands. [ber,

COLT-BREAKING.—It is by no means an uncommon practice with persons in the country, who wish to break a horse to harness, "to put him into a strong cart, and then he can't do any harm;" perhaps he may not, but the chance is, that, by this mode of commencing his harness education, he will do no good. This may be breaking; it is not teaching. The horse is not accustomed by nature to propel anything with his shoulders; the act is therefore unusual to him; his natural act would be to recoil from it if he could. Of course, therefore, the heavier the weight he feels against him is, the more disposed he is to recoil from it. A good and well-trained cart-horse will pull twenty times running at an immovable object, for this reason: he has been accustomed to find that by increased exertion he has generally succeeded in moving an object to which he has been attached; he therefore always expects to be able to do this, consequently will try to do so; but the novice in harness, if he feels a great weight behind, will most probably do everything but what, he ought to do—which is, to resolutely set his shoulders to the collar.

The fact is, in this as in all cases with horses, they should never, if possible, be put to do that which it is likely they will refuse to do. It is quite natural a horse should at first refuse to face a collar with five hundred pounds pressing against him; none would refuse to do so with five pounds. The five hundred pounds, therefore, should never be tried till we know he will draw the five pounds, and then increase the draught by degrees. Neglecting to do this is one of the great causes that produce jibbing, which is the almost certain result of injudicious treatment.—Prairie Farmer.

HARVESTING POTATOES. — The drought in many places has so checked the growth of potatoes which were late planted as to render it doubtful if the crop will pay for the harvesting. In some localities it is certain that the crop will not pay, and farmers have already plowed up potato fields for a crop of winter rye or wheat. It is now too late for them to make further growth, and it becomes a question whether the farmer shall dig them, and, small as they are, save them for seed, or turn his hogs in to feed upon them, and go northward and purchase for a home supply.

Potatoes are reported in the north part of the State and in some parts of Vermont at fifty cents, delivered at the cars. If that be the fact in regard to the price, they can be brought here and sold for less than 75 cents. In such a case the farmer had better leave his small-potato field, in which he could not dig more than four or five bushels a day, and those of the size bullet or buckshot size, and buy for his own use. There will be a curiosity to see how every lot and perhaps every row "turns out," and we imagine most fields in this vicinity will feel the scratching of the hoe upon their surface whether a compensating harvest is obtained or not. It is now time to dig, especially the early varieties. We should like to see the farmer in this vicinity who gets a hundred bushels this year.—Mirror.

GROOMING HORSES.—Though suitable and properly prepared food is the prime requisite for the horse, regular grooming holds the second place in the management of him. A man who omits the customary ablutions at stated times, who goes for days or weeks with uncombed hair, may exist, but does not live in the proper sense of the word. So of the horse. Grooming is alike essential to looks, health and elasticity of action. The curry comb and card should be brought into daily requisition, nor should the clipping shears be omitted. Fetlocks bedraggled with mud, unkept and tangled mane, detract much from the appearance of the animal, repress his ambition, and hence diminish his usefulness. A man who neglects the regular grooming of his horse, is an enemy both to the beasts and himself; to them, because he withholds labor which is their due, and to himself, because he depreciates the value of his own property.

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS,
FOR ALL PURPOSES of a LAXATIVE MEDICINE,
Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any medicine so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative PILL. The obvious reason is that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of the remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Among the leading and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.
They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.
Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these PILLS rapidly cure:—
For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.
For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.
For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.
For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.
For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings, they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.
For Suppression a brisk dose should be taken, as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.
As a GENTLE PILL, take one or two PILLS to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.
An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these PILLS makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus. dawje21eod4m

AYER'S
HAIR VIGOR,
For Restoring Gray Hair to its Natural Vitality and Color.
A Dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for Preserving the Hair. Faded or gray Hair is soon restored to its original color, with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use.
Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remains can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor, can only benefit but not harm it.
If wanted merely for a HAIR DRESSING, nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

WAR NOTES.—In the Sunday engagement between the French and Prussians, already reported, the Prussians (10,000) were completely routed, and lost their small arms and artillery, besides two standards and 700 prisoners, among them two colonels of the line and a number of Saxon officers. The four redoubts taken by the French on Sunday are south of Paris.

Over 250,000 Frenchmen have volunteered since the surrender at Sedan.

The Prussian foreign office has advised the German representatives abroad, as well as the diplomatic corps at Berlin, that no government exists at Paris. The government de facto is located at Tours. Hence Paris is left to pure military treatment.

It is said that the envoy sent by Napoleon to Bazaine was allowed to pass the German lines and enter Metz.

The excitement in Germany increases over the arrest of Herr Jacoby, and an imposing protest has been sent to Bismark, denouncing the maintenance of military law, now that the danger of invasion has ceased.

A deputation of workingmen waited on Mr. Gladstone, Monday, and urged him to mediate between Germany and France.

Queen Victoria, yielding to public sentiment, has written a letter of condolence to the Empress of the French.

General Ulrich announces that Strasbourg can hold out but a short time.

The guns of Fort Mt. Valerien have dislodged the Prussians from St. Cloud.

The following is given as the probable programme of M. Thiers at St. Petersburg: Constantinople and the road to India will be guaranteed to Russia; Belgium and Egypt to be guaranteed to France; Alsace, part of Lorraine, and the road to Vienna to be guaranteed to Prussia. That is, England, Turkey, Austria and Belgium are to be the innocent victims of peace.

Strasbourg has at length capitulated after one of the most distressing sieges on record. The sufferings of the people were beyond description, and Ulrich's force had become so weakened by sheer starvation that he at length made a virtue of necessity and capitulated.

Reports thicken that Russia is preparing for war. The army of the South has been mobilized and the late movements toward the Turkish border are ominous.

☞ The port of New York is now effectually blockaded by French cruisers, three additional vessels, the Magicienne, Talisman and Destine, being now outside the Hook waiting for any German vessel that may attempt to get in. Two more French vessels are on their way, so that in a few days no German vessel, it is expected, will be able to run the gauntlet. In regard to French cruisers in the harbor, the Navy Department will give orders to see that neither party is allowed to take any offensive measures toward the other within the three-league limit. As yet, however, neither has shown any disposition to violate the rights which our laws concede to the vessels of foreign powers within our jurisdiction.

☞ They say now that New York city has 907,979 inhabitants.

☞ Attorney-General Akerman is seriously ill in Washington.

☞ Gold, Wednesday, 113 3-4.

DARK STABLES.—Theoretically, dark stables are bad. Almost universally they are denounced by agricultural writers. Yet some horses are kept in dark stables with no perceptable injury. A year or two since in looking through the extensive stables of the different Express Companies doing business in Chicago, we found about one half of the horses kept in cellars, one of which, particularly, we remember as being so dark that we could not satisfactorily see the horses, yet the finest horses were kept in this. The same was true of the stables in which the omnibus horses were kept. Two or three of the managers told us that they preferred such stables, as the horses were not troubled by flies, and were more quiet, less liable to be disturbed, and also because such stables were generally warmer in winter and cooler in summer than others. Most of the horses were worked more or less, each day.—Western Farmer.

WINTER RYE.—We have had but little personal experience in growing winter rye—much less than in other grains. We believe that most growers of rye, especially on new ground, or recently burnt-over lands, prefer to sow in September—not later than the last of September. The seed germinates readily, and a good root hold is obtained before the winter sets in. The result is that the grain withstands the severity of the winter much better, and a heavier crop is realized.—Mirror.

—The root that President Grant likes—cheroot.

New Hampshire Items.

The mills all over the State are largely under the necessity of ceasing operation on account of lack of water. Even the Great Falls Manufacturing Company, which not only have a river to depend on, but eight ponds covering four thousand acres, have been compelled to stop most of their machinery.

In Greenland half a mile square of cedar swamp has been run over by flames originating from a spark. The Eastern Railroad had from twenty-five to seventy-five men at work trenching by day and night.

As Mr. George Main was driving up Pleasant Street, Concord, a collision occurred by which he was thrown from the wagon and dragged some distance. Fortunately, no injuries were received serious enough to require the services of a physician, but he was pretty severely bruised and lamed by the fall.

Eighteen head of cattle in the pasture of Mr. G. W. Sanborn of Gilmanton died for lack of water, week before last.

Capt. W. A. Wainwright of this State, Assistant Quartermaster, U. S. A., has tendered his resignation, which has been accepted by the President.

Col. J. W. Robinson, formerly of Concord, has gone into the insurance business at Claremont.

The New Congregational Church at Farmington cost $30,000.

Dr. Bemis, of Boston, has completed his residence on the old Tom Crawford place, at a cost of $17,000. The house is five miles from any human habitation. It is built of granite, and finished in oak and black birch, has "all the modern improvements," and will be warmed by furnaces and nineteen fireplaces. A fine library is in the isolated dwelling, whose owner is also lord of all of Hart's Location.

The iron pillars for Culver Hall, the new Agricultural College building at Hanover, are being cast in Lebanon, and weigh over a ton each. There are 26 of them.

The annual celebration of the birthday of William Robinson, the founder of the seminary in Exeter that bears his name, was celebrated by the scholars, on the 19th.

The Prisoners' Aid Association met Sept. 23d, in Concord. Rev. Hosea Quimby was chosen a delegate to the National Congress on Reform and Prison Discipline, to be held in Cincinnati, Oct. 11th to 20th. Frederick Symth was also elected a delegate, with a choice of going or not, as he might see fit.

In East Concord, Charles Rowell and some thirty others who were returning from a husking, broke into the house of Mr. Herman Price and notified a man named Smith, visiting Mr. P.'s daughter, that he must leave. He was allowed to dress, and given so much time to quit town, which he did, and has not been seen since. On a charge embodying this, Rowell was arraigned and fined $5 and costs. He appealed and gave bonds. The daughter of Mr. P. appeared and swore she was the lawful wife of Smith.

☞ In the trial of the Lime Rock Bank robbers at Rockland, Me., Tuesday, two of them, Moore and Hight, plead guilty, and the others were placed on trial. Keizer, the principal witness for the government, was one of the two who planned the whole affair of the robbery. One of the gang, Daniels, is very feeble.

☞ C. E. Morrison, the National Express Company's messenger between Troy and Montreal, was arrested in Buffalo, Wednesday, for robbing the company of $9000 in money a few weeks ago. He had gambled away a part of the money, and invested another portion in the Theatre Comique of Buffalo.

☞ The ship Columbus, 2000 tons measurement, the largest and best ship ever built at Kennebunkport, was launched there on Monday. She was built by Capt. Nath'l L. Thompson; has three decks, all the modern improvements and conveniences, and a splendid figure-head of Old Christopher.

☞ At Lafayette, Tenn., Saturday night, M. S. Dover, while attempting to murder his wife, was shot and mortally wounded by her brother, Andrew Kincaid, aged 16 years.

☞ The Madrid discussion shows that the late law for the emancipation of the slaves in the Spanish colonies is utterly nullified in the West Indies.

☞ There is a young man in town who says "'tis working between meals that's killing him." Too much meal-ing kills a good many more.

☞ The downfall of the Empress has carried with it the chignons of Berlin. No ladies wear them now in that city.

☞ The Pope and his cardinals now consider themselves safe in Rome, and appear publicly.

CORN HARVEST.—Many farmers husk most of their corn in the field, and regard it as the easiest and cheapest way of harvesting their crop. A bench, sixteen or eighteen inches in height, is made of a plank or slab six or eight ft. long, by boring holes and putting in four long legs. This is easily moved about the field. Lay the corn across this bench; place the basket at the bottom of the bundle, and sit astride the bench. This arrangement brings everything handy, and a smart man will husk and put into a cart from 25 to 40 bushels in a day, by daylight. It can be unloaded in the evening, which is safer than husking by lantern-light.

When the bundles are husked, set up the fodder as you would shock grain, putting in ten or twenty bundles, and throw the scatterings and three or four bundles on top for a "cap" to keep out the rain. Fodder put up in this way will keep out till snow comes, if you wish it, without injury. It will dry off nicely and not heat and mould in the mow.

You can husk and crib up your corn early, when the weather is warm, leaving your fodder to cure in the field, and when you cart it put it where you wish it to remain. This saves once handling. Pitching heavy stocks of corn on and off a cart is very hard work, the bundles are liable to be torn to pieces in the process, and the fodder, if packed in any considerable quantity, is liable to heat and be very badly damaged.—N. E. Farmer.

SEEDING TO GRASS IN AUTUMN.—As the grass crop is a leading one with us, it is important always to give it careful attention. Lands that are to be devoted to grass next year may be stocked to great advantage early in September. Plow and pulverize until the soil is fine; it will richly repay to do this thoroughly. Do not go over more ground than you can work into good tilth, and manure with great liberality with fine manure. Grass seed is slow to take, even on a tolerably rich soil, but where it will germinate freely, take root at once, and go on to flourish unless choked by weeds or parched by drought. It is more profitable to get a ton and a half of hay on an acre than on an acre and a half. There is less cost of plowing and all after preparation, and less in getting the hay. The top dressing should never be omitted. Herdgrass and red-top are not easily winter-killed, and clover seed may be sown on late snows in the spring. A peck of herdgrass and from three to four pecks of redtop. Six or ten pounds of clover are usually employed in spring sowing.—N. E. Farmer.

GOOD PLUCK.—An exhibition of good pluck was manifested by Kennebec Engine Company No. 1, of Bath, Maine, which had set their hearts on going to the Firemen's Muster, but could not get permission from the authorities to be away, without provision for filling their place at home, it not being their turn to go on a time. They accordingly went to work and raised a volunteer company, procured another machine for temporary use, placed it in their house, got their own machine insured for $1500, and raised $600 to defray the expenses of the trip. We call that pretty good firemen's pluck. We ought to give them "three, and a tiger," when they get here. We'll do it.—Haverhill Publisher.

—A Western farmer noticed that almost all the potato bugs in his garden had disappeared, and a short time after he killed a large, striped snake with his hoe, and found that it was full of the larvæ of the potato bug. It had about cleared out the garden. He says he will kill no more of those snakes.

—Mrs. Partington, hearing of a pedestrian's "great feat," wondered if they troubled him in walking.

—Why is a person of an even temper like Greek fire? Because you can't put him out.

WE ALL CONSIDER IRON the embodiment of strength and power, but how few are aware that it is this element in the system, that gives us strength and vigor, and that an insufficiency of it causes weakness and debility. The Peruvian Syrup, a protoxide of iron, is prepared expressly to supply this vitalizing element.

ROSES FOR WINTER.—Roses designed for winter blooming, out in the borders, must be carefully supplied with water during these hot days. If allowed to wilt, the white working roots are dried up and new ones must be formed before the plant will recover its impaired vigor. Henderson says: "We find that when we dig up a rose plant in November and pot it, we cannot get it to retain its vigor unless it is kept at low temperature, so as to secure an abundance of active roots."

—The Lady of Lyons—The lioness.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

A Tainted Atmosphere.

Malarious fevers are most prevalent in the fall. Heavy and unwholesome exhalations then arise from the earth, and the great disparity between the temperature of day and night predisposes the system, enfeebled by the summer heats, to epidemic diseases. The secretive organs, the liver especially, are apt, at this period of the year, to become inert and sluggish, and all the bodily powers require renovation. The best, indeed the only protection against the morbid influences of the season is a wholesome medicated stimulant. Pre-eminent among the restoratives of this class, and indeed foremost among the remedial and preventive medicines of modern times, stands HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS.

Its reputation is co-extensive with the Western Hemisphere; it has been a standard article for twenty years; its sales (as may be ascertained by the revenue returns) are far larger than those of any other proprietary preparation on this continent; and the testimony in its favor embraces letters of approval from the most distinguished members of all the learned professions and from well known residents of almost every city in the Union. These are its credentials. To state what it is doing to prevent and assuage the sufferings of the human family would require more space than can be given to the subject here. The dyspeptic, the bilious, the nervous, the weak and emaciated, the desponding, the broken down, find in its renovating and regulating properties a sure and immediate means of relief. It is a pure vegetable specific, at once safe and potent, and for which the whole materia medica affords no substitute.

Batchelor's Hair Dye.

This splendid Hair Dye is the best in the world: the only true and perfect Dye; harmless, reliable, instantaneous; no disappointment; no ridiculous tints; remedies the ill effect of bad dyes; invigorates and leaves the Hair soft and beautiful, black or brown. Sold by all Druggist and Perfumers, and properly applied at Batchelor's Wig Factory, No. 16 Bond Street, New York. 1ydawly2

1840. PERRY DAVIS' 1870.

Vegetable "Pain Killer,"

After THIRTY YEARS trial, is still receiving the most unqualified testimonials to its virtues, from persons of the highest character and responsibility. Physicians of the first respectability recommend it as a most effectual preparation for the extinction of pain. It is not only the best remedy ever known for Bruises, Cuts, Burns, &c., but for Dysentery or Cholera, or any sort of bowel complaint, it is a remedy unsurpassed for efficiency and rapidity of action. In the great cities of India, and other hot climates, it has become the Standard Medicine for all such complaints, as well as for Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, and other kindred disorders. For Coughs and Colds, Canker, Asthma and Rheumatic difficulties, it has been proved by the most abundant and convincing testimony, to be an invaluable medicine. Sold by all druggists. dawlm1

Fall Styles—J. E. Ham & Co.
American Tune Book—O. Ditson & Co., Boston.

☞ Some people evidently prefer to steal their garden sauce, rather than raise it. There is general complaint of potato patches, corn fields, &c., being robbed, in the suburbs.

☞ "Is there any connection between a man-of-man and a tug of war?" Yes, there was on Tuesday night, when the tug Clara Bateman towed the U. S. S. Brooklyn down our river. If the Bateman isn't a tug of war, she was the tug on that occasion.

COMING AGAIN.—Dollie Bidwell, so long and deservedly a favorite here, will appear at the Temple Oct. 6, 7 and 8, with Mr. R. S. Meldrum and a corps of twenty-four performers. Dollie Bidwell and Mr. Meldrum are real actors, and their theatrical entertainments are always good. They advertise.

☞ Florence's Variety Troupe, with Miss Jennie Kimball and a good company, will perform at the Temple this (Thursday) evening. Miss Kimball is well and favorably known here, and she is well sustained by the other members of the troupe. They are to appear in farce, burlesque, clog and comic dancing, &c. See advt.

☞ Mr. Woodbury Seavey, of Rye, has shown us a string of eight-rowed corn, which is a marvel for the dry season. It was planted about the middle of May, without manure (excepting seaweed, ploughed in last Fall;) but the ears are very large, and filled up to the tip with bright, plump kernels. It is the best we have seen this year.

GOING.—Mr. B. F. Dame has resigned his position as Principal of the Haven School, having accepted the position of Principal of the Clinton Grammar School at St. Paul, Minnesota. Mr. Dame leaves for the West next week and carries with him the good wishes of the friends, parents and scholars with whom he has for three years been pleasantly connected.

SOLDIERS' REUNION.—There is to be a Reunion of the old 13th Regiment, N. H. Volunteers, at Nashua, Oct. 5 and 6; and all comrades in this vicinity are requested to meet at G. A. R. Hall to-morrow (Friday) evening, at half-past 7 o'clock, to make arrangements for attending. Those who cannot be present Friday evening, can leave their names at the store of M. T. Betton & Co., or with James R. Morrison at the Navy Yard.

☞ Schooner Flora, on a fishing cruise in the Bay, during the fog of the 25th, put into Portsmouth harbor. On Monday morning, about 3 o'clock, just before getting ready for sea, she was run into by an Eastern vessel bound out, and had her bulwarks and fore timbers stove in, windlass unshipped, and other damage done. She was at anchor at the time, and the fault appears to have been with the other vessel, as the captain offered to pay the damages as soon as they could be assessed. No fish had been taken before the accident occurred.

☞ The four Editorial Associations of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and Massachusetts, have appointed committees to arrange for a joint meeting of the New England press next year—and we think the project will be carried out. The grand meeting at Rye Beach this year, was first proposed by the editor of this Chronicle; and this year we suggested Newport for the next great occasion, and the proposition meets much favor. We only hope the fraternity may find hosts as hospitable, liberal and appreciative as Job Jenness & Son.

COLLISION. — Schooner Onward of Cherryfield, Capt. Bunker, while anchored off Whale's Back Light, was run into about 10 o'clock, Wednesday night, by the U. S. S. Brooklyn, and had her jib-boom, foremast head and maintopmast carried away, her sails torn and masts sprung, her large anchor broken and her running rigging much injured. Had the anchor not broken, the steamer would have run over the schooner and sunk her at once. Capt. Bunker regards the escape as remarkable, as his vessel is deep loaded with coal. She was brought to the wharf on Thursday morning.

The responsibility for the accident would seem to lay with the U. S. vessel; and on the captain of the schooner applying to Capt. Fairfax, Executive Officer of the Navy Yard, on Wednesday, that gentleman at once agreed that the schooner shall be repaired at the Yard.

—A yawn in company generally indicates a gap in the conversation.

A CASE OF FORGERY.—One day last week, a check for about $50 from the U. S. pension office at Portsmouth in favor of Mrs. Abbott of Londonderry, was received at the post office in that town. It is stated that Harvey Emery (or Stevens) took the check from the office, and asked the postmaster if it was necessary that Mrs. Abbott should endorse it in order to draw the money. The next day Stevens drew the money for the check from the Manchester bank in this city. The endorsement is pronounced a forgery, and Mrs. Willey, a daughter of Mrs. Abbott, came up to this city to see about the matter. While here she met Stevens, who is some relation to her, and rode home with him to Londonderry. She asked Emery to go with her to the post office and explain his conduct. After going a short distance the wagon was upset, and Mrs. Willey was much injured about the head and other parts of body. It is believed that Emery purposely drove so as to overturn the wagon. Since then he has absconded. Stevens formerly resided in this city.—Manchester Union.

The check was for $48, and was drawn on the First National Bank in this city, or payable at the Second National Bank in Boston. Harvey A. Emery's name appears on the papers of the woman as witness; and she makes her mark, instead of signing her name, as she cannot write. The very next day after the check was sent to her, Judge Cross of Manchester telegraphed to the Pension Agent here, that it had been taken from the Post office and stolen; and the Agent at once telegraphed to the Second National Bank in Boston to stop its payment. But it had already been cashed in Manchester and soon turned up at the Bank of Commerce in Boston, and on being refused payment at the 2d National, as forged, the Bank of Commerce went to the expense of protesting and notifying the Pension Agent here that he would be held for all costs when of course all the loss will fall on the Bank in Manchester,—which it would seem was not sufficiently cautious in the payment of the check.

☞ A great Fireman's Muster is to be held at Haverhill, Mass., on Friday, Sept. 30th. Sixty Fire Companies are expected to be in line, with 15 Steamers, 30 Hand Engines, and 7 Hook and Ladder and Hose Companies; 27 martial Bands, and 7 Drum Corps. From Portsmouth, Sagamore No. 2, steamer, Wm. B. Randall Foreman, with 40 men, and the Portsmouth Cornet Band, Tubs from all the cities in this region will be there, and a grand time is expected. We hope all will pass off well, and that the firemen will enjoy it.

☞ Messrs. J. H. Grant and B. F. Mugridge, dealers in meat and provisions at the Brick Market, have formed a co-partnership under the firm name of Grant & Mugridge.

☞ Blasting operations are still carried on upon Gangway Rock, Newburyport harbor. Common powder is used, as it is found to be better than dualin.

☞ A man named Varney stole a horse in Eliot from Rev. Mr. Cozzens, and was arrested at Barrington while trying to sell the same.

☞ A boy named Philbrook was kicked in the face by a horse, in Eliot, disfiguring him for life.

☞ Ex-Governor W. P. Packer of Pennsylvania died Wednesday, aged 64 years.

Morning Chronicle.

Concluded from yesterday.

Written and Compiled for the Chron. and Gaz.

Kittery in the Olden Time.

BY HON. MARK DENNETT.

INCIDENTAL MEMORANDA.

Among the first eighty colonists sent by Mason and Gorges to Piscataqua, was Doct. Renald Fernald, as surgeon, in the year 1631. Tradition has taught us that his residence was on Trefethen's Island, now connected with the Navy Yard, and that might have been his first residence, and central among the first settlements; but in 1653 his name was appended to a petition to the Mass. Government, that Strabery Bank might be incorporated at Portsmouth.

Simon Frost was Rep. in 1759. He lived in that part now Eliot.

John Dennett, born 1708, was chosen Selectman March 11, 1748, and was also chosen to the same office every year (except 1757, '58) until 1769, inclusive. He was also chosen during that period to other town offices, such as moderator, town agent, &c. Also, as per extract from records:

"May 21, 1750, M., John Dennett chosen Representative to serve this town at the great and general Court or assembly, appointed to be held and kept for his Majesty's service, at the court house in Boston, on Wednesday the 30th day of May instant."

Also chosen in like manner, 1751. He was a farmer and died Oct. 25,1797.

"At a general Town Meeting held at Kittery, June ye 24th, 1763, there were chosen for Selectmen, Capt. John Wincol, Lieut. Roger Playsted, Mr. Francis Hook, Mr. Nathaniel Fryer, Robert Mendum, Christian Remick, Charles Frost."

Francis Hook, Robert Mendum and Christian Remick lived in the present town of Kittery; Nath'l Fryer and Chas. Frost lived in that part now Eliot; and John Wincoll and Roger Playsted in Berwick. Mr. Wincol was a surveyor of land, owned mills and carried on lumbering—was also Recorder. Francis Hook signed his name in 1694, officially, "of the Council and Justice Peace."

About the same time Mr. William Godsoe was a practising surveyor of land.

1696, Oct. 23d, Mr. William Scrivens was chosen Deputy or Representative.

Richard Cutts, a descendant from M. Champernoon, was Representative in 1752. He also held other town offices.

Nath'l Sparhawk, son-in-law to Sir Wm. Pepperell, was Representative in 1753, '54, '55, '57, '59, '60 and '67. During the Revolutionary War he preferred to live under the British government.

James Gowen, who lived in that part now Eliot, was Rep. in 1756, '61, '62, '63, '65, '66, '68, '69 and '70,—also other offices.

Edward Cutts, was Rep. in 1771, '72, '73, '74, '75, '78 and '79. Also afterward a member of the Council, and a member of Provincial Congress, which met at Watertown, also afterward Judge of the Court of Common Pleas, and many years a Judge of Probate.

John Frost was Rep. 1777, '78, '79, '80 and '81; other important town offices; also Brig. General in the Militia, and Senator. Daniel Emery was Rep. in 1758. The two last lived in that part now Eliot.

Benjamin Parker was Rep. in 1764. Charles Chauncy was Rep. in 1774 and 1782.

John Heard Bartlett was Rep. in 1783. He held other town offices, and was from time to time the Town Grammar Schoolmaster; he lived in that part which is now Eliot.

Joshua Hubbard was Rep. in 1784, '85, '86; and sustained other offices. He lived in territory now Eliot.

Mark Adams was Rep. from 1787 to 1813 inclusive, excepting 1799 and 1800, also Selectman for many years.

Andrew P. Fernald was Rep. in 1799 and 1800. He was also a member of the Council. He was many years Town Clerk, and in other town offices. He was also Brig. General of the Militia. He lived in that part now Eliot.

Alexander Rice was chosen Selectman in 1796, and continued in that office until 1815, inclusive, also was Rep. and afterward several years Senator. He was also a member of the Council, and in 1821 was a member of the Senate of Maine. He was also a member of the Court of Sessions, and a Major of Cavalry, and exercised other offices. He was the most influential men in town in his day.

Wm. T. Gerrish was chosen Selectman in 1798, and continued in that office until 1813 or 1814. He was Rep. in 1806, '07, '08, '09, '10, '11, '12.

John Rogers was Town Clerk from 1801 to 1828. His record was made in a better style of penmanship than any other in 222 years. He declined being a candidate for any other offices. He was a farmer.

Joshua T. Chase was Rep. from 1813 until the separation of Maine from Mass., and also in the Maine Legislature from 1822 to 1828 inclusive, also one of the Selectmen for many years. Mr. Chase being one of the Selectmen, presided at the election. On counting the votes it appeared that an equal number of votes were given for him and Dennett, when he took his pen and wrote a vote for Dennett, and laid it on his pile, and thus decided the election for Dennett. All which was unknown to Dennett until long afterward.

John Wentworth, a descendant from Wm. Wentworth, was Rep. in 1829. An early decease prevented him from distinguishing himself, as he was likely to do. He was chosen Selectman while very young, and held that office several years, with some others; and after his decease

Charles G. Bellamy was chosen Rep., and after two or three years service in the House, he was chosen Senator for County of York. He also held other town offices. With two or three exceptions, all the aforementioned held the office of Justice of the Peace.

About that time the "rotation principle" was adopted, and the people have given their Representatives but one re-election. And the following gentlemen have served two years each, viz: Daniel Frisbee, Daniel Jones, Richard Rogers, John Haley, Ephraim C. Spinney, Levi Remick, John Rogers, Joseph Parker; Henry Remick one year (1870,) Edwin A. Duncan.

Hon. Gowen Wilson was several years a member of the Governor's Council, commencing in 1840. He was elected to important town offices, and was a Colonel in the Militia, and Justice of the Peace.

Doct. Daniel Peirce was a practising physician in this town as early as 1763, and lived here until 1802. He was also Justice of the Peace. He built the mansion near the upper Spruce Creek bridge, afterwards occupied by his son Daniel Peirce, during many years postmaster; and after him occupied by his son Daniel Peirce, and grand-son of the doctor, who was several years Selectman, Representative, Justice of the Peace, one of the County Commissioners and Naval Store Keeper at the Navy Yard.

MEN WITHOUT HEARTS.—We sometimes meet with men who seem to think any indulgence in an affectionate feeling is weakness. They will return from a journey, and greet their families with a distant dignity, and move among their children with the cold and lofty splendor of an iceburg surrounded by its broken fragments. There is hardly a more unnatural sight on earth than one of these famlies without a heart. A father bad better extinguish a boy's eyes than take away his heart. Who that has experienced the joys of friendship, and values sympathy and affection, would not rather lose all that is beautiful in nature's scenery, than be robbed of the hidden treasures of his heart? Cherish, then, your heart's best affections. Indulge in the warm and gushing emotions of filial, paternal and fraternal love.—Miss Mulock.

PROTECTING TREES FROM MICE.—The use of the tarred paper (or "felt") employed in laying under the slate of roofs, is said to answer an excellent purpose for protecting trees against the injuries of field mice. This paper, it is well known, may be bad of any slaters, is quite cheap, and being passed twice around the tree, protects it perfectly. A foot above the ground is sufficient. It will last years, if properly taken care of while not in use. Sheet iron and sheet tin have been used in the same way. Banking up late in autumn, according to the directions we have given, is undoubtedly the best and cheapest mode when rightly performed, but when omitted till too late, it is well worth while to try the felt.

—"John McIntire, the wealthiest person in the town of York, has to drive his cattle two miles for water."

There are some persons in York, who are not so wealthy, who have to drive their cattle less than half that distance. How's that for high? Can't see how the wealth affects the distance. P.

[No, only that rich men would be supposed to have the best facilities for getting water at home.—Eds. Chron.]

J. EDGAR THOMPSON, CHARLES L. FROST, } Trustees.

The greater part of the road is already completed, and the earnings from the finished portion are already more than sufficient to pay operating expenses and interest on the bonds. The balance of the work is progressing rapidly, in time for the movement of the coming grain crops, which, it is estimated will double the present income of the road.

The established character of this line, running as it does through the heart of the most thickly settled and richest portion of the great State of Iowa, together with its present advanced condition and large earnings warrant us in unhesitatingly recommending these bonds to investors, as, in every respect, an undoubted security.

The bonds have 50 years to run, are convertible at the option of the holder into the stock of the company at par, and the payment of the principal is provided for by a sinking fund. The convertibility privilege attached to these bonds cannot fail to cause them at no distant day to command a market price considerably above par, besides paying about 9 per cent., currency, interest in the meanwhile. U. S. Five-twenties, at present prices only return five per cent.; and we regard the security equally safe.

THE FARM AND GARDEN.

FALL PLANTING.—There is much difference of opinion about the respective merits of spring and fall planting; but the facts appear to be that trees may be safely transplanted at either season, provided the operation is performed carefully and early in the season. There is more time in the fall than in the spring for preparing the soil for fruit trees. The best time for fall transplanting is when the wood is perfectly ripe and the leaves have faded and are falling off. From the middle of September to the 20th of October is about the right time in the Northwestern States. Trees transplanted in November are liable to be killed by frost, for the roots have not taken sufficient time to hold on the soil, before the rigors of winter stop their growth. In selecting trees, none but young, healthy ones of the most approved varieties should be chosen, and they should be taken up, brought to the orchard, and set out, damaging the roots as little as possible. Pruning and mulching will be necessary.

WILL FARMING PAY?—Levi Bartlett, the noted agricultural writer, in giving in the Concord Statesman a very interesting account of a recent trip among the flourishing farmers in and near Amherst, N. H., says:

My next call was at Col. D. M. Clough's—that prince of New Hampshire farmers. It is now about 14 years since the Colonel purchased this old worn-out farm, with its dilapidated buildings, for the sum of $4200. The place would now sell for $20,000 under the hammer of the auctioneer. And notwithstanding his great outlay of money and labor, the balance-sheet is largely on the right side. The homestead consists of about 300 acres, 200 of which is Merrimack river interval; out pasture and woodland 350 acres. When the Colonel came into possession of the farm, the hay cut upon it would barely winter fourteen head of common farm stock and two horses. The past season, the hay is estimated at 150 tons, and the straw and corn fodder 50 tons.

RURAL ITEMS. — The Agriculturist recommends that rye be immediately sowed in those districts where the drought has prevailed, as a very late fall and early pasture to eke out the hay crop. A good suggestion for farmers.

Joseph Harris thus defines something we hear much talked about: "High farming means under-draining, thorough tillage, irrigation, and the purchase of manures or feeding stuffs. It means well-bred animals, and high feeding. It means soiling in summer, and roots in winter. It means large crops every year, and crops that can be turned into money."

Short-horn cattle are valuable for their remarkable aptitude to fatten, the perfection of their form and the smallness of their bony structure giving them advantages over all others as beef cattle. No animal of any other breed can so rapidly transform the stock of any section around him as these bulls of the improved short-horned species. One of the characteristics of this breed is also their remarkable docility, and their indisposition to break through confinement.

HILL-SIDE WASHING.—I have often noticed hill sides and hill tops of bare clay, the top soil of sand and loam having been washed to the flats below, leaving the clay subsoil; and yet farmers will go on year after year cultivating the hard, heavy clay and the unproductive, light sandy flats without thinking how easily this defect can be remedied simply by hauling, in dry weather, when the teams have little or nothing to do, the sand back to hills whence years of washing have removed it, and, by incorporating it with the clay again by plowing, equalize the proportions of sand and clay. It seems like hard work and poor pay to haul sand on land as a mechanical manure, but in instances like the above, the writer has practically proved its value.

—Every farmer or mechanic should produce his own mutton rather than pay such an exorbitant price as is demanded for beef. Procure two or three sheep, put them in a clean and comfortable place, feed them from one to two pounds each of corn and oats daily. This will fatten them in a few weeks.

☞ In the New York yacht races, Wednesday, Mr. Ashbury's cup was won by the Tidal Wave, the Douglass cup by the Dauntless, and the Stuyvesant cup by the Madeline. Twelve yachts competed for the prizes. The Sappho did not enter the race, but sailed over the course, twenty miles to windward and return, in shorter time than any of the others. The Cambria was one of the last to reach the home stake boat.

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS,
FOR ALL PURPOSES of a LAXATIVE MEDICINE,
Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its compositio. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.
They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting disease, they cure such derangements as are the first origin of disease.
Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these PILLS rapidly cure:—
For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.
For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.
For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.
For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.
For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings, they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.
For Suppression a large dose should be taken, as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.
As a DINNER Pill, take one or two PILLS to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.
An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the whole system. Hence it often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these PILLS makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus. dawje16odm

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR,
For Restoring Gray Hair to its Natural Vitality and Color.
A Dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for Preserving the Hair. Faded or gray Hair is soon restored to its original color, with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use.
Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such a remedy can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor, can only benefit but not harm it.
If wanted merely for a HAIR DRESSING, nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

FRIDAY, SEPT. 30, 1870.

WAR NOTES.—The Prussians captured with the city of Strasbourg about 17,500 prisoners. The inhabitants, who were driven to desperation, succeeded Tuesday in hoisting the white flag on the cathedral, but Ulrich ordered it removed. The surrender was afterwards compelled by the pressure of the citizens and garrison. On the entrance into the city of the generals and officers commanding, the spectacle that met their gaze was most harrowing. No details that have been given by fugitives from that city, approach the dreadful death-horrors of a siege which appears to have been intensified at Strasbourg in a manner quite revolting even to those who have endured the hardships and seen the horrors of the recent campaign in Europe.

London despatches say the Prussian corvette Bertha was sunk in the Euxine, after a protracted engagement with three French frigates.

The Prussian government denies the presence of a national vessel bearing the name of Bertha, in the Euxine.

The large Prussian force released by the capitulation of Strasbourg will be employed in clearing Alsace of the Franc tireurs.

There are reports, apparently authentic, of the occupation of Orleans and the capture of Montmedy.

The North German Gazette, a semi-official organ of the Prussian government, contains a warm article censuring the government of the United States for its premature action in recognizing the Fre[illegible].

Since [illegible] of the 18th of Au[illegible] Prussian army has [illegible]. The activity a[illegible] of the French [illegible] sieging forces [illegible] there have been repeated [illegible] resolute attempts by Bazaine to break the bonds in which he is held. Notwithstanding the attempts to treat for capitulation, there never has been a moment when the beleaguered general was not prepared to avail himself of any symptoms of neglect or weakness on the part of the enemy. The great difficulty under which Bazaine labors is the facility enjoyed by the Prussians for observing closely his movements, in the camp outside of Metz, from the surrounding heights, rendering any surprise difficult if not impossible.

Russia's warlike preparations are against Germany, and create alarm at Berlin.

The Russian Minister at Berlin has been instructed to present a formal demand to Prussia, declaring it to be quite impossible that Russia can regard it as a question solely to be decided between Germany and France what the limits of either power shall be.

Lord Lyons begs England to interfere and compel peace before all Europe is in flames. A Cabinet Council was called for Thursday.

FRIGATE GUERRIERE ASHORE.—The U. S. S. Guerriere went ashore on Great Point Rip, Nantucket, at 12 M. on Wednesday—weather fair and clear, and a coast pilot on board. The frigate's coal, munitions, &c., were discharged into small craft that went to her assistance; she is some strained, but it is expected that she will come off if the weather holds light,—the point where she is ashore being much exposed to the swell from the ocean, in heavy weather.

The Guerriere is a second rate steamer of 2490 tons and 21 guns; and had the body of Admiral Farragut on board at the time of the accident. The body was landed at Hyannis by steamer Island Home, and left for New York in charge of Mr. L. K. Jerome, Thursday afternoon, which will insure its arrival there in time for the funeral services. Several powerful tugs have gone to the assistance of the grounded frigate.

☞ Twelve or fifteen persons were poisoned in a St Louis boarding house, Tuesday, eating corn bread made by the servants. One of them had been mixing arsenic with some corn meal, which was to be used to kill rats. Another servant found the mixture in a saucer upon the table, and not knowing its contents, she put it back into the meal barrel, when it was baked into the bread which has caused so many deaths.

☞ John W. Forney, jr., lately managing editor of the Philadelphia Press, went to New York to report the Nilsson concert, and was arrested Friday, while drunk, but dismissed with a reprimand. Nothing has been seen of him since, and there are fears of foul play.

For the Chronicle and Gazette.

CHESTER FAIR.—Since the failure of the Rockingham County Agricultural Society to be interesting or profitable in its Fairs, many towns have declined to take part in them. These towns are so far away that they cannot well unite in the Piscataqua Fair. So Chester, a good agricultural town, has established one of its own. It has been held one or two years before this.

Sept. 27 was the time for it this season. The first attraction was the Town Team. It consisted of 38 pairs of oxen. When it moved on the street at eleven o'clock, a band of musicians attended and crowds of people were interested. There was also a four year old ox from Raymond, harnessed to a light two-wheel cart in which a lad rode. This was witnessed with much interest.

The display of fruit in the town hall was excellent. There were fine specimens of almost all kinds of farm and garden products. We may mention only traces of corn by Hon. J. W. Noyes of the town, also by Abel Elkins of Danville. Squashes were large and the question was how such were grown this dry season. One by O. D. Couch was on exhibition, that weighed 88 pounds. A pumpkin, raised by Col. Isaac Lane, had been kept over from last year. This leads to the question if not only pumpkins but apples and the like fruits cannot be kept from years of plenty to those of scarcity.

A self-working cradle was seen. It is owned in town, winds up like a clock and will work an hour. When children shall be plenty again this may be in demand.

Rugs, needle work, &c., by the ladies made an excellent display. Several who attended the Rockingham Fair at Kingston, and then this, testified that this as to what was seen in the hall, was superior to what was at the County Fair. J.

Correspondence of the Chronicle and Gazette.

RYE, Sept. 29.

The Rockingham Conference of Christian Baptist ministers have been holding a meeting at the Baptist Church in this town, which commenced on Tuesday the 26th, and continued until Thursday. Some 12 or 15 churches were represented, and besides their business meetings, religious services were held every evening. Wednesday evening elder D. P. Pike, of Newburyport, preached to a large congregation, in his usual effective manner. Mr. Leach, the Congregational minister, left Tuesday morning, on a vacation, to be absent two or three weeks.

The U. S. Coast Surveying schooner Frank Pierce, which has been lying in Rye harbor for the past two weeks, was ordered to Plymouth, Mass., and sailed Thursday. The surveying party aboard have been engaged in surveying the coast along here, and have erected quite a number of signals between Frost's Point and Newburyport.

It is very quiet at the beaches now, as far as boarders are concerned, all having left, except a few at Straw's Point. Preparations are being made already for the expected big rush next season. G. H. Jenness has commenced digging a cellar, for a new house, which he intends building this fall and winter, so as to be finished next season. He intends to have an elegant residence, which will be an ornament to the "South End." Other buildings are talked of, and it looks now as though business for carpenters and other mechanics would be brisk next spring.

The drought still continues, and there are no signs of relief. But notwithstanding its severity, there has been something raised on the farms here, and there will propably be no danger of starving the coming winter. Apples are plenty enough, and cider is being made in large quantities; but both bring but small prices just now. R.

"The City of Pensacola, Florida, a future Commercial Emporium of the United States," is the title of an advertising pamphlet issued by a Land Company in that city. All that glitters is not gold, South or West, any more than here at home in the good old East.

Party Dances, for the Violin and Piano, or Reed Organ; containing polkas, quardilles, waltzes, &c., with figures or steps for dancing, arranged by Sep. Winner. Published by Oliver Ditson & Co., Boston.

Old and New, for October. Roberts Brothers, Boston, $4 per year. This number is fully up to the usual high character of the magazine, and has a prime table of contents.

Eight children were baptized in the South Church at Concord, last Sabbath, by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Blake, who preached a sermon on Infant Baptism.

A fire set to burn a lot of rubbish on the Candia road, run over a large tract of land to the East and North-East of Manchester. Eight hundred cords of wood, fifty thousand feet of lumber and much standing timber was destroyed.

A peat swamp, about four miles from Nashua, is on fire, thirty acres having been burned over. A steam fire engine and laborers were sent by the city authorities to help put out the fire.

In Boscawen, a man set fire to a hollow tree to smoke out a coon. A hundred and fifty acres of land have been burned in consequence, and the man didn't get his coon, either.

At the Strafford Fair, Dover got first premium, $20, for ox-team, and Madbury the 2nd, $10. The Madbury folks got mad about it.

John Smith, of Rochester, was sentenced by Judge Nesmith to 60 days in jail, for refusing to testify before the Grand Jury. Forty-three witnesses were examined from Rochester, in relation to the liquor traffic, but they were unanimously temperate, none of them having bought or drank any liquor of any description, including ale or cider, for a year past!

There are two Bands in Rochester, the East Rochester and Rochester Cornet. One would seem to be enough in a town.

Col. Charles A. Tufts, of Dover, has been chosen Treasurer of the American Pharmaceutical Association.

Jeremiah Caverly, of Tuftonborough, aged 40, hung himself in his barn on Monday morning. He leaves a wife and four children.

Mrs. James Ross, of Canterbury, walked six or seven miles, while asleep, to Concord, sat down on the doorstep of a house there, was invited in and kindly cared for, and after remaining in a somnambulistic state till past noon, woke up and told who she was, and was safely returned to her anxious friends.

☞ A special dispatch from Boston, last evening, informs us that "the Haverhill Firemens' muster will be an immense affair; companies are arriving by every train. The Rough & Ready, No. 2, of Pawtucket, R. I., are quartered at the American House, in this city—a fine body of men." Sagamore, No. 2, William B. Brighton Tallow 7c per lb; Country Tallow 6 @6½c ℔ lb.

Sheep and Lamb Skins $2 @ 75c each; Calf Skins 17 @ 13c ℔ lb.

The trade for Cattle has not been so good as it was last week. There were but few lots of nice Beeves in, and prices have fallen off upon the best grades from ¼ @ ½c ℔ lb from our last quotations. There were not so many Texas Cattle in market, but the quality of most of the Eastern and Western Cattle was poor. The trade for Store Cattle has been dull, and some of the poorest yearlings and two year olds sold as low as from $8 to $20 ℔ head. The supply of Working Oxen in market was mostly ordinary. There were but few Cattle sold as high as 13½c ℔ lb.

Store Cattle—Yearlings $12 @ $23; two year olds $23 & $43; three year olds $45 & $65 ℔ head, or much according to their value for Beef. The trade for Store Cattle has not been very lively this fall.

Milch Cows—Prices depend much upon the fancy of the purchaser. Most of the Cows brought to market are of an ordinary grade. Prices range from $35 @ $100 ℔ head.

Working Oxen—A fair supply in market. We quote sales at $100, $137 50, $197 50, $200, $160, $160, $135, $115, $170, $175, $185 @ $225 ℔ pair.

Sheep and Lambs—Extra and select lots $3 50 @ $5 50; ordinary lots $2 @ $3 25; Lambs $2 50 @ $ 50 ℔ head, or from 3 @ 7c ℔ lb. Many of the Sheep and Lambs come on drift to the butchers or at a commission.

Swine—Store Pigs, wholesale 10c ℔ lb; retail 11 @ 14c ℔ lb. Fat Hogs—4200 at market; prices 9½ @ 10½c ℔ lb. On account of the drouth the demand for Store Pigs has not been very lively of late, but few lots being sold to peddle on the road.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

A Tainted Atmosphere.

Malarious fevers are most prevalent in the fall. Heavy and unwholesome exhalations then arise from the earth, and the great disparity between the temperature of day and night predisposes the system, enfeebled by the summer heats, to epidemic diseases. The secretive organs, the liver especially, are apt, at this period of the year, to become inert and sluggish, and all the bodily powers require renovation. The best, indeed the only protection against the morbid influences of the season is a wholesome medicated stimulant. Pre-eminent among the restoratives of this class, and indeed foremost among the remedial and preventive medicines of modern times, stands HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS.

Its reputation is co-extensive with the Western Hemisphere; it has been a standard article for twenty years; its sales (as may be ascertained by the revenue returns) are far larger than those of any other proprietary preparation on this continent; and the testimony in its favor embraces letters of approval from the most distinguished members of all the learned professions and from well known residents of almost every city in the Union. These are its credentials. To state what it is doing to prevent and assuage the sufferings of the human family would require more space than can be given to the subject here. The dyspeptic, the bilious, the nervous, the weak and emaciated, the desponding, the broken down, find in its renovating and regulating properties a sure and immediate means of relief. It is a pure vegetable specific, at once safe and potent, and for which the whole materia medica affords no substitute.

Batchelor's Hair Dye.

This splendid Hair Dye is the best in the world; the only true and perfect Dye; harmless, reliable, instantaneous; no disappointment; no ridiculous tints; remedies the ill effect of bad dyes; invigorates and leaves the Hair soft and beautiful, black or brown. Vegetable "Pain Killer,"

After THIRTY YEARS trial, is still receiving the most unqualified testimonials to its virtues, from persons of the highest character and responsibility. Physicians of the first respectability recommend it as a most effectual preparation for the extinction of pain. It is not only the best remedy ever known for Bruises, Cuts, Burns, &c., but for Dysentery or Cholera, or any sort of bowel complaint, it is a remedy unsurpassed for efficiency and rapidity of action. In the great cities of India, and other hot climates, it has become the Standard Medicine for all such complaints, as well as for Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, and other kindred disorders. For Coughs and Colds, Canker, Asthma and Rheumatic difficulties, it has been proved by the most abundant and convincing testimony, to be an invaluable medicine. Sold by all druggists. dawlmsl

Charley Shay's Quincuplexal Exposition.
Tenement To Let.

☞ Charley Shay's great Quincuplexal exhibits at the Temple, to-morrow (Saturday) evening, and also on Monday. They offer a varied and extensive programme—burlesque, singing and dancing, gymnastics, learned dog, &c. The troupe gave a first-rate entertainment the last time they were here.

ROCKINGHAM FAIR.—Towle's Riding Park, at Kingston, though a location in itself very good, with reference to accommodating the county, or that part represented in the Society, is not the most desirable place for the exhibition. Besides being in a comparatively small town, which cannot contribute greatly to the show, it is three miles distant from railroad communication. But the managers were well known workers, and did all that could be done to render it successful. The dust was fearful. Kingston is all sand, and the drought and heat pulverized the soil to the finest point.

On Thursday a procession was formed and marched from the Town Hall to the grounds, escorted by the Newmarket Cornet Band. It embraced the usual town teams of oxen and horses, and presented a nice appearance. It was headed by a company of firemen from Exeter, who were accompanied by the Exeter Cornet Band. The Band from Hampton Falls also appeared on the last day.

The attendance was not large, about two thousand persons being present on each day. All expenses were reported covered by the various fees and usual entrance money. The entries of horned stock were very good, many fine working oxen being comprised in the town teams and other entries. A large and fine exhibition of horses was made. Two pens of swine and one of sheep represented the stock in the line of pork and wool. Poultry had a considerable display, embracing ducks, turkeys, hens, &c.

R. W. Currier, of East Kingston, made a handsome show of fruit in great variety—58 plates of pears, 38 of apples, 15 of grapes, 3 of peaches, 4 of tomatoes, 9 cans of preserves; and made an attractive exhibition. J. C. Bradley, Esq., whom the Republicans of Danville had the good sense to send to Concord last June, was present with another superior display of fruit, both in quantity and quality—25 kinds of apples, 13 of pears, 15 of grapes, and other contributions in the fruit line. We are indebted to him for delicious grapes as samples.

The corn show was excellent, the dozen or fifteen traces exhibited being sound, heavy and bright. Vegetables were not abundant, but W. A. Currier, formerly of Exeter, now a resident of Boston, had a fanciful display of potatoes, many of them seedings, numbering in all 75 kinds. Bread, butter, cheese, &c., were not largely shown. Patchwork, quilts and domestic handiwork were not fully represented. Newmarket and Exeter had a good display of stoves and iron work, and a considerable variety of farm implements was exhibited. Brentwood made a fine display of flowers.

"On the whole, as the reporter of the Manchester Mirror says, the Kingston Fair, though not as good as Rocking County ought to make, was better in many respects than we anticipated, and, under all circumstances, may be regarded as a success."

The trotting included a Stallion race, in which there five entries:

W. G. Brown, Stratham, blk s Fearnaught Prince.
M. Mann, Greenland, g s Greenland.
Frank Walker, Newmarket, b s John G. Saxe.
Mr. Downing, So. Hampton, br s Morgan.——
Mr. Harvey, Nottingham, g s Flying Cloud.

Fearnaught Prince won the first two heats, it is said, easily enough; but on the third, D. C. Whittemore, who drove Mr Walker's horse, and the Nottingham and So. Hampton drivers, started their horses on a run, determined to bother the Fearnaught horse, as they could not beat them. At this, Mr. Brown was startled and vexed into letting his horse run also, which he can do like a fox, and easily cleaned them all out. This of course was highly culpable, and against the rules, and subjected them all to a distance, in favor of H. H. Smith, who kept Greenland alone at his trot; but the judges held that as Fearnaught could and did previously out-trot all the rest, he should have first place and money, and Greenland second. We did not see this race, but it is thus given to us by competent and disinterested parties.

In the 2:50 trot, were Mr. Wingate's g. m. Cora Bell, of Stratham, H. McDeritt's s. m. Lady French, and S. H. Gates' g. g. Wild Eddy, of Portsmouth, and perhaps others. Cora Bell took first heat, and Wild Eddy the next three, and first money, Cora of course getting second for her heat won.

In the 3 minute race, were G. H. Shannon's g. m. St. Lawrence Maid, of Portsmouth, the gray stallon Greenland, and Mr. Shute's bay mare of Haverhill, (a new town for Rockingham County.) The bay mare was given first heat, Greenland the third, and St. Lawrence Maid the 2nd, 4th and 5th, and first money.

In the race for all horses in the County, Nelly Locke, Lady Emma, and Mountain Maid, all of Portsmouth, came to the score. Nelly was first, the Maid second, and Emma third, all through this trot.

For the trot open to all horses, a piebald mare, Monadnock Maid, of Plaistow, Lady Emma and Nelly Locke of Portsmouth, Bay Stranger of Manchester, and blk. m. Ida May of Dover, came. Nelly took first, second and fourth heats, and first money; and the second heat, and so the second money.

WHITEFIELD. — On Saturday, Sept. 29th, 1770, one hundred years ago, the justly celebrated Rev. George Whitefield preached for two hours in Front Street, in Exeter. The meeting house stood where Mrs. Cobb now lives, and was opened for the occasion, but proved altogether too small for the assembled multitude; and the great preacher stood in the street, opposite the house, upon a platform of planks laid upon barrels. That night he went to Newburyport, where he addressed the crowd that wished to see him, and died the next day, of asthma. We trust that the movement which we understand is now started in Exeter, to mark appropriately the spot where he stood when delivering that last sermon, will be successful.

We publish on our 4th page this morning, an interesting account of Whitefield's last days and death. Uncle Toby's mother used to tell him of the great exhorter's visit to Portsmouth—what crowds flocked to see him; and how on one occasion, so full was the church packed, that he had to be passed in by a window that opened into the pulpit. It is a remarkable man or deed that is recollected a century. A religious memorial service of the Centennal event, is to be held at the Whitefield Church in Newburyport to-day, the details of which we have before given.

Correspondence of Chronicle and Gazette.

KITTERY, ME., Sept. 29.

Messrs. Editors:—During three days' attendence at the Universalist Convention at Gloucester, last week, I could not help noticing one feature of the Convention, which was the entire absence of those incidents which characterize our annual Camp Meetings as places of great amusement, and which are apt to subvert the good purpose intended, to a questionable result. Each one of that vast assemblage appeared to be inspired with a deep interest in the exercises of the occasion, which were alike sublime and instructive.

WHITEFIELD AND MURRAY.

It is an interesting fact with reference to Murray and Whitefield, that the latter, who had preached much in this country, died one hundred years ago in Newburyport, on the very Sabbath that Mr. Murray preached his first sermon in the Potter church at Cranberry Inlet. We regard this, under the circumstances, as a remarable coincidence, and, knowing the fact, we have been designing for some time to speak of it, and present the circumstances of the case.

Mr. Whitefield and Mr. Murray were both Englishmen. They were both contemporary with John Wesley, who was also an Englishman. All three were "bright and shining lights;" all three were men of genius and of great mental vigor and power, of never-doubting faith in God and the Bible, and possessing elevated conceptions of their duties as moral and religious beings. Wesley was born in 1703, Whitefield in 1714, and Murray in 1741.

Whitefield and Murray were both converts to the views of Wesley. Whitefield subsequently became a Calvinist, and Murray a Universalist. They were all itinerants. "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature," was a command which they felt they should heed. Wesley was the first to visit this country; he came in 1735. Whitefield was the "Field Preacher" of England, and operated for a while in conjunction with Wesley.

Whitefield came to this country for the first time in 1737. Subsequently he made seven voyages to America, and preached in all the seaboard colonies, from York, in the now State of Maine, to the southern extremity of Georgia. He was a man of great power as a revival preacher. Possessing a commanding person and wonderfully strong voice, he excelled all others in his efforts in the open air. It was no unfrequent thing for him to address ten thousand persons at one time. The wrath of God and the awful doom of the damned, mingled with the happiness of the redeemed, were the subjects on which he dwelled.

It is recorded of him that at one time when preaching on Boston Common to four acres of men and women, he went on for an hour to describe the awful terrors of the law, and at length cried out in agony and tears, "Oh, the wrath to come!" "The wrath to come!" On which "five hundred fell down to the ground and gave their hearts to God. To give God our hearts is to give him our affections, our warmest, purest love. These men and women were dreadfully afraid of God;—they were stricken with terror, and fell down before God in awe; but to love a being of awful wrath and malignity, was simply impossible. All through the length and breadth of the land, did this man travel, preaching this Gospel.

He departed from England on his seventh, and what proved to be his last voyage to America, Sept. 25th, 1769, and arrived in Charleston, South Carolina, the 30th of the following November. Being much troubled with the asthma, he spent the winter in the South. On the 14th of the following June he was in Philadelphia. He came North and commencing at Newport, Rhode Island, August 4th, preached every day he was not absolutely sick, till the day of his death. His sermons were from an hour and a half to two hours and a half in length.

The account of his last labors, as recorded in his Memoir, are very interesting:

"From the 17th to the 29th of September, Whitefield preached every day in Boston; on the 29th of September, at Newton; and proceeded from Boston, September the 21st, on an excursion to the eastwards, although at first time indisposed. At Portsmouth, in New Hampshire, he preached daily from the 23d to the 29th of September; also once at Kittery, and once at York; and, on Saturday morning, September 29, he set out for Boston; but before he came to Newburyport, where he had engaged to preach next morning, he was importuned to preach by the way, at Exeter.

At the last he preached in the open air, to accommodate the multitudes that came to hear him, no house being able to contain them. He continued his discourse nearly two hours, by which he was greatly fatigued. Mr. Richard Smith, who attended Whitefield from England to America the last time, and was his constant companion in all his journeying while there, till the time of his decease, has given the following particular account of his death and interment:

'On Saturday, September 29, 1770, Mr. Whitefield rode from Portsmouth to Exeter, (fifteen miles,) in the morning, and preached there to a very great multitude, in the fields. It is remarkable, that before he went out to preach that day, (which proved to be his last sermon,) Mr. Clarkson, senior, observing him more uneasy than usual, said to him. "Sir, you are more fit to go to bed than to preach." To which Mr. Whitefield answered, 'true sir,' but turning aside, he clasped his hands together, and looking up, said, 'Lord Jesus, I am weary in thy work, but not of thy work. If I have not yet finished my course, let me go and speak for thee once more in the fields, seal thy truth, and come home and die.'

After dinner, Whitefield and Mr. Parsons rode to Newburyport. I did not get there till two or three hours after them. I found them at supper. I asked Whitefield how he felt himself after his journey. He said, 'he was tired, therefore he supped early, and would go to bed.' He ate a very little supper, talked but little, asked Mr. Parsons to discharge the table, perform family duty; and then retired up stairs. He said, 'that he would sit and read till I came to him,' which I did as soon as possible; and found him reading in the Bible, with Dr. Watts' Psalms lying open before him. He asked me for some water gruel, and took about half his usual quanity; and kneeling down by the bedside, closed the evening with prayer.

After a little conversation, he went to rest, and slept till two in the morning, when he awoke me, and asked me for a little cider, of which he drank about a wine glass full. I asked him how he felt, for he seemed to pant for breath. He told me, 'his asthma was coming on him again; he must have two or three days' rest. Two or three days' riding, without preaching, would set him up again.' At a quarter past four he waked and said, 'my asthma, my asthma is coming on; I wish I had not given out word to preach at Haverhill on Monday; I don't think I shall be able: but I shall see what to-day will bring forth. If I am no better to-morrow, I will take two or three days' ride?'

He then desired me to warm him a little gruel, and, in breaking the fire wood, I waked Mr. Parsons, who, thinking I knocked for him, rose and came in. He went to Whitefield's bedside, and asked him how he felt himself. He answered, 'I am almost suffocated. I can scarce breathe, my asthma quite chookes me.' I was then not a little surprised, to hear how quick, and with what difficulty he drew his breath. He got out of bed, and went to the open window for air.

I went to him, and for about the space of five minutes saw no danger, only that he had a great difficulty in breathing, as I had often seen before. Soon afterwards he turned himself to me, and said, 'I am dying.' I said. 'I hope not, sir.' He ran to the other window, panting for breath, but could get no relief. It was agreed I should go for the doctor, and on my coming back, I saw death on his face; and he again said, 'I am dying.' And indeed so it was, for he soon breathed his last."

And this transpired on the very Sabbath that John Murray, for the first time in this country, lifted up his voice in proclamation of the great truth of God's infinite love, of man's ultimate and universal redemption in Christ, and the salvation of the world. As one great light was going down, another with more cheering beams and resplendent rays was dawding upon this new world.

From that day's beginning, Murray declared "the word of truth the Gospel of Salvation" to the waiting multitudes in the very cities and towns visited by his countryman, the eloquent Whitefield. The latter by his new and peculiar method of extemporaneous address, and the advance he had made in some of his views, on the doctrines of the established church, seemed to "prepare the way" for the work of the latter, as John had prepared the way for the work of the Lord.

Murray was acquainted with Whitefield—often attended his "tabernacle" in England. He probably knew that W. was in this country, but not for weeks did he hear of his death. He preached in Philadelphia, New York, Newport, Providence, Boston, Salem, Cape Ann and other places visited by Mr. Whitefield, and, indeed, in many of the same pulpits occupied by the latter.

The faith he proclaimed included the world, and yet he did not denominate it Universalism. He believed and preached the common doctrine of the Trinity, and the atonement for sin by the blood of Christ; but he also believed that Christ died for the world, and the atonement was universal;—that all who died in Adam, would be made alive Christ. All the passages which refer to the grand consummation of the work given Christ to do, he would quote and apply them in their unrestricted sense, leaving the hearer to draw his own inference.

At length, in the fall of 1773, by strong solicitation, he visited Newburyport,—was entertained by Rev. Mr. Parsons—the man in whose house Mr. Whitefield died, slept in the same room and bed, and preached in the same pulpit occupied by the latter, beneath which the mortal remains of Mr. Whitefield repose.

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT? IF SO, SELECT THE BEST, which is the AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.

It has proved itself, West, North and South, to be the best Paint now in use. It will not peel, crack, nor chalk off, and will last twice as long as the best Lead Paints.

It is cheaper, handsomer and more elastic, than the best of other Paints. It is the most convenient Paint made, being mixed, ready for application; it dries rapidly, and retains its shade perfectly, with a beautiful surface and glossy finish, and for years retains its gloss and beauty. It is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper, making a smooth glossy finish, which can be cleaned with hot suds without injury.

One Gallon of Mixed Lead Paint weighs 20 lbs. and costs $2.72, and will only cover 16 square yds, 2 coats: while one gallon of the Chemical Paint only weighs 10 lbs., and costs but $2.50, and will cover 32 square yds., 2 coats,—thus making a saving of 22 cts., per gallon, besides covering 4 yards more than Lead Paint, and will last twice as long and look far better.

The Chemical Paint is sold by the gallon in quantities to suit purchasers, in 40 different shades and pure white, and will be applied by experienced workmen and satisfaction given in every case; or in case of dissatisfaction in one year after put on, the whole cost of Paint will be refunded.

The sale of these unequalled Paints are daily increasing. Call and examine these ready mixed Paints, both in kegs, and applied to Buildings one year ago, before buying elsewhere, and save your money and money, and beautify your dwelling by using the AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINTS, which are for sale at the GROCERY AND PROVISION STORE, No. 16 and 18 Cabot Street, where are kept the best of Meats and Groceries, as low as can be bought in the city.

PAST.—PRESENT.—FUTURE.

The moon looked down, and what did it see?
A deep vow breathed betwixt you and me;
One, a girl in her fair spring time,
One, a man in his earnest prime;
A vow of friendship and faith and truth, (youth.
That should keep through years the pledge of

The moon looks down, and what does it see?
A broken vow between you and me;
Careless words and a whispering tongue,
A veil of doubt o'er our hearts have flung;
Weakness in you and pride in me,
Two separate paths where one should be.

The moon will look down, and what will it see?
Two graves, two stones, for you and me;
Sad that immortal souls can play
With love, as a toy to be cast away;
Hard to get, and harder to keep!
This is the sight that makes angels weep.

Newport, N. H. A. J. MOODY.

THE NEW JERSEY UNIVERSALISTS have purchased an acre of the "Good Luck" Grove, in South Jersey, whereon they propose to celebrate, by a jubilee meeting, their denominational centennial. The history of the grove is decidedly interesting. Upward of one 100 years ago, the owner of the property, a somewhat eccentric old gentleman named Potter, erected a small church edifice, for the use of all denominations, but remarking that "some one of these days a minister will come along with whom I will agree in sentiment."

In the course of time John Murray—the first Universalist minister in this country—left the shores of the Old World for America; but arriving here, a storm (which the members of the faith call "providential,") arose, and the vessel on which the preacher took passage was driven over the Barnegat shoals and into the inlet, on the shores of which stood the Potter Church. John Murray's teachings were in accordance with the ideas of Thomas Potter, and from that time Universalism had a foothold in this country.

These facts led the New Jersey Universalists to the belief that they ought to own a portion of the property, and in accordance with their desire the purchase has been made. The grave of the old owner of the land and builder of the church is near to the ground, and has recently been surrounded with a neat iron fence. A marble monument has also been erected. The meeting will be held soon after the late national centennial at Gloucester, Mass., where John Murray was first settled as a pastor.

HARD ON EDITORS.—Soon after Chief Justice Chase assumed the gubernatorial chair in Ohio, he issued his proclamation appointing a Thanksgiving Day. To make sure of being orthodox, the Governor composed his proclamation almost exclusively of passages from the Bible, which he did not designate as quotations, presuming that every one would recognize them, and admire the fitness of the words as well as his taste in their selection. The proclamation meeting the eye of a Democratic editor, he pounced at once upon it, declared that he had read it before—couldn't exactly say where—but he would take his oath that it was a downright plagiarism from beginning to end. That would have been a pretty fair joke; but the next day the Republican editor came out valiantly in defence of the Governor, pronounced the charge false and libellous, and challenged any man living to produce one single line of the proclamation that had ever appeared in print before!

—Old Judge B——, of New Hampshire, was what Artemas Ward would have called a "sociable cuss" off the bench, and was noted for claiming acquaintance with any whose appearance happened to please him. Entering a crowded car on the Boston & Maine road one day, his honor found the only unoccupied seat to be by the side of a smartly dressed and rather good looking young woman. Ascertaining that the seat was not engaged, the Judge settled himself comfortably in it, and turning with his accustomed bland, fatherly smile to his fair companion, said:

"Your face seems familiar to me, my dear; I think I must know you."

"I should think you might," said the unknown, in a hoarse, whiskey, contralto voice, turning a vindictive pair of eyes on the astonished judge, "I should think you might; you sent me to the House of Correction for three months, last winter, you infernal old scoundrel."

The Judge did not press his claim for acquaintance further in that quarter.

Correspondence of the Chronicle and Gazette.

NORTH BERWICK, ME., Sept. 28.

I send you an account of a big yield from one potato, on the farm of Mr. H. Hall of this place. The potato planted thirty-three hills, and yielded three pecks of tubers—a rounding half-bushel of good big eating potatoes, and a peck of smaller ones. Beat this if you can.

Yours truly, C. W. MOULTON.

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS,
FOR ALL PURPOSES of a LAXATIVE MEDICINE.
Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative PILL. The obvious reason is that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates, containing neither alcohol nor any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.
They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.
Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these PILLS rapidly cure:—
For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.
For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.
For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.
For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change these complaints disappear.
For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings, they should be taken freely and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.
For Suppression a large dose should be taken, as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.
As a DINNER PILL, take one or two PILLS to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.
An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels himself unwell, often finds that a dose of these PILLS makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus. dawjel6odim

AYER'S
HAIR VIGOR,
For Restoring Gray Hair to its Natural Vitality and Color.
A Dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for Preserving the Hair. Faded or gray Hair is soon restored to its original color, with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use.
Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remains can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor, can only benefit but not harm it.
If wanted merely for a HAIR DRESSING, nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

The Daily Chronicle.

Portsmouth, N. H.

SATURDAY, OCT. 1, 1870.

WAR NOTES—The recent French successes around Paris have broken the Prussian line of investment in two places, and the French hold the captured points in force.

Great excitement exists in England concerning the Russian movements and menaces.

The liberal Austrian journals denounce Prussia as tyrannical and anti-democratic.

The Moscow Gazette says Russia loses power because France is no longer a counterpoise of Prussia.

The Austrian and Prussian Cabinets are very friendly.

The French say that the Prussians have not arrived at Orleans, and have given up their westward march; that the reported movement on Lyons is false; and that the Prussian losses near Paris have been immense. Also that a newly-invented weapon, far more deadly than the mitrailleuse, has been furnished to the Garde Mobile, and new breech-loading cannon mounted on the ramparts at Paris.

Russia is making great military preparations.

Hungary insists on the absolute neutrality of Austria, in case of a rupture between Russia and Germany.

Divisions in the councils and insubordination in the armies of France, have a bad look for her successful defence against Prussia.

The German Liberals are very active and bold, and do not seem to be at all dazzled by the military glory of their country.

FARRAGUT'S FUNERAL took place in New York on Friday, despite a driving storm. A late report we have received is the following:—

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Farragut's funeral procession is now passing up Broadway in the teeth of a driving easterly storm. The programme will be fully carried out despite the rain, which has been falling heavily since ten o'clock.

Thousands of spectators throng the route. The public buildings are draped, and nearly every house along Broadway and other streets where the procession is to move are festooned in black.

All business in the city, private and official, was suspended during the obsequies.

THE GUERRIERE AFLOAT.—The Guerriere (ashore on Great Rip, Nantucket,) was got off at 2 P. M., Thursday, with assistance from steamer Island Home, having previously been lightened. It was a fortunate escape, for the frigate was in a very exposed place, and a gale would have soon knocked her to pieces. She is said to have received no injury; but a private letter received in this city on Friday, says that when the writer left the vessel she was making a good deal of water. She has gone on to New York. No explanation is yet given as to how she managed to blunder ashore at noon, in a clear day, under steam, and with a pilot on board.

MUTINY.—The crew of the American ship Elizabeth Hamilton, Captain White, which left Antwerp a few days ago for New York, became mutinous for some cause not yet transpired. The second officer was mortally wounded in attempting to subdue the mutiny. The vessel immediately put back to Antwerp, and on arriving, the ring leaders were turned over to the police.

☞ Barque Desiah, owned in Boston and Searsport, Me., has been lost at sea—ship and cargo valued at $50,000. Small insurance. The mate, Geo. A. Darling, was lost. The crew suffered fearfully on the wreck for three days, from hunger and exposure, the vessel being waterlogged.

☞ Mr. Oliver Emery, in going to the Berwick town meeting, met with an accident that, it is feared, will be fatal. He stopped his horse on a hill to allow a man to get into the wagon, when the horse started suddenly, throwing Mr. Emery out to the ground, breaking his spine.

☞ A colored woman named Eliza Robinson, in jail in Baltimore, adopted the most horrible means to commit suicide. She poured a quantity of oil over her clothes and them set them on fire. She was dreadfully burned before her situation was discovered, and soon died.

☞ The yellow fever has appeared on a vessel lying in Hampton Roads. There have been several deaths on board, and nearly all the crew are down with the disease. The vessel has just arrived from the Florida coast.

☞ In the open race at Kingston, one heat and second money were given to the brown or black mare Ida May of Dover.

For the Chronicle and Gazette.

AN EXCURSION TO YORK.—Agamenticus, Bald-Head Cliff, &c.—While we read so many letters from places on the lines of public travel, it may be well to read something of those places that are away from railroads and steamboats.

We crossed the river at Portsmouth, and drove seven miles to York Corner, where we took an unfrequented road, (the last few miles of which are rough and rocky,) and drove to the foot of Agamenticus. We left our horse at a house, and in a half-hour, by an easy pathway, reached the summit, which is 672 feet above the level of the sea. As the seashore is only about five miles distant, the ocean views are extensive and beautiful. Cape Ann, the Shoals, Boon Island, Cape Porpoise and other interesting objects appear in the marine view. The mountain view on the other side must in a clear day be very beautiful, as the White Hills and many other elevations form a very extended outline. Several towns and villages were seen among the green forests, while Great Bay and other sheets of water made pleasant features in the landscape. Could an easy road be made from Portsmouth to this mountain, it would give great pleasure to summer visitors in the vicinity, as well as to those of our own people who like to spend a day where they can enjoy mountain, forest and ocean views, without the fatigue and inconvenience of a distant excursion.

From the mountain we drove to the Cape Neddick House, a very pleasant, home-like place, then full of summer boarders. Early the next morning we went to Bald-Head Cliff, three miles down the coast, and were delighted with this truly wonderful and grand work of nature. The Cliff is formed of layers, some of which are almost as regular as works of art, while the various steps, projections and fissures render it very interesting. A dark wall nearly 200 feet long and from 20 to 85 feet in perpendicular height forms one side, while the other sides are broken and irregular. In an ocean storm it abounds in wild and sublime scenes, which must be witnessed with awe and admiration. From the heights above we had fine views of the beaches in Wells, of Cape Neddick and Boon Island.

Cape Neddick with its hotel, tents, beach wagons and groups of visitors, seemed very pleasant, and may in time be a more important summer resort. We had a fine drive, at low tide, of two miles over York beach, and found the sand quite hard. York village is pleasantly situated, and is distinguished as one of the oldest towns in this part of the country. We visited the remains of the old fort at the mouth of the harbor, but could not learn when it was built. We found the Sayward place pleasantly situated, and in a good state of perservation for a house one hundred and fifty-seven years old. Jonathan Sayward, who lived there one hundred years ago, was probably the most prominent man in the town, though he was a loyalist. We saw a beautiful painting of his daughter, by Blackbourne, the teacher of Copley; and a picture of himself and an unfinished picture of his wife, painted in the time of the revolution,—but could not learn the name of the artist.

His grand-daughter, Madam Wood, who died at 96, in Kennebunk, some years since, spoke of him with great interest, as she lived in his family when a child. She was a very intelligent and brilliant old lady, and spoke with great animation of events at and before the Revolution. She said that when she was seven years old, Whitefield visited this place and blessed her; while a few days after, Gov. Hutchinson came, and complimented her so highly that she wondered she was not spoiled. She remembered how the Shoalers came in a sloop to the place; on account of political difficulties; how her grandfather feasted them, how they walked round the carpet and spoke with wonder and indignation because "Elder Sayward" had quilts on his floor, and pictures on his walls, especially as the latter was contrary to the commandments. Madam Wood remembered the Stearns of Kittery,—especially the daughter who afterwards became the mother of Joseph Stearns Buckminister, one of the most eminent preachers in the country. Could Madam Wood repeat the stories connected with the old Sayward house, they would be among the most valuable acquisition which the Maine Historical Society could gather in the city of York. G. O.

☞ Virginia had a great rain storm on Thursday. Several bridges (among them one over the James river at Lynchburg,) were washed away, and railroad traffic was interrupted in many places. Several lives were lost in the James river, which was higher than for the last 25 years.

☞ A Philadelphia man named Thomas Hardy was arraigned before U. S. Com. Biddle in that city, Tuesday, under an act of Congress relative to false registration. It was shown that he had registered himself under fictitious names in 35 different places, one being the residence of a Democratic alderman named Delany. In one case, if not more, Hardy was vouched for by one of the members of the present Democratic police force. The officer was also arraigned. Each is held in $5000 for further hearing.—Wonder if the census is wrong in that city? No wonder the virtuous Democracy say the population of Democratic wards in cities is cut down below the "ballot-box estimate," when such plans have been adopted to steal a victory. Democratic purity! Oh!

POLITICAL.—In Alabama the re-election of Senator Warner is assured. In the fourth district, which cast the heaviest republican vote of the State for Grant, a very bad state of affairs exists. The negroes have been thoroughly overawed, and do not dare to take part in public meetings, or to allow their names to be used on the local ticket. The canvass of the district by republican candidates for State and congressional officers has been virtually abandoned. The Ku Klux rules.

The St. Louis Republican (democratic) comes out for B. Gratz Brown for governor.

☞ At the Maine State Fair at Augusta, an unfortunate accident occurred just previous to the commencement of the races, occasioned by the giving way of a whole tier of seats opposite the judges' stand, which precipitated over 600 persons to the ground. There were about 3000 persons, of both sexes, on the seats, and of that number at least a quarter fell, causing a good deal of excitement and fright, and injuring several persons. It was fortunate that none were killed, and so few hurt.

TRAGEDY.—John Ray, a man 35 years of age, living at Medway, Me., on the Penobscot river, having been missing for some days, foul play was suspected. After four days' search his body was found secreted in a grove on an island about fifty rods from his house, with severe bruises upon his face and temple. His wife, and a man named Elbridge Reed, a miserable fellow who is said to have been improperly intimate with Mrs. Ray, have been arrested on suspicion of being the murderers.

☞ Representative Ela and Senator Patterson spoke at the Grafton County Fair, Wednesday; Hon. Simon Brown of Concord, Mass., and Col. D. M. Clough of Canterbury, at the Contoocook Valley Fair; and Gen. Butler at the Essex Co. (Mass.) Fair.

☞ Mr. Benjamin Swain of Exeter, a peddler of fish, about 60 years old, who has traded in this city, was found dead in his wagon near Epping on Wednesday, probable from heart disease or apoplexy.

☞ The boy who was kicked by a horse in Kittery on Monday last, is a son of Mr. Richard D. Philbrick of that town. Several of his teeth are gone, his jaw broken, and his face cut up very badly.

WE ALL CONSIDER IRON the embodiment of strength and power, but how few are aware that it is this element in the system, that gives us strength and vigor, and that an insufficiency of it causes weakness and debility. The Peruvian Syrup, a protoxide of iron, is prepared expressly to supply this vitalizing element.

INSTALLATION AT YORK.—Rev. Benjamin W. Pond was installed over the 1st Congregational Church and Parish in York, on Wednesday. The order of exercises was as follows: Invocation and reading of the scriptures, Rev. Mr. Sanborn of Eliot; introductory prayer, Rev. Mr. Booker of Wells; sermon, Professor Barbour, Bangor Theological Seminary; installing prayer, Rev. Mr. Kingsbury, of Bradford, Mass.; charge to pastor, Rev. Mr. Adams of Portsmouth; right hand of fellowship, Rev. Mr. Darling of Kennebunk; charge to the people, Rev. Mr. Hayward of South Berwick; concluding prayer, Rev. Mr. Davis of Newington; benediction by the pastor.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Bear in Mind.

When disease has undermined the health, and the physical system has become prostrated, a stimulant that will not only strengthen, but remove the cause, should be immediately resorted to. Mental distress is also a fruitful source of the breaking down of the constitution, and the ravages of this enemy to health are truly alarming. For all such maladies HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS have been found unsurpassed. By acting directly upon the digestive organs, they remove the heavy, disagreeable feeling after eating, so often complained of by persons of a sedentary temperament. As soon as digestion is restored, the patient finds his strength increasing, and his general health improved.

Thousands of persons certify that it may be relied on in all cases of weakness or nervous debility attendant upon sedentary habits. The generality of Bitters are so disagreeable to the taste that they are objectionable to a weak stomach. This is not the case with Hostetter's Bitters, which will be found mild and extremely pleasant.

Balsamic plants, barks and roots contribute their restorative juices to render it soothing and strengthening. Its basis is the only pure stimulant which has ever been produced, containing no fusel oil, or any other deleterious element. The most careful and skillful chemists have analyzed the Bitters, and pronounce them harmless. This is scientific testimony; but the testimony of the hundreds of thousands who have experienced the preventive and curative effects of the GREAT VEGETABLE TONIC and ALTERATIVE of modern times is still more conclusive. In Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Nervous Complaints, Chronic Complaints and general debility it is as nearly infallible as anything in this fallible world can be. oldawlw

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

New Advertisements to-day.

Notice—Portsmouth Savings Bank.
Optical Instruments, &c.—Joseph H. Foster.

☞ By order of the War Department, a survey and chart of the tides in Portsmouth harbor is to be made, under direction of Gen. J. G. Foster and assistants.

☞ We wrote, "if the Clara Bateman isn't a tug of war, she war the tug that took the Brooklyn down the harbor." The compositor making the word "war" was, rather spoilt our meaning.

☞ Sedley Lowd, the horse thief, went to jail at Manchester. His friends will do nothing for him, as they have tried in vain, heretofore, to save him. He served three years in the war, and is said to have been a good soldier. He is bound to steal.

☞ The posters for an Agricultural Fair to be held not far from Portsmouth, contain the name, for Superintendent, of a man who has actually been dead for a year or two. So much for patronizing outsiders to do printing. The man intended is in no sense a dead one, nor a dead beat.

☞ The rain of Friday, which broke the long drought in this region, was bad for the Firemen's Muster at Haverhill—and no doubt "put out" the boys, as well as numerous fires in the woods. However, firemen mustn't be too much afraid of water, and they were doubtless willing to suffer some discomfort for the sake of having rain.

☞ Deputy Sheriff Chas. H. Joy left the jail Friday, on account of the health of his wife, and Mr. John M. Davis has taken his place as jailor. Sheriff Moulton offered the position to Mr. Benjamin Norton, who declined it. Mr. Moulton was one of the County Commissioners when Mr. Norton was at the City Farm, and then saw his fitness for the position of jailor.

☞ One of the crew of the coal schooner run down by the Brooklyn, informs us that the schooner was under sail with a light breeze at the time, and not at anchor. Otherwise, our account was correct, and this makes no difference, as everybody that knows anything at all about such matters, knows that it is a steamer's business to keep out of the way of sailing vessels.

☞ Charley Shay's Quincuplexal Exposition is to occupy the Temple this (Saturday) evening—at least, the performers will occupy the stage; and if they give as good a show as they have heretofore given, they should have audience enough to fill up the rest of the house. Dancing, singing, farce and pantomime, learned dogs, and feats of strength and agility, are part of the programme.

ALDERMEN.—Thursday evening, the Mayor was authorized to act respecting Mr. Geo. Taylor's offer to move the shop on Bridge Street back from the street, on the payment of $50.

The Mayor and Com. on Police reported that they had examined the charges against Police Officer Samuel Taylor, and had found him guilty of conduct unbecoming an officer and in direct violation of his duty, and they unanimously recommended his discharge. The report was accepted, adopted, and the officer discharged from further duty.

Col. J. W. Peirce, by Mr. Walter Scott, his farm superintendent, sent in a bill of $35, for sheep killed and injured by dogs, in his pasture near the trotting park, Aug. 28th. Mr. Scott's affidavit stated that five sheep were bitten, of which two died, and the other three have recovered after much trouble and attention; also that one was missing, probably scared away. The bill presented (the city being by law responsible for all damage to sheep by dogs,) was $10 each for two sheep killed and one lost, and $5 for injury to the wounded—but the Board decided the city could not be held for the missing sheep, and voted to pay $25 for the two killed and three injured. So much for curs, this time.

The petition of Rev. Daniel Austin, for the refunding of $454.43, taxes which he claims were improperly assessed by this city on $20,750 of National Bank Stock in Boston, and during his absence in Europe in 1867, paid by his agent; also of $220 assessed, and paid by his agent in his absence, in 1868, on $10,000 money on hand or on deposit, when he claims he had none liable to taxation here—was referred to the Com. on Finance, to report.

On petition of Elisha Tripp and others, the Mayor and Com. on Sts. were desired to examine and report, whether the fence at the gravel pit of the Rundlett heirs, on Middle Street, at Wibird Street, encroaches on the highway,—as it is thought to do, ten or twelve feet.

☞ Twenty-eight persons are to be received into the Methodist church in this city to-morrow, by profession, and several by letter.

☞ The great Naval Catafalque erected at this Station by Mr. E. W. Brown, was landed from the Guerriere at the same time as the body of Adm. Farragut, and went on to New York with the remains. Mr. Brown accompanied the catafalque, as did also the Marine Band from the Navy Yard.

NAVAL.—Schooner Vesta, of Freeport, Me., arrived at this Naval Station, Wednesday, and the barque Rachel on Thursday — both from Philadelphia, with coal for Bureau of Equipment.

The U. S. S. Brooklyn arrived at New York from this port, Thursday night.

U. S. S. Kearsarge has arrived at New York.

☞ There are several changes of Teachers in the Public Schools of Ward One. Miss Anna Manson has resigned her position as teacher of the Intermediate School at the Franklin Schoolhouse, and Miss Mary Jane Roberts takes her place; Miss Emma H. Bean of Newington, takes the place of Miss Roberts at the Gravelly Ridge School; Miss Lizzie S. Pickering of Newington, a graduate of Portsmouth High School, is appointed to the new Spalding School, to open Oct. 3d; and Miss Flora M. Fitts takes the place of Mrs. Mullin, (resigned,) at the High St. Primary School. Miss Guptill, from Eliot, who took the place of Miss Simes, (also resigned,) we are informed is doing well in new position as teacher of the Intermediate department of the Bartlett School.

☞ The Firemen's Muster at Haverhill, Friday, was a great success. 60 fire companies, from Maine, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, and Rhode Island, with 27 bands and 7 drum corps, marched in the procession. Vast crowds of spectators were in attendance, and many buildings were decorated. The procession started at 11 o'clock, and up to noon no rain had fallen to interfere with the pleasures of the occasion. At the request of the citizens, all the liquor dealers closed their bars for the day.

☞ The missing editor, John W. Forney, Jr., has returned to Philadelphia, having spent five days with a friend on Governor's Island.

THE GILMAN FAMILY.

It is not often that a single book can contribute so much that was either absolutely unknown, or well-nigh forgotten, to the history of a state and a period, as Mr. Arthur Gilman of Lee has done by his genealogy of the Gilman family of New Hampshire. From the time of the first Councillor Gilman, who was born in Hingham, England, in 1624, and settled in Exeter, N. H., about 1648, the political, ecclesiastical, social and financial history of New Hampshire was more influenced by the Gilman family than by any other, for a century and a half at least.

Other names like that of Wentworth, were more prominent for a time; men like Waldron, the Weares, Stark, Langdon, Sullivan and Scammel, performed more conspicuous services, or underwent more extraordinary trials; but the sturdy phalanx of Gilmans did more to keep up the steady course of the colony, the province and the state, certainly till 1815, than any two or three other families together.

The race of Richard Waldron, whom the Indians hacked to pieces at Dover, degenerated; the race of the Wentworths, after governing the province for nearly fifty years, divided at the Revolution, and lost its prestige in the new state; the stout farmer family of the Weares of Hampton Falls died out; but the Gilmans, though seldom in the highest places, for more than a century came gradually to the control of affairs, which they managed with energy, good sense, and a business talent that was indispensable, from 1775 till 1816, when Governor Gilman retired from public life.

During that period, old Col. Nicholas Gilman was state treasurer for eight years; his son John Taylor Gilman for nine years; another son, Col. Nat Gilman for eight years; another son, Capt. Nicholas Gilman, was a member of the Continental Congress two years, of the Convention of 1787, of the first four federal Congresses, and of the United States Senate for six years; making a term of congressional service of seventeen years.

John Taylor Gilman was governor of the state from 1794 till 1805, and again from 1813 to 1816; a longer period than any man ever held the office; he was also the predecessor of his brother Nicholas in the Continental Congress, from 1781 to 1783, and for two years, a commissioner under Washington to settle the war accounts of the states, which were assumed by the national government, in 1790, in the manner so pleasantly related by James Parton, in the September Atlantic.

Another useful officer in the revolution was Joseph Gilman, first cousin of old Colonel Nicholas, and son of Whitefield's dear friend, Rev. Nicholas Gilman of Durham. Joseph Gilman was a merchant and a man of wealth; a member of the New Hampshire committee of safety, and for sometime chairman of it. In the darkest period of the year of independence, just before Washington's victories at Trenton and Princeton changed the gloomy aspect of affairs, Sam Adams went from Boston to Exeter—the home of the Gilmans—to consult with Joseph Gilman about ways and means to support the army.

Mr. Gilman happened to be absent, and his wife attempted to engage Mr. Adams in conversation. His downcast looks and absent manner checked all her efforts; presently he rose from his chair, paced the room, and with tears and groans exclaimed, "O, my God, must we give it up?" This anecdote, preserved by our author, we have never before seen. After the war, Joseph Gilman removed to Ohio, and became judge of the northwest territory under Washington. From his son, Benjamin Ives Gilman, our author is descended.

Turning back now to the original ancestor of all the American Gilmans, we find that he was a parishioner of the Puritan minister of Hingham, England, Rev. Robert Peck, who, in 1638 came over to Massachusetts, with many of his people, and founded the town of Hingham. Mr. Peck was rector of Hingham from 1605 to 1638, and left his parish because his bishop persecuted him for Puritanism; he returned to England, as many of the ejected ministers did, (among them Nathaniel Ward of Ipswich and Stephen Bachelor of Hampton,) and from 1646 to 1656, when he died, was again rector of Hingham under Cromwell.

His parishioner, Edward Gilman, however, "with his wife, three sons and two daughters, and three servants," remained in New England, and spent his later years in Exeter, where his three sons were. The family was a rich one, and the sons became owners of broad lands in the present towns of Exeter, Brentwood and Newmarket, which were all included in the old town of Exeter. Their names were Edward, John and Moses; and it is from John, the New Hampshire councillor of 1680, that most of the famous Gilmans are descended.

He married Elizabeth Shapleigh, daughter of an English merchant who was agent for Sir Ferdinando Gorges, and was the father of sixteen children, born at Exeter between 1658 and 1684. Ten of these married and had families; one of them, Judge Nicholas Gilman, (1653—1741) left an estate of £34,000, and a "genealogy in the parlor" valued at 100 shillings, which Mr. Arthur Gilman regrets he has never been able to find, though one of his descendants.

Another son and namesake of Councillor John Gilman, was one of the twenty-four Gilmans who in 1727 received a grant of the town of Gilmanton, which they named. Among these twenty-four we find one judge, two colonels, two doctors, one reverend, one major, one captain and one lieutenant,—titles which serve to indicate the social standing of the Exeter Gilmans a century and a quarter ago.

"The reverend" was Nicholas Gilman, second of that name, who lived from 1707 to 1748, and who married into the family of Thing or Tyng, from which the doctors of divinity of that name are descended. Nicholas Gilman was a scholar and a spiritually-minded minister; he went to the Newburyport Latin School at eight years old, and graduated at Harvard college at seventeen, in 1724. At the age of twenty he took his master's degree at Cambridge, and thereupon gave the customary address in Latin,—his subject being, "Whether the essential dignity of Christ is the basis and foundation of religious worship. Of course he maintained the affirmative; being, it is very evident, an affirming rather than a denying Christian.

He began to preach at the same age, was married at twenty-three, and after preaching in various places, was settled at Durham, near Exeter, in 1742. His diary and papers now have great value, and throw much light on the way of life among clergy and people at that period. We learn that, in his junior year at Cambridge, 1723, "being greviously exercised with the headache, I cut off my hair;" three years after he was "exercised with the mumps,"—indeed, he seems to have been often "faint and failing in health," as he records in another place.

When he was settled at Durham, he made out what he calls a "Carnal Scheme," that is, a list of what he was to receive for salary; in which we find, 500 pounds of pork, 600 of beef, 30 of candles, 10 bushels of wheat, 15 of winter rye, 30 of Indian corn, 20 of winter apples, 5 of turnips, and three only of potatoes, which were a great luxury in 1742.

He also stipulated "for 40 cords of wood, 10 barrels of "cyder," 10 bushels of malt for beer, blank gallons of rum or wine, 20 gallons of molasses, and sugar, 1-2 a hund'd., such as may now be had by the cwt. for £17 10s. per cwt.," a pretty good price. even in the depreciated bills of credit of that period. In ready money he was to have £110 the first year, and then £10 more each year till it reached £150,—with more if money should depreciate more, and less if it rose in value. Such were the means of living for a New Hampshire minister in 1742.

Concluded to-morrow.

MOUNT WASHINGTON OBSERVATORY. A subscription paper will soon be circulated in this city in behalf of Prof. Hitchcock's scheme of stationing three scientific gentlemen on the summit of Mount Washington to observe phenomena there during the winter. The sum of two thousand dollars is needed, of which amount one-half has already been obtained. Very interesting results are expected from the observations, and the enterprise is commended by Professor Hyatt of the Natural History Society, Professor Runkle of the Institute of Technology, and by Agassiz and Henry.

The three gentlemen selected for this arduous duty—Messrs. Nelson, Clough and Huntington—expect to be snowed in at the Tip Top House from December till March, but an insulated cable is to be laid up the side of the mountain, and the public is to be furnished with a daily record of their observations and condition. The room in which they will remain during the coldest weather is to be lined with felt and then papered and carpeted, when with two stoves and twenty tons of coal they expect to exist without much suffering. The employees of the Mountain Railway Company are waiting at the foot of the mountain to take up the coal, which is to be purchased as soon as possible, and it is hoped that the money will be immediately subscribed.—Boston Advertiser.

The greater part of the road is already completed, and the earnings from the finished portion are already more than sufficient to pay operating expenses and interest on the bonds. The balance of the work is progressing rapidly, in time for the movement of the coming grain crops, which, when completed will double the present income of the road.

The established character of this line, running as it does through the heart of the most thickly settled and richest portion of the great State of Iowa, together with its present advanced condition and large earnings warrant us in unhesitatingly recommending these bonds to investors, as, in every respect, an undoubted security.

These bonds have 30 years to run, are convertible at the option of the holder into the stock of the company at par, and the payment of the principal is provided for by a sinking fund. The convertibility privilege attached to these bonds cannot fail to cause them at no distant day to command a market price considerably above par, besides paying about 9 per cent., currency, interest in the meanwhile. U. S. Five-twenties, at present prices only return five per cent.; and we regard the security equally safe.

Caveats, Specifications, Bonds, Assignments, and all papers or drawings for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made into American and Foreign works, to determine the validity and utility of Patents or inventions, and legal and other advice rendered on all matters touching the same. No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

During eight months the subscriber, in the course of his large practice, made on twice as many applications, SIXTEEN APPEALS, EVERY ONE of which was decided IN HIS FAVOR by the Commissioner of Patents.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents.'

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents.

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me THIRTEEN applications, in all but ONE of which patents have been granted, and that one is now pending. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. GOOD FARMING.—Every cultivator of the soil must first become acquainted with the physical character of each parcel he has under his charge, and then he will know what crops are adapted to the several localities. During the seven years Lakeside farm has been under our care, we have turned over and carefully examined about every rod of those portions suited to tillage. We know its "temper," constitutional and chemical peculiarities, as well as the peculiar traits in our horses. We have learned where to plant corn, and where to sow wheat, and not be disappointed in results.

We do not fret about wet and dry seasons, as we have proved the important point, that lands can be so selected and cultivated as to place crops beyond their influence in a very great degree. The season last year was particularly unpropitious for corn, and our readers have knowledge of the remarkable yield we secured. The present is fearfully dry and hot, so much so, that farmers in Eastern Massachusetts and New Hampshire are forced to concede the loss of their late crops. As we look out upon our fields, everything appears green and succulent.

Two judiciously selected plats for corn are covered with luxuriant foliage, and from the promise afforded, we predict a yield nearly or quite equal to that of last year. Fifty tons of hay have been mown from fields which, seven years ago, gave but about a dozen. It is certain that farmers must study the nature of their soils, and their adaptability to the different crops which it is thought desirable to raise. By drainage and deep tillage the physical condition of most lands can be completely changed, and with the supplying of such chemical agents as are needed, crops of every description can be raised, satisfactory and remunerative to the husbandman.—Journal of Chemistry.

ENERGETIC TAX-COLLECTING.—The Shanghai (China) News Letter of August 11, (for which we are indebted to Capt. Lester), has the following account of the manner in which a Chinese tax-gatherer manages things at Swatow. If the same plan was adopted in this country, the Republican majorities would be greatly increased in many places.

Business has been much disturbed of late, owing to the presence of a military mandarin with an army of several thousand men. He is charged with collecting taxes, which are in arrear since the incursions of the rebel forces in that part of the province. He goes to a village, and demands the delinquent taxpayers. If not at once given up, he burns the village. If they are surrendered, he beheads them. In a village near Swatow were counted a thousand houses, which had been fired by this collector of Imperial revenue. This method of collecting the excise tends to unsettle the markets inland, and prevents the sending to the market at the port the productions of the season.

For the Chronicle and Gazette.

HOOPS AND CHIGNONS.—Hoops, we all know, were re-introduced into the world of fashion by the Empress Eugenie, to (how shall we put it delicately?) to conceal the fact that one who might be expected to perpetuate the Napoleonic dynasty, would ere long appear. Nothing is too absurd or monstrous to those who give up their mighty minds to fashion. Hoops to a deformed woman, or to one in the condition of Eugenie, may be excusable. But to a woman well formed by nature, they are the subject of ridicule.

If we can conceive of any thing more ridiculous than hoops, (except for barrels,) it is chignons. The latter detestable fashion had its origin in Paris. As the Empress has gone down, may hoops and chignons go also with her. The latter injuriously affects the head. They are both disornamental. The former, since the escape of the Empress to England, has been abolished in Berlin, Prussia, and the latter is unanimously discarded by the ladies of Bangor, Me., and is rapidly going out of fashion in other sections.

"There is no one alive, who can live down
The unextinguishable laughter of mankind!"

Yours truly, Q.

Speaking of the fictitious report in circulation in Paris, that King William had committed suicide by sitting down on his helmet, a lunatic at our elbow suggests that that would play hel-mit any king—or any other man.—[Cincinnati Enquirer.

TO PHYSICIANS.

NEW YORK, AUG. 15th, 1868.

ALLOW ME TO CALL your attention to my PREPARATION OF COMPOUND EXTRACT BUCHU. The component parts are BUCHU, LONG LEAF, CUBEBS, JUNIPER BERRIES.

MODE OF PREPARATION.—Buchu, in vacuo, Juniper Berries, by distillation, to form a fine gin. Cubebs extracted by displacement with spirits obtained from Juniper Berries; very little sugar is used, and a small proportion of spirit. It is more palatable than any other in use.

Buchu, as prepared by Druggists, is of a dark color. It is a plant that emits its fragrance; the action of a flame destroys this (its active principle,) leaving a dark and glutinous decoction. Mine is the color of ingredients. The Buchu in my preparation predominates; the smallest quantity of the other ingredients are added, to prevent fermentation; upon inspection, it will be found not to be a Tincture, as made in Pharmacopœa, nor is it a Syrup—and therefore can be used in cases where fever or inflammation exist. In this, you have the knowledge of the ingredients and the mode of preparation.

Hoping that you will favor it with a trial, and that upon inspection it will meet with your approbation,

With a feeling of confidence,
I am, very respectfully,
H. T. HELMBOLD,
Chemist and Druggist of 19 Years' Experience.

[From the largest Manufacturing Chemists in the World.]

NOVEMBER 4, 1854.

"I am acquainted with Mr. H. T. Helmbold; he occupied the Drug Store opposite my residence and was successful in conducting the business where others had not been equally so before him. I have been favorably impressed with his character and enterprise."

WILLIAM WEIGHTMAN.

Firm of Powers & Weightman, Manufacturing Chemists, Ninth and Brown Streets, Philadelphia.

HELMBOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU, for weakness arising from indiscretion. The exhausted powers of Nature which are accompanied by so many alarming symptoms, among which will be found, Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Memory, Wakefulness, Horror of Disease, or Forebodings of Evil; in fact, Universal Lassitude, Prostration, and inability to enter into the enjoyments of society.

The constitution once affected with Organic Weakness, requires the aid of Medicine to strengthen and invigorate the system, which HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU invariably does. If no treatment is submitted to, Consumption or insanity ensues.

HELMBOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT OF BUCHU, in affections peculiar to Females, is unequalled by any other preparation, as in Chlorosis, or Retention, Painfulness, or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrus State of the Uterus, and all complaints incident to the sex, or the decline or change of life.

HELMBOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU AND IMPROVED ROSE WASH will radically exterminate from the system diseases arising from habits of dissipation, at little expense, little or no change in diet, no inconvenience or exposure; completely superseding those unpleasant and dangerous remedies, Copaiva and Mercury, in all these diseases.

Use HELMBOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU in all diseases of these organs, whether existing in male or female, from whatever cause originating and no matter of how long standing. It is pleasant in taste and odor, "immediate" in action, and more strengthening than any of the preparations of Bark or Iron.

Those suffering from broken-down or delicate constitutions, procure the remedy at once.

The reader must be aware that, however slight may be the attack of the above diseases, it is certain to affect the bodily health and mental powers.

All the above diseases require the aid of a Diuretic. HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is the great Diuretic.

Sold by Druggists everywhere. PRICE—$1.25 per bottle, or 6 bottles for $6.50. Delivered to any address. Describe symptoms in all communications.

WAR NOTES.—An important meeting of the English cabinet was held Friday, at which Sir Henry Bruce, the Duke of Argyll and others strenuously insisted on the duty of England to interfere for a settlement of the European war. But Her Majesty, Mr. Gladstone, Earl Granville and others represented that England could not consent to recognize the French provisional government, and was therefore powerless to prevent France from drowning.

M. Thiers has had no better success in St. Petersburg than in London and Vienna. The Czar declined to have any conference with him in an official way. However much Russia may fear Prussia, she is not disposed to favor republicanism in France.

A dispatch reports an important engagement on the Seine, west of Paris, on Tuesday, by which the army of the Crown Prince of Prussia was defeated and forced to evacuate Versailles. The French forces were heavily re-enforced on Monday by General Trochu, and advanced upon the German positions at Montreuil and Versailles early on Tuesday morning. The battle began at Viroflay and Velizy, the Germans contesting the French advance with desperate energy, until they were assailed by fresh columns advancing under the guns of Mont Valerien at St. Cloud, when a number of Baden troops mutinied on the battle field and refused to go under fire. The Crown Prince was finally compelled to order a retreat, abandoning Versailles to the French. The German columns were kept under a terrible fire from Mont Valerien, which covered their retreat into a post and [illegible] were driven in confusion beyond St. Germain. Night alone stopped the pursuit. The Germans lost five thousand prisoners, among whom are many officers of the staff of the Crown Prince of Prussia, and fifty cannon, including mitrailleurs. The road to Orleans and Tours is re-opened.

It is reported that the French have repulsed the Prussians at Nantes.

It has been determined by the British Cabinet to make a strong last appeal to Prussia to consent to peace, in consideration of the destruction of the fortresses of Alsace and Lorraine, without dismembering France. It is rumored that the position of England is taken in apprehension of the warlike movements of Russia.

The democrats in Germany are becoming loud in protesting against the unnecessary humiliation of France.

The St. Petersburg Gazette says that Russia's mission is one of peace and justice, and not of war. The bear is not going to interfere just yet.

London dispatches contradict the reported battle and French victory at Paris.

A big battle, in which both sides claim the advantage, was fought at Metz, Friday.

Gen. Bourbaki has escaped from Metz.

Another German army has crossed the Rhine.

☞ The Ordnance Bureau of the Navy Department has for sale over four hundred Parrott rifled guns of twenty and thirty pounds calibre, which were made at the various Navy Yards during the rebellion for service upon gunboats and light draught vessels in Southern rivers, but are of no use now, as all guns upon our naval vessels are of heavier calibre. These guns are perfectly new and are valued at from $500 to $800 each. Twenty of them are at the Portsmouth Yard, and forty-seven at the Boston Yard—the others are at the various Navy Yards throughout the country.

☞ A great number of private documents belonging to the French Emperor, which were recently seized at the Tuileries by the officers of the new government, have just been made public in the official journal of the Republic. Many noted persons of the old regime are implicated in scandals. The disclosures in regard to the private life of Napoleon substantiate all the charges the opposition ever made.

☞ The British brig Nancy was lost at sea in one of the recent gales. Her captain (Putnam) was picked up after being thirty-six hours on a plank, by the British schooner Ocean Bird, from Boston. He was the only person saved—his wife and child, another lady and seven children, and all the crew having perished.

☞ It is stated that the Ministry to England was tendered some weeks ago to Hon. Lot M. Morrill of Maine, who felt obliged to refuse the distinguished position.

—A deer country—A stag-nation.

☞ York County Cattle Show and Fair will be held at Saco and Biddeford, commencing Oct. 4th, and lasting five days.

THE MORMONS.—Slowly, but surely and effectually, the Mormons are being deprived of the power by which they ruled the Territory of Utah so long. Gov. Shaffer's proclamation disbanding Brigham Young's military forces, and preventing their reorganization in future, is swiftly followed by the decision of Chief Justice McKean, pronouncing null and void the Territorial legislation by which the Mormons have hitherto controlled the jury system of the Supreme and District Courts of Utah.

The enforcement of Gov. Shaffer's proclamation involves the destruction of the existing militia organization of of the Territory of Utah, which has been so carefully nursed and energetically maintained by Brigham Young during the last quarter of a century. It peremptorily prohibits all musters, drills, or gatherings of militia or armed persons of any nature or description in the Territory, and it also orders the immediate delivery to him of all arms or munitions of war belonging either to the United States or to the Territory of Utah, now in the hands of the militia.

We hope that President Grant will watch these proceedings. There is no necessity whatever, under present circumstances, for the Government's coming into military collision with the Mormons. The Pacific Railroad will very speedily cure all the Mormon troubles.

WHOLESALE HORSE THIEF.—About two months ago, a man giving his name as George Lewis enlisted at the Marine Barracks at the (Kittery, N. H.,) Navy Yard. Two weeks since he deserted, and was arrested and returned to the barracks by Deputy Sheriff Bartlett, of York County, Me., when it was discovered that the marine had stolen a team at Great Falls,—but as he is an enlisted man, the charge lays over till his term of service expires.

Last July, Mr. Chas. E. Stevens, an apothecary of East Cambridge, Mass., had his team stolen by a man whom he had employed four days previously. It was the hottest day of the season that the horse was taken, and the heartless thief drove the poor brute seventy miles, when he died from over-driving. Mr. Stevens advertised the thief in various ways; and it occurring to City Marshal Johnson (from the description and photograph of the man) that this Geo. Lewis was the fellow Mr. Stevens wanted, he telegraphed the latter, who answered by coming to this city, and in company with the Marshal and Officer Entwistle visited the Navy Yard barracks, where Mr. S. at once recognized Lewis as his man. The commanding officer gave the "horse dealer" up to civil authority, and he was taken to Massachusetts by Officer Entwistle, accompanied by Boston officers, Friday morning.

This horse-marine is also charged (since his arrest) with stealing a team from New Bedford, where he gave the name of Chas. Hanscom, some time ago. Both these Massachusetts thefts were committed previous to his enlistment; and we think our officers have done a good job in ferreting him out.

☞ The County Commissioners having some time since awarded the contract for laying the cellar of the new barn at the Farm at Brentwood, to Mr. Joseph R. Holmes of this city; and for building the barn and hospital, to Mr. Isaiah Wilson, of this city; both buildings are in a sufficient state of forwardness to be completed ere winter sets in.

The County House was by the last Legislature constituted a House of Correction for petty criminals from town Courts; but we learn that only a single case has been reported there,—and that a man from Exeter.

☞ The Boston Advertiser's Washington correspondent says; "the Navy Department is not particularly well pleased with the performance of our war vessels Brooklyn and Guerriere, the one running ashore in fair weather, and the other running down a schooner, both vessels being in plain sight of each other."

☞ At Hartford, Conn., about 1 o'clock, Friday morning, Patrick Murphy, aged 22, deliberately shot James Woods, with whom he was staying over night, in a sleeping room in a barn, where the latter was employed. The object was robbery. The injured man received two shots, and is in a dangerous condition.

☞ Moore and Haight, two of the Lime Rock Bank robbers, were sentenced to 7 years imprisonment each, at Rockland, Friday. Another one (Litchfield) was convicted, but is not yet sentenced. Daniels' case was continued on bail, he being so near dead with consumption that it isn't worth while to send him to jail.

THE OCEAN ROAD.—We mentioned recently, that a project is under consideration, to construct a drive-way along Hampton and Rye Beaches, from the Boars' Head Hotel to the Sagamore House. This ought to be done, and we think ere long will be done. It will pay well for doing—pay Rye better than everybody else; pay Hampton, Portsmouth, and all the State, even if the State should appropriate money toward the object. The town of Rye has grown rich out of the business of summer boarders, who were and are attracted there by the hotels, and who would never come there again if these hotels were removed,—after all that is said.

And whereas formerly, the windows of many an old Rye habitation were ornamented with old hats, now most of the proprietors have good houses, and money to spare,—there be those who think that the town owes something to the agency which brought about this improved condition of things. Of course, the talk of anybody's going direct to the County Commissioners for any road, is all idle and ignorant twaddle; inasmuch as everybody knows, who knows anything about it, that the Commissioners can only act on a road case when presented to them by the Court, and after Selectmen or Aldermen have declined to grant a petition for highway.

It is understood that the town of Hampton will probably vote to help build the road,—which it is designed to ask for above high water mark, and not quite down on the flats, and a large portion of which is already constructed, in the existing highways. Rye is expected to oppose it, as she always does all improvements which cost a dollar; but we hope she will be obliged to do her share towards so good an object, and we think the probabilities are that she will, notwithstanding all copperhead and muttonhead blowers.

THE PROHIBITIONISTS.—The State Committe of the Temperance Party of this State held a meeting at the Elm House, in Concord, Wednesday. The representative men were present from the various counties to the number of about thirty. The forenoon was devoted to talk upon the cause, with a view to agreeing upon the party policy during the campaign. The conclusion arrived at was to go ahead and carry out the aims of the party, if possible.

☞ Further accounts from Virginia state that the freshet, Friday, was tremendous. The North Anna and James rivers rose to a great height, sweeping away bridges, houses and cattle, and doing immense damage to railroads and private property on the land.

☞ The remains of Adm. Farragut were deposited in their final resting place, Woodlawn Cemetery, N. Y., Friday. The funeral demonstration, though seriously hindered by the storm, was fully carried out, in accordance with the previous arrangements.

AN ENEMY IN YOUR MOUTH.—Do not put an enemy in your mouth, to steal away your teeth. Beware of destructive tooth washes, and tooth powders, many of which are base imitations of SOZODONT. Insure a life lease of sound teeth and fragrant breath, by adopting the fragrant SOZODONT.

"SPALDING'S GLUE," handy about the house, mends everything.

☞ Mr. B. F. Webster has sold his land, buildings and wharf on Bow Street, near the Gas Works, to Messrs. Harris (of New York) & Mathes (of this city,) for a Brewery; and has bought land on the flats at the foot of Rogers Street, off State, and put up a large wooden building on posts, for a joiner's shop, &c. There is a fine spring of excellent water on the premises of the new brewery.

☞ The Essex (Mass.) Agricultural Society offers some sensible premiums. Among them are $100 for a new, cheap and effectual remedy for the canker worm; $100 for a new variety of winter apples equal to the Baldwin; $10, $8 and $5 for fat cattle, with statement of expense, manner of feed, &c.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Bear in Mind.

When disease has undermined the health, and the physical system has become prostrated, a stimulant that will not only strengthen, but remove the cause, should be immediately resorted to. Mental distress is also a fruitful source of the breaking down of the constitution, and the ravages of this enemy to health are truly alarming. For all such maladies HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS have been found unsurpassed. By acting directly upon the digestive organs, they remove the heavy, disagreeable feeling after eating, so often complained of by persons of a delicate temperament. As soon as digestion is restored, the patient finds his strength increasing, and his general health improved.

Thousands of persons certify that it may be relied on in all cases of weakness or nervous debility attendant upon sedentary habits. The generality of Bitters are so disagreeable to the taste that they are objectionable to a weak stomach. This is not the case with Hostetter's Bitters, which will be found mild and extremely pleasant. Balsamic plants, barks and roots contribute their restorative juices to render it soothing and strengthening. Its basis is the only pure stimulant which has ever been produced, containing no fusil oil, or any other deleterious element. The most careful and skillful chemists have analyzed the Bitters, and pronounce them harmless. This is scientific testimony; but the testimony of the hundreds of thousands who have experienced the preventive and curative effects of the GREAT VEGETABLE TONIC and ALTERATIVE for modern times is still more conclusive. In Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Nervous Complaints, Chronic Complaints and general debility it is as nearly infallible as anything in this fallible world can be. oldawlw

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

New Advertisements to-day.

Notice—Mrs. S. C. Jewell.
Theatre—Bidwell's Dramatic Company.
A Column of Varieties on 1st page, from the Advertising Agency of Danchy & Co., New York.

HON. FRANK JONES.—This gentleman pays by far the largest tax in Portsmouth, $2360.16, as per our table published a few days since. This is doing pretty well, for a boy who twenty years ago made his first appearance in the city, driving a charcoal cart from his home in Barrington. He afterwards drove a tin cart for some time, then kept a stove and tin store, and for years has been largely engaged in the brewery business—all which many of our citizens know.

Some people would not desire money made in any department of the liquor business; but whatever Mr. Jones' hands have found to do, he has always done with his whole might, and he is one of the most indefatigable of workers, and a man of remarkable executive ability, such as always succeed in any occupation. He laid the foundation of his fortune in the stove trade, and would make money anywhere; and without in the least defending or approving the ale or rum business, we fail to see how the brewer is so much more responsible or blameworthy, than the man who lets his building for the sale of liquors, the shippers or expressmen who carry them, or many others who secondarily aid in the business.

While we have never hesitated to differ with Mr. J., politically or otherwise, when occasion demanded; neither have we been slow to acknowledge his enterprise, public spirit and liberality. Few men have ever done more for the city, since its original settlement. He was largely instrumental in rebuilding Congress Block; his donations for the High School Library and a Public Library are well known; and his present enterprise of enlarging the Rockingham House, and for the first time giving Portsmouth a first-class hotel, is to us another evidence of public spirit. And whatever be the object,—whether a church or a trotting park, whether a public or private call,—his pocket is always open to do his full share.

Men shrewder than Ex-Mayor Jones, are scarce; and of course he was well aware that it would "pay" him a larger per cent. direct, to put his money into bonds or foreign stocks, as is so popular hereabouts, rather than invest it in real estate like the splendid hotel and the Block named; but such buildings, especially an attractive public house, are a benefit to a city, and we rejoice that we have at least one man to help us to them. The new and large brewery he is now putting up, near the site of his old one, and close to his malt-house, is merely an incidental with him.

Mr. Jones' operations at his rural residence near the city, are sufficiently extensive to occupy the whole time of an ordinary man in overseeing and planning, as is evinced by the large herd of stock he sent to the recent N. E. Fair at Manchester; and he is fast making one of the best farms in the State there. Ten such men would create a new city anywhere; and one like him will do more to enliven and develope an old place, than five hundred of those who never work with their hands, their brains or their money, but prefer to live on their grandfather's reputation, and subsist by beating down market women. We wouldn't give Frank Jones, with all his faults, for a thousand such.

We commenced to write half a dozen lines, in admiration of the spacious and elegant new Hotel, now approaching completion, and have ended in the above, written solely to express our regard for a live man. And the fact that he owns, also, the insignificant Opposition sheet, whose chief capital is to blackguard this Chronicle and belie its editors, does not ruffle our feelings (or affect our business) in the least.

We hardly need add, that Mr. Jones has had the honor of being Mayor of Portsmouth—and a good one; and is now talked of for the Democratic candidate for Governor of the State—which we would as soon see him be, as any member of his party.

☞ All Entries for Premiums at the coming Piscataqua Fair, are to be made without charge. Mr. Charles W. Marden of Greenland will be Chief Marshal, and Mr. Joseph R. Holmes of this city Superintendent—both good officers.

☞ The scholars of the Haven School have presented Mr. B. F. Dame, their late teacher, with a silver spoon receiver, gold-lined, and a set of gold studs. Handsome presents from appreciative pupils to a loved teacher.

☞ The body of Capt. Alfred Foster, who was lost overboard from schooner Columbia in the lower harbor, has been found floating above Freeman's Point.

☞ Twenty-eight persons were received into the Methodist church in this city Sunday, by profession, and several by letter.

☞ It is reported that the Navy Yard Steam Fire Engine floated up river with the anchor boy, and anchors that craft near "Frank Fort."

☞ It cost just about $1000 to fill up the Creek cess-pool, besides the value of the gravel used. It was done by order of the Health Officers, who claim that the owner of the land, Capt. H. Eldredge, is liable for the expense. Why don't the Board of Health abate the Slaughter House nuisances at the South End?

☞ Steamer Sagamore, No. 2, of Portsmouth, threw a stream of water 174 feet 8 inches, at the Haverhill Muster. The greatest distance made by any of the 17 steam fire engines competing, was 224 feet 4 inches. The three engines which did best are all of Amoskeag manufacture. Of hand engines, 31 competed; and the longest stream reached 212 feet 6 inches. It rained there a few, but the boys didn't mind it. No drunkenness was manifest, and the best of good order and good nature prevailed.

Sagamore Engine Company, accompanied by the Portsmouth Cornet Band, returned to this city, Saturday evening.

MUCH TOO SAFE.—The wife of a very energetic and well known business agent in this city, one day last week cashed a $290 check, at the bank on which it was drawn. Not liking the appearance of several men who saw her with the money, the lady on her arrival home looked about for some secure place in which to hide it, and finally decided that the stove was as safe a place as any; so the precious paper was therein deposited. Next morning, forgetting all about the $290, she built a nice fire, which naturally resulted in the utter demoralization and retreat of the greenbacks. Her husband, (who has had many hard rubs in his day, and has seen too much of the world to waste tears over spilt milk,) consoles himself for the loss by reflecting that the money is quite safe from moths, rust and thieves, at any rate.

THE QUINCUPLEXAL EXPOSITION at the Temple, Saturday evening, was a first-rate entertainment of its kind—the best that has been here for a good while, as it had more variety than Florence's Sensation Troupe, and the show of Morris Brothers' was nowhere in comparison—the latter seeming to think their former reputation enough to run on, without any longer endeavoring to please the public.

The Quincuplexal show is expensively got up, and the nonsense is really amusing; the Cocoanut Dance and Charley Shay's balancing feats are capital, and the orchestral performance ditto; the trained dogs are remarkably well trained and intelligent, the Farce and Burlesque full of fun, and the ballet dancing such as to please all who care for such dancing at all. The audience was very fair, (for a Saturday evening,) and enjoyed the entertainment greatly. The performance is to be repeated this evening,—to a full house, judging from what we have heard outside. One thing we must notice and commend, is the promptitude with which the exercises commenced, and with which the whole programme was carried out, all through the evening.

THE GILMAN FAMILY.

In 1744, just before the Louisburg expedition, Whitefield visited New Hampshire, stirring up the devout everywhere, and awakening dissensions among them. Mr. Gilman received him in Durham as a faithful friend, and thereby aroused the ill will of the opponents of Whitefield. In May, 1744, the Durham minister wrote to Paine Wingate, of Amesbury,—"I make no doubt but that you are convinced we live in a very important day—concerning which there are very different sentiments among men—and it can be no matter of indifference what our thoughts are about so glorious a work. The Author of it is no idle, unconcerned spectator of the treatment it meets with, especially from ministers, who ought to have led in such a reformation. They create themselves a great deal of fruitless uneasiness who oppose this glorious work—they deny themselves a great deal of pleasure that do not labor to promote it. This is to entreat you, dear sir, to come to the help of the Lord against the mighty."

He also wrote and published an elaborate defence of Whitefield; but he could sometimes reprove his eloquent friend, as his letter of March 3, 1745, bears witness. The occasion of this letter was what passed at Sir William Pepperell's house in Kittery, near Portsmouth, just before that officer set out for the capture of Louisburg; when Mr. Gilman, who had some doubt of the disinterested zeal of Pepperell, thought that Whitefield flattered the flourishing great man too much. He writes thus to Whitefield at Portsmouth:—

"I have loved you tenderly now about five years, even before I saw your face, and if I should feel any other disposition toward you, it would be a matter of great grief to me. But why do I make any apology, while you are willing to know what the matter is, and I must speak plain? As to ye affair that concerns me most especially, it was what occurred at General Pepperell's house. Recall to mind, dear sir, did you not openly and explicitly thank Almighty God that he had put it into his heart to go on this expedition? Did you not bless God on the behalf of the Society that He had inclined him to leave all for Christ? Did you not tell Almighty God how sure we were that the General was not—that he could not be, influenced by any secular motives? And did you pray thus by the spirit of God, or word of God, or consistent with known truth? Indeed, these are glorious things, if true. You might well, dear sir, praise the Lord on this account, and do it before him, too, were you sure that he was free from every spark of pride and self-righteousness; but to me it seems encomium enough for an Immortal. What greater could be said? And your blessing God for it must pass for compliment till you are sufficiently satisfied of the truth. And are you so indeed, dear sir? Permit me to be free; I hope that you love and chose that I should be so. * * * * Would it be no advantage to his Estate to win the place? May be not have a prospect of doubling his wealth and honors if crowned with success? What demonstration has he given of being so entirely devoted to the Lord? He has a vast many talents; is it an easy thing for so wise a man to become a fool for Christ—so great a man to become a little child—so rich a man to crowd in at the straight gate of a conversion, and make so little noise?"

These were searching questions, and Mr. Gilman was not content with putting them to Whitefield. He wrote the same day to Pepperell himself, and laid the same inquires courteously before the great man, who, it is to be hoped, could answer them honestly. Whitefield gave Pepperell the motto for his flag,—Nil desperandum, Christo duce. Twenty-five years afterward he preached at Exeter in the fields, and died the next day at Newburyport, where he lies buried. Rev. Daniel Rogers of Exeter, a descendant of the martyr and a kinsman of Mr. Gilman, preached his funeral sermon, but the warm-hearted minister of Durham had been dead twenty-two years when his friend died.

The blood of the Gilmans, in the course of two centuries and a half, has become mingled with that of hundreds of other families besides that of the martyr, John Rogers; with the Wentworths, the Folsoms, the Emerys, of New Hampshire; the Robbinses, Hales, Lorings, Phillipses and Howards of Massachusetts; the Ives family of Rhode Island, and many more, whose names appear in this genealogy.

The Gilman name is now scattered over the whole country, and represented by conspicuous persons in Maine, Connecticut, New York, and many other states. But its chief home is still New Hampshire, particularly in Rockingham county. In the catalogue of Phillips' Exeter academy, there are 58 Gilmans, more than of any other name, except Smith, which has 72 representatives. In Mr. Gilman's volume some 1,000 Gilmans are mentioned, and we only notice one, Peter Gilman, who was even suspected of being a tory in the Revolution, and he afterward served in the continental army. Their record in the rebellion was about the same; and in all the relations of life they seem to have been worthy and estimable with few exceptions.

Mr. Gilman's volume is elegantly printed by Joel Munsell of Albany, and adorned with a few portraits and views of places, beautifully engraved. The two old houses in Exeter are faithfully given, and so, no doubt, are the views in Hingham, the English home of the Gilmans, where the name is still kept up. All libraries that deal in local history should possess themselves of the book, for it is a great treasure. The author had good materials, and has used them well.

According to the Jewish calendar, Monday was the five thousand six hundred and thirty-first anniversary of the creation of the world. The day was properly observed by the Jews of Dover.

Herman Hill, son of Capt. Lebbeus Hill, fell from a walnut tree in Dover, and broke the large bone of the left fore arm, which was also forced through the flesh.

As Mr. Barnard Quinn, at the Sand Paper mill in Dover, was attempting to shift a belt while the machinery was in motion, he caught his sleeve on the shaft, around which he was carried, tearing off his left arm above the elbow and crushing the bone of the left leg into several pieces. Doctors amputated the stump and set the bones of the leg, but the injuries were so severe that he died the same evening.

Rev. George B. Spalding of Dover returned from his European tour, in the steamer Samaria, after an absence of eleven weeks.

Isaac W. Smith, Esq., has resigned the Secretaryship of the New Hampshire Fire Insurance Co., and John C. French, Esq., the energetic General Agent, has been elected his successor. Mr. Smith resumes the practice of law in Manchester.

The Prohibitionists of the State, at their meeting at Concord a few days since, declared they will trust neither of the great political parties.

Sheriff Jones has appointed Jacob Drew, of Strafford, Jailer, from the first of October, at Dover.

The only Consecration of a Bishop that ever took place in this State, was that of William Woodruff Niles, D. D., at St. Paul's (Episcopal) Church, Concord, last week. The new Bishop decides to reside in Concord, which don't please all the Portsmouth parish, who have to pay about one-fourth of his salary.

Stm. Fire Engine Kearsarge, of Concord, exploded its air chamber and shattered one of its lanterns, while pumping water from the river for chemical uses, on Wednesday, but no one was much hurt.

A quarterly meeting of the N. H. Historical Society was held in Concord last week. A committee was appointed, consisting of John J. Bell, of Exeter, Dr. Bouton, and Amos Hadley, of Concord, to consider the subject of Town Histories, to ascertain how many have been written, and to report some means to stimulate the work of preparing others. A resolution was passed requesting Judge Nesmith to prepare a history of the towns of Salisbury and Franklin. Prof. Daniel Noyes, of Dartmouth College, was appointed to prepare a biographical sketch of Judge Upham, to be read at the next quarterly meeting of the Society, in December.

M. M. R. Varney was arrested by Marshal Abbott in Dover for stealing a horse from Amos Cousens near Eliot Depot; carried to South Berwick, and bound over in the sum of $500 to appear at the next term of Court. The horse was found in Barrington, where Varney had sold him.

Mr. John Twombly died very suddenly in Dover last week from a paralytic difficulty, aged about 81 years. He was among the famous Dartmoor prisoners in the war of 1812. He had been a very industrious, active man up to a recent period.

An old copperhead recently deceased in North Hampton, having provided in his will that no minister should officiate at his funeral who had ever preached political sermons, and an opposition print stating that "no clergymen without blood on his garments was found in the neighborhood," the Journal asks, "Did the deceased go to his grave 'without benefit of clergy'—as the democratic party itself did some years ago?"

Rev. Mr. Park has received a unanimous call from the Free Will Baptist Church in Farmington, to become their pastor at a salary of $1000, and probably will accept the call.

Rev. A. F. Marsh, pastor of the Congregational church of Rochester, has accepted a call from the Congregational society at Shelburne, Mass.

THE NOMENCLATURE OF THE RAILROAD often reflects the good or bad taste of its managers. The Eastern has on its main line and branches forty-seven locomotives. Its terminals are honored in the names of Boston, Portsmouth, City of Portland, Lawrence, Rockport, &c. On its line the ancient name Maverick is still kept up, and towns and cities places of note, and rivers seem to be commemorated. Beginning with Chelsea, we have Nahant, City of Lynn, Swampscot, Salem, Naumkeag, Marblehead, Beverly, Ipswich, Agawam, Danvers, Newburyport, Salisbury, Hampton, Rye Beach, Great Falls, Cape Ann.

It has Essex, Rockingham and Carroll, named for counties. Its Ex-Presidents are remembered in George Peabody, D. A. Neal, Albert Thorndike and John Howe, while "Gov. Endicott" still runs and "Col. Adams" is as good as new. Binney and Bryant are names of deceased Directors. Excelsior and Conqueror are suggestive of the renewed efforts of the management to keep pace with the age, while the Union and Ironsides shew that a patriotic sentiment comes from the machine shops. The engines, of late, have received names of Shakesperian heroes. "King Lear" faces the storm with calm indifference. Othello's occupation's gone, only when the "shifting" is completed for the night at the Portsmouth station. Hamlet and Coriolanus make their exits and entrances at our depot with commendable promptitude, while the conductor on the express trains that are drawn by Macbeth, doubtless believes"

"If it were done, when 'tl's done, then 'twere well it were done quickly.—Journal.

☞ The silk culture of California is rapidly becoming an important interest, and bids fair in a very few years to rival even the gold production. A large number of silk establishments have recently been organized, the largest of which is known as the California Silk Culture Company.

—Immodest act—Stripping to the task.

TO PHYSICIANS.

NEW YORK, AUG. 15th, 1868.

ALLOW ME TO CALL your attention to my PREPARATION OF COMPOUND EXTRACT BUCHU. The component parts are BUCHU, LONG LEAF, CUBEBS, JUNIPER BERRIES.

MODE OF PREPARATION.—Buchu, in vacuo, Juniper Berries, by distillation, to form a fine gin. Cubebs extracted by displacement with spirits obtained from Juniper Berries; very little sugar is used, and a small proportion of spirit. It is more palatable than any other in use.

Buchu, as prepared by Druggists, is of a dark color. It is a plant that emits its fragrance; the action of a flame destroys this (its active principle,) leaving a dark and glutinous decoction. Mine is the color of ingredients. The Buchu in my preparation predominates; the smallest quantity of the other ingredients are added, to prevent fermentation; upon inspection, it will be found not to be a Tincture, as made in Pharmacopœia, nor is it a Syrup—and therefore can be used in cases where fever or inflammation exist. In this, you have the knowledge of the ingredients and the mode of preparation.

Hoping that you will favor it with a trial, and that upon inspection it will meet with your approbation,

With a feeling of confidence,
I am, very respectfully,
H. T. HELMBOLD,

Chemist and Druggist of 10 Years' Experience.

[From the largest Manufacturing Chemists in the World.]

NOVEMBER 4, 1854.

"I am acquainted with Mr. H. T. Helmbold; he occupied the Drug Store opposite my residence and was successful in conducting the business where others had not been equally so before him. I have been favorably impressed with his character and enterprise."

WILLIAM WEIGHTMAN.

Firm of Powers & Weightman, Manufacturing Chemists, Ninth and Brown Streets, Philadelphia.

HELMBOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU, for weakness arising from indiscretion. The exhausted powers of Nature which are accompanied by so many alarming symptoms, among which will be found, Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Memory, Wakefulness, Horror of Disease, or Forebodings of Evil; in fact, Universal Lassitude, Prostration, and inability to enter into the enjoyments of society.

The constitution once affected with Organic Weakness, requires the aid of Medicine to strengthen and invigorate the system, which HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU invariably does. If no treatment is submitted to, Consumption or insanity ensues.

HELMBOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT of BUCHU, in affections peculiar to Females, is unequalled by any other preparation, as in Chlorosis, or Retention, Painfulness, or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrus State of the Uterus, and all complaints incident to the sex, or the decline or change of life.

HELMBOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU AND IMPROVED ROSE WASH will radically exterminate from the system diseases arising from habits of dissipation, at little expense, little or no change in diet, no inconvenience or exposure; completely superseding those unpleasant and dangerous remedies, Copaiva and Mercury, in all these diseases.

Use HELMBOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU in all diseases of these organs, whether existing in male or female, from whatever cause originating and no matter of how long standing. It is pleasant in taste and odor, "immediate" in action, and more strengthening than any of the preparations of Bark or Iron.

Those suffering from broken-down or delicate constitutions, procure the remedy at once.

The reader must be aware that, however slight may be the attack of the above diseases, it is certain to affect the bodily health and mental powers.

All the above diseases require the aid of a Diuretic. HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is the great Diuretic.

Sold by Druggists everywhere. PRICE—$1.25 per bottle, or 6 bottles for $6.50. Delivered to any address. Describe symptoms in all communications.

TUESDAY, OCT. 4, 1870.

WILL THE TIDE TURN?—Before the fall of Napoleon the sympathies of nearly all nations were with the Prussians. The downfall of the French Empire and the rise of the Republic has given a new character to the struggle. That Napoleon began the war was as evident as the fact that Bismark desired it. The victorious Prussians should have made terms of peace after Sedan, that would have redounded to their credit and afforded France an opportunity to accept without dishonor. Prussia, however, flushed with success, offers degrading terms, at once insolent and dishonorable. That France declines, is creditable to that nation's manhood. And now the combat assumes a new phase. France becomes a vast military camp, England is alarmed at Prussian ideas of aggrandizement and public opinion, which sided with Prussia against the Empire now inclines towards the Republic against its insulting invaders. The Prussians are no longer fighting for a principle whose moral effects serves to inspire them, but are warring against a cause that inspires their foes with the grandest of all national motives—the love of the country of their birth.

It is a noticeable fact that since the fall of Sedan, and the declaration of the Republic, with the regular French armies shut up or destroyed, the Prussians have won but few substantial successes. They have suffered severely from attacks on and sorties from garrisoned towns, and at last King William orders preparations for a winter campaign, which the German people murmur against, as the past two months, with its brilliant victories, has brought woe to nearly every household.

The Prussian army beleaguers Paris, but it waits. Every day's delay gives strength to the French cause and weakness to its Prussian enemies. A fall and winter campaign means a vastly increased mortality, from disease and increased exposure in camp. The grand Prussian army may storm Paris, perhaps carry it, with fearful loss of life. It may sit down and hope for its surrender from starvation, as at Strasbourg. France has five large armies recruiting outside of Paris. These armies may yet compel the evacuation of French soil, by harrassing the rear of the Prussians and cutting their lines of communication. An extended campaign is fraught with peril to the invaders, which past campaigns should warn them of.

During the reign of Charles the Fifth of Germany, there were three invasions of France, all resulting in loss to the invaders and a gain of territory to France. In 1535, Marseilles and Avignon were besieged by the Germans, at the time the French were defending themselves from invasion from Flanders. The French, avoiding battle, constantly retreated before the victorious Germans, who found themselves attacked by disease and famine when autumn came, and retreated with a demoralized army, half of which never saw Germany again. Again in 1544, a large German army marched on Paris, but the return of the autumn months left them in the same condition as in 1535, suffering great losses, famishing and retreating ingloriously. At that time the German Emperor controlled Austria, Spain, Naples and the Netherlands. Eight years later France was again invaded, and Metz was besieged, as it is now. In October, rain storms set in, and snow soon followed. The garrison made frequent sorties, convoys of provisions were cut off, disease and famine did its work, and having lost half his army, the German Emperor abandoned the siege on the 26th of December. The French garrison pursued them, and found the deserted Imperial camp filled with the sick, the dying and the dead, while the line of the Prussian retreat was strewn with soldiers too weak to continue with their comrades.

The Prussian armies are larger at this time than in any previous invasion, but their safety lies in fighting, for their increased numbers only add to the dangers from famine and disease. Will history again repeat itself in this campaign?

KEEP THEM OUT. — An indignation meeting has been held at Belleville, N. J., to protest against the introduction of Chinese labor.—Exchange.

The terrible Chinese! they are going to ruin the country, to flood the land with underpaid labor, to reduce all working men to the condition of paupers, and force us all to live solely on rice. At least, this state of affairs is expected to follow the Chinamen's advent here, judging from the outcry raised.

One of my earliest recollections is of a dismal foreboding, of some day being obliged to work for a mere pittance, and to subsist entirely on potatoes and salt—a fear occasioned by the gloomy view taken by many laboring men with whom I was acquainted, that the great numbers of Irish laborers then arriving in this section of the country to work on the railroads, would ruin the natives' good wages by working much cheaper than the latter could do, as soon as the railroads were finished. But the Irish came, and the railroads have been built for years; yet I have not yet been reduced to potatoes and salt — in this country, at least—nor are wages any lower now than they were when I was a boy. On the contrary, I remember that formerly, when wages were very high, Mr. Chas. Hayes was spoken of as being very hard pushed for help one year, when he paid a man $22 per month in the hay season! and the man was a crack mower, too. Mr. Hayes would probably be very glad to get first-rate farm hands — sober, trusty man, this one was,—at $22 a month in haying time, nowadays. And the Irish population is now looked upon as a very important and valuable element of society, by at least one of the great political parties of the day.

The liberation of the southern slaves, also, was going to "degrade labor,"—as though labor could be degraded in any way, more than by making the laborer a domestic animal, to be bought and sold at will! And it was to ruin the prospects and wages of white labor, and make us a nation of paupers, dependent on a small upper class for a bare existence, like the laboring population of Great Britain. But the slaves were set free—yet wages for white labor, in the North, are to-day higher than they were before the Rebellion; and if labor in the South has been ruined by emancipation, it is a little odd that the first move for importing Chinese laborers to the Atlantic coast should be made by a convention of southern planters, because labor—white or black—was too highly paid!

Even the introduction of labor-saving machinery has occasioned terrible anxiety and bitter opposition. The loom was not introduced into England without riots, fire-raisings and assasinations being brought into play to oppose it—because its introduction was going to ruin the laboring class! And gloomy forebodings were indulged in by many when railroads were first started—not only was the vast stage-coach interest to go under, (as indeed it has), but horses were to become valueless and farmers to be ruined. Yet neither looms nor railroads now frighten people — and horses are not extinct.

I have lived in countries where Chinamen were numerous, and the prejudice against them quite as strong as it is here; and I do not fear competition with Chinese any more than with Irish or African labor. The same talk which we have here, of labor being degraded and wages being reduced by Chinese labor, I heard years ago in Australia and New Zealand; but the Chinese were long since acknowledged to be an important contribution to the material prosperity of Australia, and the New Zealanders, after opposing their immigration for years, actually sent agents to Australia inviting them to come over; and anything which should prevent the Chinese from landing on their shores or settling on their unoccupied lands, would now be considered a calamity in either of those countries.

The Irish and other Europeans came here by the hundred thousand, and labor was not degraded nor wages lessened; our black slaves were liberated by millions, and still honest industry is honorable, and better paid in this country than in any land of the earth; and the Chinese, too, can come by thousands, and find room to live without crowding anybody off the edge of Uncle Sam's dominions, and get paid for their labor without others being degraded or obliged to work for nothing, in consequence. There is no necessity for us to set up the barrier of race and national exclusiveness, which China, after having tried for centuries to her own ill, is now engaged in tearing down. I do not question the right of any man who is terrified by the Chinese, to sing out against them—only I am not frightened, and so do not sing out that way. PAKEHA.

OUR M. C.—We published a communication from "W." a few days since, rather complaining that Mr. Ela has not effected more for the Navy Yard and forts in this harbor. We also gave Mr, Ela's reply. The Concord Monitor, speaking of W's communication, says:

Without intending to take any part at present, in the question whether the people of the First District shall or shall not be "reconciled to his (Mr. Ela's) retirement" from Congress at the close of the present term, we beg leave to say to "W." and others likeminded, though it may be an advantage to a few persons in Portsmouth to have the National Treasury bankrupted for the purpose of stationing useless troops in that city, the people who elected Mr. Ela, and pay the public taxes, will hardly hold their representative to too severe an account because "his forte is economy." If there is any quality which the people especially value in their public servants, at the present time, it is this very quality of "economy" which such as this Chronicle correspondent think so contemptible.

Now we still fail to see, after all said by Mr. Ela, why a portion of the U. S. troops, not in active service elsewhere, might not as well be stationed some at both of the forts in this harbor, as at any others—for we regard as idle, the excuse that there is not room for them to drill here. We did not understand "W." to recommend or desire the enlistment of new men to send here; and troops can certainly as well subsist at Fort Constitution or McClary as at Fort Warren or Preble.

When Gen. McDowell, who we believe is in command of this Military District, was here at the original Farragut funeral, he visited Fort Constitution, and stated that he should immediately order a Company of Artillery to be sent there; but for some reason or other, they have never appeared. Whether stronger application was made for them to remain in Boston, or to go elsewhere, we cannot say; but it was then understood, that owing to the construction of new barracks at one of the Boston forts, it would be inconvenient to accommodate all the troops there.

We have no especial fault to find with anybody respecting this matter, but why a few of Uncle Sam's soldiers may not as well be here as anywhere, we cannot understand. Neither do we believe that the best economist is always or usually he who spends least money—though this remark we do not intend for special application to either side of this discussion.

☞ The Italian plebiscite voted on Sunday was thus stated:—"Is a union with the kingdom of Italy, under the constitution of Victor Emanuel and his successors, desirable?" The King awaited the result at Florence. The Pope ordered his adherents to abstain from voting on the plebiscitum. The Romans voted nearly unanimously in favor of Italian unity.

☞ The death of Lord Mayo, Viceroy of India, is announced.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Bear in Mind.

When disease has undermined the health, and the physical system has become prostrated, a stimulant that will not only strengthen, but remove the cause, should be immediately resorted to. Mental distress is also a fruitful source of the breaking down of the constitution, and the ravages of this enemy to health are truly alarming. For all such maladies HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS have been found unsurpassed. By acting directly upon the digestive organs, they remove the heavy, disagreeable feeling after eating, so often complained of by persons of a delicate temperament. As soon as digestion is restored, the patient finds his strength increasing, and his general health improved.

Thousands of persons certify that it may be relied on in all cases of weakness or nervous debility attendant upon sedentary habits. The generality of Bitters are so disagreeable to the taste that they are objectionable to a weak stomach. This is not the case with Hostetter's Bitters, which will be found mild and extremely pleasant. Balsamic plants, barks and roots contribute their restorative juices to render it soothing and strengthening. Its basis is the only pure stimulant which has ever been produced, containing no fusil oil, or any other deleterious element. The most careful and skilful chemists have submitted the Bitters, and pronounce them harmless. This is scientific testimony; but the testimony of the hundreds of thousands who have experienced the preventive and curative effects of the GREAT VEGETABLE TONIC and ALTERATIVE of modern times is still more conclusive. In Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Nervous Complaints, Chronic Complaints and general debility it is as nearly infallible as anything in this fallible world can be. oldawiw

New Advertisements to-day.

New Raisins—Butler & Laighton.
For Sale—Steam Tug "Clara Bateman."
Fall Opening—C. H. Mendum & Co.

MRS. TRACY'S JUBILEE opens at the Temple this evening.

PERSONAL.—Rev. I. F. Waterhouse of Clinton, Mass., was in town on Monday, looking as jolly and good natured as of old.

☞ Gen. John A. Logan's very interesting Address before the last National Encampment, Grand Army of the Republic, will be read at the meeting of Storer Encampment, this evening.

PROMPT.—A cargo of new Raisins arrived in Boston Sunday, the fruit was sold at auction Monday at 10 o'clock, and a portion of it was received by Butler & Laighton in this city at half-past 2, and is advertised for sale this morning.

THE FALL TRADE has set in, and Messrs. C. H. Mendum & Co., L. Blumauer & Co., and Ham & Co. take the best opportunity to notify their customers that they have filled their establishments with full stocks, now ready for inspection.

☞ Mr. Meshach H. Bell, Jr., has left on our table some of the sweetest specimens of grapes ever raised in this vicinity, and that is saying a great deal for this year of prolific fruits. If the old Union Store has any more of the same sort, there'll be a rush for them.

MORE ACCOMMODATION NEEDED.—Superintendent Prescott of the Eastern Railroad has in all instances shown his desire to accommodate the patrons of the road, and would confer additional favor on travellers from this section by putting on a regular train from this city to Boston, to leave here about 3.30 P. M., to connect with the 4.40 train from Newburyport.

☞ By a letter received by Mayor Adams of this city, information is given that Mr. S. N. Pinkham, who it is thought formerly resided in this city or vicinity, was killed in a quartz mill at Battle Mountain, Nevada, Sept. 25th—and the Postmaster of that place is desirous to ascertain the whereabouts of his relatives, if he has any, so that the effects of deceased may be forwarded to them. Any information may be given to Mayor Adams.

☞ The Mt. Washington Glass Works, of Boston and New Bedford, are now owned and managed by Wm. L. Libbey & Brother, both formerly of this city—Capt. Henry Libbey having left navigation and purchased an interest in the glass manufactory at New Bedford, the warehouse and salesrooms being at 61 Milk St., Boston. They manufacture blown, pressed and cut glass-ware in all its varieties, and make a rich display of elegant goods at their store.

THE NATIONAL DEBT on the 1st of October was $2,355,921,150,41; decrease in September, $9,007,498.13

☞ The Chinese have refused the ultimatum of the French, and are preparing for war. The French at Tientsin are awaiting orders from their government before proceeding to extremities.

☞ Mr. Charles Boyd, formerly of South Berwick, but now of Newport, Me., was burned out last week. All the buildings, consisting of dwelling house, sheds, granary, and two barns filled with hay, together with grain and ten head of fine cattle, with most of his farming tools, were entirely consumed in one hour's time. He had lost by fire a valuable wood lot a week previous. The house was insured for $1200. Among the ruins were discovered the relics of human bones and part of a pipe; it is supposed that some one had taken up his lodging for the night on the hay-mow with a lighted pipe, which caused the destruction of himself and the property.

NICE FURNITURE CHEAP.—A gentleman within our knowledge, who had occasion recently to purchase a considerable quantity of Furniture, looked over the stocks of three of the largest dealers in Boston; and made a saving of $231 on $1500, by selecting the articles at the extensive and excellent establishment of Beal & Hooper, on Haymarket Square—besides being better pleased with the styles of their manufactures, than of any others he saw. The reason is, that this well known enterprising house have the best facilities to manufacture their own goods extensively, and spare no pains to furnish the best furniture at the lowest prices, and their designers are constantly studying up new and elegant styles. We commend Beal & Hooper's establishment to any reader in want of first-class Furniture.

WAR TALK.—The report of a French victory at Versailles, which was given with so much circumstantial detail in Friday night's despatches, appears to be false. There was last week some fighting in the vicinity of Paris, but the most trustworthy reports indicate that the Prussians have suffered no important repulse. There are reports of an engagement near Metz, but they are so indefinite and conflicting as to be entitled to little consideration.

Advices at the U. S. State Department lead the authorities to doubt all the reports of French victories around Paris, and also the statement that communication had been opened with Tours. Nothing has been heard from Minister Washburne, and if any means of sending despatches had been opened he would surely have telegraphed to the Department.

The French provisional government has issued a decree for an election of a constituent assembly. The election will take place on the 16th instant.

"Well informed persons" express a conviction that Napoleon or his son, under the regency of the Empress, will be reseated on the throne.

The London Times says it is impossible and improbable that Russia has designs against Turkey.

Bismark formally denies that any disposition exists on the part of Prussia to make France a second-rate power.

The Prussian government has opened negotiations with Holland for the cession of the Duchy of Luxembourg.

Later information through French sources fully corroborates the despatches of the 30th, of a great battle before Metz, resulting in a brilliant victory for the French. The following particulars have been received via Luxembourg:—

On Thursday last, September 29, General Bourbaki, who, with a picked army, had encamped under the guns of the works upon the left bank of the Moselle, seeing a favorable opportunity, attacked the Prussians with fury upon a weak portion of their line. The latter immediately received fresh reinforcements from the other divisions of the Prussian army there, but were unable to withstand the precipitate attack which Bourbaki launched against them, and he succeeded in breaking their centre, and cutting his way through. He then assailed the most northern Prussian division, which had become separated by the violence and pertinacity of the French attack, from their supports, and routed them, driving several divisions in disorder to Bricy. Bourbaki pursued them vigorously, capturing numerous steel guns, vast quantities of supplies and camp equipage. His victory was most glorious in its results.

The Duke of Nassau was killed on the 20th, while riding with the King of Prussia and a brilliant staff from Rheims to Chalons, for the purpose of conferring with Prince Frederick Charles.

THE FLOOD.—The sudden and disastrous freshet in Virginia caused damages estimated at over $2,000,000, and many lives have been lost. When the vast volume of water reached Richmond, its amount exceeded all anticipations and all preparations, although the city had timely warning. On Saturday the rise in the Potomac carried away bridges and flooded Washington and other cities. The chain bridge and several wharves at Georgetown, and Long Bridge were damaged. From 300 to 400 stores in Richmond were in 7 feet of water. At Alexandria, houses and mills were swept away, and many lives lost. At Wheeling, over 50 lives were lost, and at Scottsville 18; and at Harper's Ferry 5 whole families drowned. Another storm was raging Sunday night, and worse results yet are feared.

The greatest flood for 35 years is raging in the Shenandoah river. Shenandoah city, a mile above Harper's Ferry, is entirely gone. The Winchester railway trestles are completely gone, and the bridges are destroyed as far up as Shenandoah Valley.

☞ During the visit of the Bunker Hill Hose Co. to Biddeford, a lantern was stolen from their carriage. A reward of $20 was offered by the Deluge, and no questions asked. The lantern was found in the cemetery.

☞ Henry Clay used to say that it was never safe to quarrel with ministers, editors nor women.

The greater part of the road is already completed, and the earnings from the finished portion are already more than sufficient to pay operating expenses and interest on the bonds. The balance of the work is progressing rapidly, in time for the movement of the coming grain crops, which, it is estimated will double the present income of the road.

The established character of this line, running as it does through the heart of the most thickly settled and richest portion of the great State of Iowa, together with its present advanced condition and large earnings warrant us in unhesitatingly recommending these bonds to investors, as, in every respect, an undoubted security.

These bonds have 50 years to run, are convertible at the option of the holder into the stock of the company at par, and the payment of the principal is provided for by a sinking fund. The convertibility privilege attached to these bonds cannot fail to raise them at no distant day to command a market price considerably above par, besides paying about 9 per cent., currency, interest in the meanwhile. U. S. Five-twenties, at present prices only return five per cent.; and we regard the security equally safe.

RUMSELLING.—At the late term of Court in Dover, more than seventy witnesses from Rochester, were summoned before the Grand Jury, and nineteen indictments were found for selling intoxicating drinks contrary to law, in that town. The Grand Jury presented sixty-five indictments, most of them being for the illegal sale of Rum, the following against residents of Rochester: two against Samuel Howe, three against J. D. Garland, one against Freeman Sherburne, one against Wm. H. Watson, four against George Bradford, three against Agnes Bradford, three against S. H. Burnham, two against Paul H. Peavey.

The following were fined for the illegal sale of liquors: Paul H. Peavey, $50 and costs in each of two indictments; Freeman Sherburne, $50 and costs in one indictment; J. D. Garland, $50 and costs in each of three indictments; Samuel Howe, $50 and costs in each of two cases; on one indictment against George Bradford, the jury remained out all night, being unable to agree. On three other indictments he was found guilty, and was sentenced to pay fines amounting to $250 and costs. W H. Watson Plead guilty, fined $50 and costs.

Patrick Farrell, of Dover, was sentenced to pay a fine of $50 and costs for selling liquor unlawfully, and $30 and costs for attempting to "spirit" away a witness; H. D. Freeman, of Dover, $50 and costs on one indictment; Michael Crannan of Dover, plead guilty to three indictments for selling liquor, was fined $50 and costs on each, and committed until paid.

J. Kezar Place, of Barrington, plead guilty to three indictments for liquor selling, was fined $50 and costs on each, and committed to Jail until paid.

Ralph W. Hill of Wadley's Falls, indicted for selling liquor. Verdict guilty. Fine $50 and costs.

John K. Place, of Barrington, $50 and costs in each of three indictments, and not being "flush with funds," takes up his residence in the stone mansion in Dover run by Strafford County.

Besides these rum cases, the trial of Robert Nichols for stealing a trunk from the Boston & Maine depot at Dover, resulted in a verdict of acquittal.

J. J. Drew, for breaking into the house of Thos. Drew in Durham, and stealing butter therefrom. Verdict guilty—sentenced to two years in State prison.

Henry Sherburne retracted his plea of not guilty of the charge of adultery, with Helen Jones, and plead nolo contendere, and was sentenced to pay a fine of $250 and costs.

J. H. Waldron, vs. G. F. Nutter, to recover the price of a lot of boards and yoke of oxen. Verdict for plf. of $99.82.

Wm. W. Morris, Edward Stover and Charles Woodruff, for breaking and entering the house of G. W. Brasbridge of Great Falls and stealing therefrom. Woodruff plead guilty and was sentenced to two years in State Prison; the others were found guilty and sentenced, Morris for two years and Stover for three.

Mary Hayes of Alton, plead guilty to larceny at the house of J. W. Kingman, and was sentenced to two years in the Reform School, a wise choice of her's between that and the State Prison.

Charles F. Jordan plead guilty of stealing a gold watch and some cloth from J. H. Randlett.

LAW vs. HISTORY.—At the recent term of the S. J. Court at Laconia, Judge Sargent in proceeding to charge, or rather to address, the Grand Jury, stated that the long established custom for the Court to instruct the jury upon the laws relating to the criminal cases likely to be presented to them, seemed now unnecessary, as they had with them in the jury room the State's attorney to counsel and advise them in their deliberations.

He therefore selected—singular as it may seem—"Baker's River," as the subject of his address, and gave an interesting account of its sources and its general course, describing the mountains and the country among and through which it flowed, and naming the tribes of Indians which inhabited that region before the settlement of the whites. The Indian name of the river signifies "The place of the mountain waters," and Moosilauk, "The bald place."

The river took its present name from Captain Baker of Massachusetts, who attacked and defeated the Indians dwelling on its banks at a very early period. The various expeditions to this region of which accounts can be obtained, were noticed, and the present flourishing condition of that section commented on in contrast with its former state.

East Rochester still keeps up the march of improvement, and the hammer and saw are heard on every hand, as new buildings are going up. The parsonage house of the Freewill Baptist Society is rapidly being finished.

HOW EUGENIE MADE HER ESCAPE FROM PARIS. — Exciting Incidents.—A correspondent who signs "Voyageur" writes to the London Telegraph of the 8th of September thus:

I have just returned from Paris, where I had special opportunities for observing the stirring events of Sunday, and I give you what I know to be the true story of Her Majesty's escape. The deposition of the Napoleon dynasty was voted in the Corps Legislatif about one o'clock on Sunday afternoon. At two o'clock M. Petri—then Prefect of Police—rushed breathlessly into the Empress's apartments at the Tuileries with the startling announcement and warning:

"The decheance has been declared, I have not a moment to lose. Save your life, Madame, as I am now hastening to save my own!" Then he disappeared, and with good reason, too, for the revolutionary government would give something to lay hands on him now. The Empress found herself alone with her old and trusty secretary and friend, Madame le Breton, and with M. Ferdinand de Lesseps, who both earnestly urged her to fly at once. But her high spirit made this a most unpalatable counsel, It was a cowardice —une lachete— to desert the palace. She would rather be treated as was Marie Antoinette by the mob than seek safety in an unworthy flight. For a time all persuasion was useless; but at length Her Majesty's mood calmed somewhat, and she saw the utter uselessness of remaining.

Attended only by the two companions we have named the Empress fled through the long gallery of the Louvre, but suddenly her course was stopped short by a locked door. The little party could distinctly hear the shouts of the crowds who were invading the private gardens of the Tuileries. M. de Lesseps, to gain time, proposed that he should go out upon the terrace and get the soldiers on guard to hold back the people for a few minutes, while in addition he would delay the crowd by addressing them. The resort to this expedient was not necessary. Madame de Breton found the key, opened the door that had obstructed her progress, and gave egress to Her Majesty—who, accompanied only by her tried friend, issued into the street, at the bottom of the Louvre. There they hurriedly entered a common fiacre, not without a risk of detection on the spot, for a diminutive gamin de Paris, not more than twelve years old, shouted "Voila l' Imperatrice!" Luckily no one about heard or heeded him and the cab got safely away with the two ladies.

They drove to M. de Lesseps's house, in the Boulevard de Malesherber, where the Empress sat until she was joined by M. de Metternich, who did what he could to facilitate her departure to a place of safety. Later in the evening the Empress, still accompanied by Madame le Breton, drove to the Garde du Norde, escaped all detection—thanks to the thick veil which she wore—and at seven o'clock rolled safe and unexpected away toward the Belgian frontier.

A VAST GROGSHOP. — Bear me witness if I exaggerate when I say, that the country is rapidly becoming one vast grogship, to which half a million of its youth are yearly introduced, and over whose threshold sixty thousand are annually carted to a drunkard's grave. The streets of our cities echo to the shouts and oaths of drunken revellers, from whom society seeks protection through police regulations; and within hovel and mansion alike, not entirely smothered either by physical fear or social pride, is heard the sound of insane violence and wailing.

What river is there along our coasts, what harbor upon whose shores a city stands, whose waters have not closed over the bodies of those who, victims to this traffic, were flung by violent hands from pier or bridge, or madly sought beneath their silent surface forgetfulness of woes or wretchedness too pregnant to be borne? Within the darkness of dungeons and along our highways, may be seen wrecks of former beauty and manhood wrought by this traffic, and now and then one, as by a miracle, after long years of misery and debasement, rescued therefrom, lifts up his voice in public, and makes men aghast with the recital of his woes and degradation.—W. H. Murray.

THE PROHIBITORY LAW.—This law, as amended last June, has now by the lapse of time become operative. We are rejoiced to see, already, some prompt and vigorous movements for its enforcement. Let all the friends of temperance everywhere in the State, encourage the officers of the law now required to execute it, and aid them in every possible way. With such a law, we need not be cursed with a rum traffic, unless the politicians set themselves with a will to protect such a traffic. This is just the time to strike, and strike hard, and altogether. Shall it be done, or are the people too demoralized to appreciate or sustain a good government? Let us hear from you, friends, in all parts of the State. —Prohibition Herald.

AYER'S
HAIR VIGOR,
For Restoring Gray Hair to its Natural Vitality and Color.
A Dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for Preserving the Hair. Faded or gray Hair is even restored to its original color, with the gloss and freshness of youth. This hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use.
Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remains can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a paste sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor, can only benefit but not harm it.
If wanted merely for a HAIR DRESSING, nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Portsmouth, N. H.

WEDNESDAY, OCT. 5, 1870.

WAR TALK.—The North German Gazette denounces the priests as the sources of the anti-Prussian feeling in the South German States, and the instigators of revolt, murder and hostile alliances.

Prince Salm-Salm, who was killed at Gravelotte, was not the husband of the Princess Salm-Salm, but Prince Florentin Salm-Salm, second lieutenant in Queen Augusta's regiment of Prussian Guards, a boy of nineteen years.

Reports from the Prussian armies state that unusual sickness prevails. The dysentery and typhus fever have been particularly disastrous in their ravages.

The camp hospitals are becoming overcrowded, and vast numbers of the rank and file are rendered unable to perform their duties by reason of the season.

The Prince Frederick Charles has been severely attacked by the typhus fever, contracted by his untiring and ceaseless vigilance in visiting those of his corps who fill the hospitals.

A dispatch announcing the Prince's illness has been sent to his mother, the Queen, who requested he should be immediately conveyed to Berlin.

The captured German vessels include 17 barks, 5 schooners, 8 brigs, 1 steamer, 1 ship, and a large supply ship laden with war supplies, valued at two million francs.

The Prussians have burned the village of Nouilly. It contained secret stores, the locality of which the villagers refused to disclose, so the Prussians burned the village and the stores together.

France has voted almost unanimously for a Republic.

☞ Bismark has made public the following statement:—

"The report of a conversation between King William and the Emperor Napoleon, given by Russell, the correspondent of the London Times, and since extensively published all over the world, is founded throughout on mere invention."

Bismark's statement is probably true; for though he may not be the incarnation of truth, Bull Run Russell is known in this country to be a most magnificent liar — so the balance of probability favors Bismark.

New Publications Received.

Every Saturday for October is peculiarly rich in both pictorial and literary attractions. It contains, from advance sheets, a spirited ode on the Proclamation of the French Republic, by A. C. Swinburne; an excellent story called "The Dominie's Sons;" able editorial articles on the European War, and other choice miscellaneous reading. Its pictorial contents include fine portraits of Gen. Von Steinmetz, Gen. Trochu, and M. Thiers; some superb War Pictures, — a Charge of French Cuirassiers, French Turcos, German Landwehr, Franc-Tireurs, Singing the Marseillaise, and a very striking two-page picture representing The Crisis—Bringing up the Guns. A two-page supplement accompanies this number of Every Saturday, containing a remarkably good original map of Paris, which indicates a hundred and fifty of the most interesting features of the city—the principal avenues, churches, palaces, railway stations, bridges, etc. This map is just now of the greatest interest and it is so large and so carefully executed as to be of permanent value.

Mr. Stephens returns to the charge in the October Riverside Magazine with one of his fable frontispieces, this time of "The Rat in Retirement." The serial stories by F. R. Stockton and Miss Hale are continued, and Hans Anderson has a contribution peculiarly appropriate, in "Danish Popular Legends," a matter in which he of all men is well posted. As winter is drawing near, Mr. Arthur Gilman, who has been describing bees and their habits during the summer, now writes of their autumn and winter management. "Round the Horn and back again," is a description of a voyage, and there is a New Zealand story which will stiffen hair. Some very pretty pictures help to make this an attractive number. $2.50 per year. Published by Hurd & Houghton, New York.

Merry's Museum for October contains an interesting account of a walk over the White Mountains, with illustrations and description of the railroad. Uncle Miles proposes to have the boys go with him next year. Send ten cents for the October number, which will tell you all about it. The publisher offers to send three numbers free to any one subscribing for next year's volume before November 1st. Address Horace B. Fuller, publisher, Boston.

New Hampshire Items.

Concord folks propose to pay $300,000 for new Water Works.

Although New Hampshire has decreased in population within the last ten years, there has has been a gain in the agricultural wealth of the State of nearly twenty millions.

The annual meeting of the Grand Encampment and Grand Lodge I. O. O. F. of New Hampshire, will be held in Dover, Oct. 11 and 12. A reception will probably be given to the members of both bodies in the City Hall.

P. B. Cogswell, Esq., of the Concord Monitor, started for a trip West, for a month. We wish our friend a pleasant, safe and profitable journey, and renewed vigor upon his return.

Oct. 1st, the Northern Railroad put upon the road the only locomotive that was ever wholly constructed in Concord, from its castings to the making of the most insignificant nut. The new machine weighs thirty tons, has a forty-five inch shell, an eleven foot boiler with a hundred and thirty-eight tubes, a fifty-four inch grate, cylinders 16 X 22, and driving wheels five feet and a half in diameter. The steam chest and valves differ from those of any locomotive running, and are thought to be a great improvement on those heretofore used. The machine is plainly, but handsomely finished. The tender frame is wholly of iron. The drivers are painted black, with gold-leaf ornaments; and the cab bears in gold-leaf letters the name "C. W. Clark," the Northern officers thus commemorating the long and faithful service of the brave man whose life went out in that day at the wreck of Pillsbury's switch.

Mr. Jeremiah Berry of Pittsfield died last week with dropsy, aged 79 years. His father, Thomas Berry, one of four brothers from Greenland, bought a farm in Pittsfield near the Northwood line, of Mr. Cass, brother of Hon. Lewis Cass, where he lived and died. His son Jeremiah was born, lived and died upon the old homestead.

Pittsfield, after waiting twenty years for somebody to build a railroad, took hold of the project as a community, did their share of the work, paid their share of the cost and found aid to complete it without ruining or injuring any one. And it is working wonders for them.

Jacob L. Pitman of Great Falls lost a horse last week of colic.

The new town hall question has died from want of nourishment in Great Falls. An advertisement, calling for proposals for suitable lot on which to erect a hall, was published, but not a bid was sent in to the committee.

An important case of alleged pension fraud has turned up in Sullivan county. The parties concerned are Austin Corbin, claim agent at Newport, Dr. William Barton of Croydon, Nathaniel G. Shedd, Adolphus Hall, Jacob Littlefield and Hiram Currier, of Grantham. A certificate for a pension to Shedd, as a dependant father of a son who died in the service, was procured by false affidavits. All of the parties but Corbin, who had gone West, and Currier, have been arrested by U. S. Marshal Patterson, under the direction of U. S. Attorney Rolfe of Concord. The accused were arraigned at Croydon and Grantham, before Commissioner Stanley of Manchester, and were all bound over to the United States Circuit Court at Exeter. The standing of the parties makes the affair an important one.

The East Rochester Cotton Mill has recently been purchased by Messrs. Bennett, Jones & Faunce, to manufacture cotton warp and stockings. They have ordered eight of the celebrated Pepper knitting machines, which they will have running in about two weeks, turning off eighty dozen pairs of stockings per day, and employing about seventy hands. This mill has been built about eight years, but has been run only part of the time, and has been entirely idle during the last eighteen months.

The Wolfeboro' News says there is but little doubt that the fire in Centre Harbor, last week, was the work of an incendiary, who designed the destruction of the entire village in revenge for the closing up of the rum shops there.

☞ The Gloucester Advertiser states that Gen. Butler had an interview with President Grant while on his visit to Boston last week, in which the seizure of N. E. fishing vessels was discussed. The President intimated that it was his intention to give the subject his immediate attention.

☞ Hon. E. A. Rollins having returned from his trip across the continent, is again attending to his duties at the office of the National Life Insurance Co., Philadelphia.

☞ Mr. Oliver Emery, who was injured while on his way to the Berwick town meeting, is dead.

BRILLIANT LEGISLATION.—We see it stated that a bill has been introduced in the Oregon legislature, forbidding any male inhabitant of the State to wear a cue or shave any part of the scalp, unless he takes a license for the privilege of so doing at an expense of ten dollars a month. We presume an exception is made for cases of brain fever and a number of similar diseases, in which shaving the head is a necessity of medical practice. Seriously, we trust that all measures of this character in the State or national councils will give place to bills for straightforward prohibition of Chinese immigration. If we are so weak as to fear the competition of the Asiatic on our own soil, let us at least be strong enough to shut the door in his face in so many words, and not seek to slam it on his cue. If the Constitution is in the way, it is susceptible of amendment. If it is possible to order by law how a man shall wear the hair of his head, we have the same right of regulation in the case of women; and some anti-jute-and-chignon party may come into power in some localities, with results shocking even to imagine.—Boston Advertiser.

The Democratic legislature of Oregon must exempt the Catholic clergy from the operation of the bill, for they shave a portion of their heads, and it wouldn't do for the democracy to lose the Catholic vote.

☞ Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Eustis, who were married in Newburyport in 1820, celebrated their golden wedding in Boston this week. Rev. E. E. Hale and Bishop Huntington were present; also a bright old lady from Newburyport, who was one of the bridesmaids; and a grandchild was christened. Not a death has occurred in the family since their marriage.

☞ The ex-rebel general Robt. E. Lee is speechless from a paralytic stroke. He should have been hung long ago.

It is sold by druggists, or you can get it free sixty cents by mail from Dr. R. V. Pierce, 133 Seneca street, Buffalo, N. Y. Pamphlet free. Don't be swindled by men calling themselves Dr. Sage; Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., is the only man now living that can make the Genuine and original Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, and his private Government Revenue Stamp, bear ing upon it his portrait, name and address, is upon every package of the genuine.

THE UNIVERSAL WRINGER, improved, is so arranged with cog-wheels that when thick articles are passing through it cannot be thrown out of gear as other cog machines are, whether the cogs are on one or both sides of the shaft, to the great detriment of the rubber rolls. In point of utility and durability it has no superior.—Portland Transcript.

THE GREAT ENIGMA.—A thousand guesses have been made at the ingredients of SOZODONT, the most wholesome and perfect dental purifier the world has ever seen. They were all wrong, so, by way of throwing a little light on the subject, it is now announced that the LIBER, or inner bark of the QUILLAYA SAPONARIA, the Soap Tree of the Valley of the Andes, is one of the components of that peerless dentrifice.

"SPALDING'S GLUE," useful and true.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Bear in Mind.

When disease has undermined the health, and the physical system has become prostrated, a stimulant that will not only strengthen, but remove the cause, should be immediately resorted to. Mental distress is also a fruitful source of the breaking down of the constitution, and the ravages of this enemy to health are truly alarming. For all such maladies HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS have been pre-eminently successful, by giving directly upon the digestive organs, they remove the heavy, disagreeable feeling after eating, so often complained of by persons of a delicate temperament. As soon as digestion is restored, the patient finds his strength increasing, and his general health improved.

Thousands of persons certify that it may be relied on in all cases of weakness or nervous debility attendant upon sedentary habits. The generality of Bitters are so disagreeable to the taste that they are objectionable to a weak stomach. This is not the case with Hostetter's Bitters, which will be found mild and extremely pleasant. Balsamic plants, barks and roots contribute their restorative juices to render it soothing and strengthening. Its basis is the only pure stimulant which has ever been produced, containing no fusil oil, or any other deleterious element. The most careful and skilful chemists have analyzed the Bitters, and pronounce them harmless. This is scientific testimony; but the testimony of the hundreds of thousands who have experienced the preventive and curative effects of the GREAT VEGETABLE TONIC and ALTERATIVE of modern times is still more conclusive. In Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Nervous Complaints, Chronic Complaints and general debility it is as nearly infallible as anything in this fallible world can be. oldawlw

PAIN KILLER.

This celebrated medicine has won a deservedly high reputation as an alleviator of pain and a preserver of health. It has become a household remedy, from the fact that it gives immediate and permanent relief. It is a purely vegetable preparation, made from the best and purest materials, safe to keep and to use in every family. It is recommended by physicians and persons of all classes, and to-day, after a public trial of thirty years—the average life of man—it stands unrivalled and unexcelled, spreading its usefulness over the wide world. Its large and increasing sale affords positive evidence of its enduring fame.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL,

FOR DISEASES OF THE THROAT and LUNGS, such as COUGHS, COLDS, WHOOPING COUGH, BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA and CONSUMPTION.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men, it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a provision against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses.

For a Cough and Cold, no better remedy can be had. Take small doses three times a day and put the first in warm water at night, until the disease is broken up.

For Influenza, when it affects the throat or lungs, take the same course.

For Whooping cough, give small doses three or four times a day.

For Croup, give large and frequent doses until the disease is overcome.

No family should be without the Cherry Pectoral on hand to protect them, in case of attack, from the above complaints. Its timely use often spares the patient a great amount of suffering and risk, which he would incur by waiting until he could get other aid. Parents, keep it in your houses for the exigencies that arise. Lives dear to you may be saved by it.

So generally are its virtues known, that we need not publish certificates of them here, or do more than assure the public that the best qualities it ever possessed are strictly maintained.

NAVAL.—U. S. S. California will sail for Boston on Friday. The Cohasset brought some of her crew last Saturday. The officers of the California are to be transferred to the Narragansett. At Charlestown, the California will be docked to receive a new hoisting propeller. Her stores are nearly all on Board.

PETITIONS for the enforcement of the liquor law are being numerously signed by our citizens, to be presented to the Board of Aldermen for action. Should the Aldermen or Mayor neglect to enforce the law, each one is liable to a fine of not less than $50 nor more than $250. The county solicitor is the prosecuting attorney.

NEWCASTLE.—Rev. Samuel Hoyt, of Newington, after supplying the pulpit of the Christian Society at Newcastle for five years, asked and received a dismission on the 1st of October.

We understand that Messrs. Urch, Rufus Yeaton, William Martin and others, are working to organize an Advent Society at Newcastle, and have already purchased the frame for a church.

Rev. L. Alden continues pastor of the Congregational Church in that place.

The fishing business of Messrs. Harding & Doane has been very successful this season—it is reported, even more so than last year.

A FISH STORY.—Capt. John Vennard of Newcastle, an old whaleman, says that while cruising off Boon Island last Sunday, a large whale came up alongside his boat. He took a gaff and made fast to him, when the whale started, pulling him out of the boat; and not being able to swim, he held on to the gaff. The fish made for the harbor, about three miles distant; but when near the shore he went about, and put to sea again, towing his "captor" after him. The whale went through the water so fast (12 knots an hour) that the man could see nothing, but after some time he heard a voice sing out "Let go, Jack!" which he did, and found himself once more alongside his boat, in which he was soon safely stowed away, all right except that his clothing was very wet. This is as true as other fish stories. Capt. Vennard is positive that there is no exaggeration in his account, and he is corroborated by his mate—and they ought to know about it, for they were both there. "If you don't believe it—ask John?"

☞ Pius IX has been voted out of his temporal throne, and must now satisfy himself with being infallible, and holding the keys of heaven. His earthly subjects in Rome were nearly unanimous in voting his retirement. Later returns show that over 50,000 votes were cast in favor of Italian unity, and less than 50 against it. Several monks and priests voted "Yes." The best of order prevailed all day, and the Italian flag floated from hundreds of houses. Strong guards were placed at each of the twelve voting places, but were not needed. The workmen went to vote in a body. The city was splendidly illuminated at night in honor of the result of the plebiscitum. It is reported that, in consequence of the vote of the Leonine City, the Pope will take up his residence in Malta.

FAIR OF THE AMERICAN INSTITUTE. The 39th Great National Exhibition is open to the public in the Coliseum, 3d avenue and 63d street, near Central Park, New York. It will remain open during all October. Here may be seen, under one roof, the most recent and best productions of the American artist, inventor, farmer, gardener, florist, and artisans of every trade. It is at once a museum, a work-shop—with machinery in motion, and a School of Instruction which none should fail to visit.

OLD TIMES CHRONICLES, No. 18.

BY UNCLE JOSEPH.

THE CONGREGATIONALISTS IN NEWINGTON.—We have not the date of the organization of the church. Rev. Joseph Adams was ordained there Nov. 6, 1715, and continued to Jan. 1733, about 68 years. He died soon after at the age of 93 years. He was followed by Rev. Joseph Langdon in 1785, who continued 25 years, to 1810. There were supplies after this, but no settled pastor.

In 1826 we have an account that Rev. J. W. Putnam of Portsmouth visited the place, preached and administered the sacrament of the supper to two aged females, members of the church, and a few from other churches there on the occasion. This was 44 years ago. It is strong in our mind that some 15 years ago it was stated that but two former members of the church were living. These were females. And just now, we learn that two females are still the only surviving members of the church.

For a time Rev. F. Davis has been preaching in the place. Members of the Portsmouth Young Men's Christian Association have frequently been there and rendered assistance.

Finally, it was thought advisable to reorganize the church. This was done by a Council Sept. 8. Rev. A. Tobey of Durham preached, Rev. T. V. Haines of North Hampton offered the consecrating prayer. Other parts were performed by Rev.'s Thompson and Peabody of Stratham, Mr. Lane of Hampton and others. Fourteen united in the organization.

Newington had the greatest population in 1830, when it was 549. By the census taken this year it was found 414, being 61 less than 10 years ago.

☞ Deacon Benjamin Randall, of Somerville, Mass., died in that place October 2d, aged 56 years. He was a native of Portsmouth; and was a prominent citizen of Somerville, and Collector of Taxes at the time of his death.

☞ A tumor which threatened the life of General Kilpatrick was successfully removed by electricity, on Friday. The operation was the first of the kind ever attempted and was perfectly successful.

☞ The recent appointment of Annie P. Ladd of Augusta, as Justice of the Peace, has been followed by the appointment of another of the sex, Inez A. Blanchard of Portland, to the same office.

☞ Mr. Bosch is a candidate for Congress in Michigan. Don't need him—there's enough of that article in Congress already.

BASE BALL.—The Red Stockings and White Stockings will play a return game in Chicago, Oct. 13.

KITTERY has voted to widen and straighten the road to the Point.

☞ John Allen, the wickedest, is dead.

—The Boston Post says:—Mr. Greeley has arrived at the conclusion that it is the part of a statesman to yield when he is hopelessly beaten,—a conclusion worthy of the philosophic mind that can distinguish at a glance between a male and female strawberry plant.

—It was Rev. Dr. Todd of Pittsfield, Mass., and not of Boston, who recently closed a thirty years' pastorate.

—The mosquito as a public singer draws well, but never gives satisfaction.

—A volume that will bring tears to your eyes—a volume of smoke.

—American bronzes—Dead beats.

Morning Chronicle.

A PERILOUS ADVENTURE.

The Newark Advertiser tells this startling story of an adventure in that place:

St. Patrick's Cathedral has a steeple surmounted by a ball, on which is a cross. The top of the cross is two hundred and fifteen feet above the surface of the ground, the height being but five feet short of that of Bunker Hill Monument. The steeple is of wood, square at the base and tapering to a point. Along each angle, from the base to the point, are nailed at the distance of four feet apart, ornamental knobs of wood.

All this wood work, being weather beaten, in the course of time rots; especially the knobs and the cross, which present many small angles; so that it becomes necessary to attend now and then to the repairing of these parts. To erect a staging for the purpose, when a man of sufficient daring and coolness might climb and do the work, would not be the most economical method. Such men are rare, but they are to be found. The price charged for each assent is usually $25. The risk does not consist merely in the danger of becoming giddy and demoralized while clinging in mid air to the outside of a steeple, and while the neighbors and passers-by are collecting in groups below and gazing upward with bated breath and trembling knees at the climber. He must go up by climbing foot and hand to what he finds; and what he must cling to are these very knobs, rottening and weakening in the weather, and finally, to the cross already decayed and ready to drop. The man who does this sort of work in Newark is Frank Jacobus.

Last month he was engaged to make an ascent of the cathedral steeple for the purpose of removing the old cross and replacing it with a new one. Going up inside the steeple to the highest admissible point, he reached out from the narrow window and felt one of the knobs to test its strength. Judging it to be strong enough, he swung himself out by it, and scrambling up caught hold of the next higher knob and rested his feet on the lower one. So far all right. He glanced around him, and then looked up along the line of knobs that reached far up to the ball and the cross, marking his hazardous way. It was something of an experiment. Were other knobs, too, strong enough? Carefully and quickly he scrambled up and left of the knob next higher. It seemed to have sufficient strength. He pulled upon it. It bore his weight, and up he went. Gathering confidence, he made his tests and drew his conclusions rapidly. He went up more and more quickly, at last scarcely caring to try the strength of the knobs before trusting his weight to them. Already two thirds of the steeple were climbed. A few more efforts and his hand would be clinging to the cross.

He reached forth to raise himself. A slight grating sound reached his keen ear, even in the breeze blowing strongly about his ears. The knob had moved under his pull—was giving way. A mist spread before his eyes. He felt himself falling backward. With a convulsive effort that lamed his back, he clutched at something and brought himself forward again, and down he slid. His presence of mind had not once left him. He even tested the knobs as he slid over them, to stop himself from the momentum of his falling. Gradually he even lessened the momentum. Then he fastened his grip upon a knob. It held him, and he was safe. The sigh that went up from the observers in the street below almost reached his quickened ear, and it grew into a shout. He was not demoralized. He might have come down and given up the job. Not so. His purpose to go up to the cross was not changed. But he could no longer trust himself to the knobs on that angle of the steeple. He tried to reach, but the knob was just beyond his utmost stretch of foot or hand.

The observers below were looking in breathless suspense. They saw him go up higher, almost to the very spot whence he had fallen, and then at last reach out and swing himself across. He was now on another angle, clinging to an untried place, and looking up the long line of untested knobs. He went up, more carefully, less rapidly than before, trying every knob well before trusting his weight to it. Soon he was at the ball. Grasping it, he hoisted himself up over it and sat himself down on it with his feet on each side of the cross.

There he waited awhile, though he seemed still to be busy. Then raising himself to his feet, he stood beside the cross. With his hand he broke it piece-meal, and they fell into fragments as they touched the stone walk. Then he descended, and in a few minutes was on the ground again, to be surrounded by some of the observers.

"A little frightened, eh, Frank," quizzed one of them, "when you slipped here?"

"Not a bit. Just as cool as I am here, now at this minute."

"Risky, though, wasn't it?"

"Well, yes; it was risky. But the worst of it was I tore my pantaloons."

"I don't see it."

"But I mended them."

"While you were sitting on the ball there?"

"Yes; I wasn't coming down with such a rent as that in them. The wind was blowing hard and things flapped, and I happened to have a self-threader Billy Withers had given me this very morning and I stuck it in my vest. I threaded the needle without looking at it, and sewed up the tear in a hurry."

"I have to be," he said, and he glanced around at some ladies who were grouped a few yards off, looking at him.

—"Fiddle-sticks"—Bad violin players.

—Mrs Stowe uses some suitable language in speaking of the children of tobacco-using fathers: "Children of smoking fathers have often their brains and nervous system entirely impregnated with the poison of nicotine in the helpless age of infancy. A couple came to a country place entirely for the health of their only boy, a feeble infant. The child was pale and sickly, constipated in bowels, and threw up his milk constantly. The parents had but one room, in which they lived with him, and which was every evening blue with tobacco smoke. Every evening that helpless little creature took into its lungs as much tobacco as if he had smoked a cigarette.

Still more than this: the mother who was nursing that infant did what was equivalent to smoking one cigar every evening—she breathed her husband's smoke. Now, if your baby smokes cigars, you will find by and by, when he comes to need brains, that his brain-power will not be found. He will be fitful, starty, morbid, fall of nervous kinks and cranks—one of those wretched human beings who live a life like that described by Hawthorne in his story of 'Featherlop'—only capable of existence and efficiency while smoking, but sinking into dimness and stupidity when he stops. Such are some of the chances of poor babies!"

—In attempting to haul a large barn, belonging to J. M. Briggs, in Parkman, Me., after it was placed upon runners and hauled a short distance, a man in the crowd by the name of Ayer, informed the men that he had, during the previous night, dreamed that the barn fell to pieces in descending a hill just ahead, and advised them to keep at a safe distance. Sure enough, at the point described, the barn collapsed with a crash, burying several pairs of oxen in the ruins, but injuring no one.

—A correspondent of a country paper in England says he heard a minister descanting on the present war from the pulpit the other Sunday, and in the course of his remarks the divine exclaimed: "How horrible it is to hear "the stifled groans of the dying, together with the shrieks of the dead!"

—The Boston Advertiser says that the first velvet factory in the United States has been started by a French colony in Kansas, at the town of Franklin, eighteen miles southwest of Ottawa.

—Brigham Young regrets the million and a half of women that are "wasted," as he terms it, in this country, by being unmarried. It is sad.

—Go to strangers for charity, acquaintances for advice, relatives for nothing.

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT?

IF SO, SELECT THE BEST, which is the

AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.

It has proved itself, West, North and South, to be the best Paint known. It will not peel, crack, nor chalk; and will last twice as long as the best Lead Paints.

It is cheaper, handsomer and more elastic, than the best of other Paints. It is the most convenient Paint made, being mixed, ready for application; it dries rapidly, and retains its shade perfectly, with a beautiful surface and glossy finish, and for years retains its gloss and beauty. It is efficaious for walls inside, in the place of paper, making a smooth glassy finish, which can be cleaned with hot suds without injury.

One Gallon of Mixed Lead Paint weighs 20 lbs. and costs $2.72, and will only cover 16 square yds, 2 coats: while one gallon of the Chemical Paint only weighs 10 lbs., and costs but $2.50, and will cover 20 square yds., 2 coats,—thus making a saving of 22 cts., per gallon, besides covering 4 yards more than Lead Paint, and will last twice as long and look far better.

The Chemical Paint is sold by the gallon in quantities to suit purchasers, in 40 different shades and pure white, and will be applied by experienced workmen and satisfaction given in every case; or in case of dissatisfaction in one year after put on, the whole cost of Paint will be refunded.

The sale of these unequalled Paints are daily increasing. Call and examine these ready mixed Paints, both in kegs, and applied to Buildings one year ago, before buying elsewhere, and save your money and money, and beautify your dwelling by using the AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

Late Agent of the United States Patent Office, Washington, under the Act of 1837,

NO. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of twenty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Bonds, Assignments, and all papers or drawings for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made into American and Foreign works, to determine the validity and utility of Patents or inventions, and legal and other advice rendered on all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

During eight months the subscriber, in the course of his large practice, made on twice rejected applications, SIXTEEN APPEALS, EVERY ONE of which was decided IN HIS FAVOR by the Commissioner of Patents.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents.

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me THIRTEEN applications, in all but ONE of which patents have been granted, and that one is now pending. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. "CICELY."

[ALKALI STATION.]

Cicely says you're a poet; may be; I ain't much on rhyme;
I reckon you'd give me a hundred, and beat me every time.
Poetry!—that's the way some chap put up an idee,
But I takes mine "straight without sugar," and that's what's the matter with me.

Poetry!-just look round you-alkali, rock and sage;
Sage-brush, rock and alkali; ain't it a pretty page!
Sun in the east at mornin', sun in the west at night,
And the shadow of this yer station the on'y thing moves to sight.

Poetry!—Well now—Polly! Polly, fun to your mam;
Run right away, my pooty! By-by! Ain't she a lamb?
Poetry!—that reminds me o'suthin' right in that suit;
Jest shet that door thar, will yer, for Cicely's ears is cute.

Ye noticed Polly—the baby? A month afore she was born,
Cicely—my old woman—was moody-like and forlorn;
Out of her head and crazy, and talked of flowers and trees;
Family man, yourself, sir? Well, you know what a woman bes.

Narvous she was, and restless—said that she "couldn't stay,"
Stay—and the nearest woman seventeen miles away,
But I fixed it up with the Doctor, and he said he would be on hand,
And I kinder stuck by the shanty, and fenced in that bit o' land.

One night—the tenth of October—I woke with a chill and fright,
For the door it was standing open, and Cicely warn't in sight,
But a note was pinned on the blanket, which it said that she "couldn't stay,"
But had gone to visit her neighbor—seventeen miles away!

When and how she stampeded, I didn't wait for to see,
For out in the road, next minit, I started as wild as she;
Running first this way and that way, like a hound that is off the scent,
For there warn't no track in the darkness to tell me the way she went.

I've had some mighty mean moments afore I kem to this spot—
Lost on the Plains in '50, drowned almost, and shot;
But out on this alkali desert, a hunting a crazy wife,
Was ra'ly as on-satis-factory thing as ever I done in my life.

"Cicely! Cicely! Cicely!" I called, and I held my breath,
And "Cicely" came from the canyon—and all was still as death,
And "Cicely! Cicely! Cicely!" came from the rocks below,
An' jest but a whisper of "Cicely!" down from them peaks of snow.

I ain't what you call religious—but I jest looked up to the sky—
And—this yer's to what I'm coming, and may be ye think I lie;
But away to the east'ard, yaller and big and far,
I saw on a sudden rising the singlest kind of star.

Big and yaller and dancing, it seemed to beckon to me;
Yaller and big and dancing, such as you never see
Big and yaller and dancing—I never saw such a star,
And I thought of them chaps in the Bible, and I went for it then and thar.

Over the brush and bowlders, I stumbled and pushed ahead;
Keeping the star afore me, I went wherever it led,
It might hev been for an hour, when suddent and peart and nigh,
Out of the yearth afore me thar riz up a baby's cry.

Listen! thar's the same music; but her lungs they are stronger now,
Than the day I packed her and her mother—I'm derned if I jest know how,
But the doctor kem the next minit, and the joke o' the whole thing is,
That Cic never knew what happened from that very night to this!

But Cicely says you're a poet, and may be you might, some day,
Jest sing her a rhyme 'bout a baby that was born in a curious way,
And see what she says: and, old fellow, when you speak of the star, don't tell Ashow 'twas the doctor's lantern—for may be 'twon't sound so well.

—F. Bret Harte.

FATTENING ANIMALS.—In fattening animals of every kind, it is important to feed them at the season when they will take on flesh the most rapidly at the least expense. That season is the late summer and autumn, when the weather is mild. I fully believe that the production of flesh, in proportion to the consumption of food, is one-fourth more in warm weather than in winter. Meal may be fed in the warm season, but corn can only be fed in autumn or winter, as it does not ripen sufficiently until then, and it cannot be kept over in shock for another season. It may be said that fat cattle, for early spring use, need not be fattened so early as to be ready for market by December. It will do no harm, however, and they will hold their flesh all winter, and on much less feed than if not so well fed in the earlier season, and thus secure the large spring prices of winter feeding. This advantage can be fully obtained by feeding on ground grain in sheds and mangers, but cannot be secured by winter stock feeding.—Allen.

AYER'S
HAIR VIGOR,
For Restoring Gray Hair to its Natural Vitality and Color.
A Dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for Preserving the Hair. Faded or gray Hair is even restored to its original color, with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use.
Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remains can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor, can only benefit but not harm it.
If wanted merely for a HAIR DRESSING, nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

THURSDAY, OCT. 6, 1870.

WAR RUMORS.—Two reports from French sources give a rumor that the great Prussian General Von Moltke died recently, but that the Prussians are striving to keep the fact a secret. The chief foundation for the report seems to be that somebody saw or dreamed he saw a lead coffin on the way to Prussia.

The reported great victory won by the French on Thursday, in a sortie from Metz, the Prussians say was repulsed by General Kummer, with heavy loss to the French.

The campaign in France is not now marked by the rapidly succeeding important battles which characterized it a few weeks ago, and in the dearth of actual sensations, the channels of information are choked with rumors of all sorts, which afford little information and less satisfaction.

The Prussians are concentrating at Toul for a movement on Lyons, and energetic measures are accordingly being taken to defend that city.

From all parts of France, accounts are coming in, showing that the sharpshooters are now seriously annoying the enemy.

The Russian Legation in Washington have received a despatch from St. Petersburg, saying very positively that the object for which Russia is arming in such haste is, not to move against Turkey, but to have her troops in readiness in case of a difficulty which is apprehended, with other European powers.

Marshal MacMahon has sent to a newspaper at Namur the following statement:—

"Marshal MacMahon was wounded on the 1st of September, at six in the morning, at the very commencement of the last battle, in which he held no command. It was by order of the minister of war, Count de Palikao, and of the Committee of Defence, that he executed the march which proved so fatal to the arms of France. Marshal MacMahon's intention was to fall back on Paris, after having reorganized the army so unfortunately undone at Sedan. He was not permitted to execute his wise project. Marthal MacMahon will not fail to publish, as soon as the state of his health will permit, proofs that he cannot be considered responsible for the immense disaster at Sedan. Between a victorious army and the frontier of a neutral nation, there was no escape if an accident occurred."

Gen. Burnsides has visited Paris and returned.

The Belgian papers are filled with accounts of attacks made on scattered German outposts by the peasantry. In St. Dizier a detachment of German troops were fired on and many were killed and wounded. A strong force was sent to levy a fine of 500,000 francs for the offence, but the Mayor invited the officer commanding to burn the town, saying that he neither dared nor would execute any such order.

600,000 men are under arms in Paris. It is confidently believed that the Army of Paris alone will, at no distant date, be more than able to assume the offensive with success against the investing force.

The whole German force now occupying the lines before Paris consists of seven army corps, numbering 280,000 men, besides the cavalry, which will carry the total up to 340,000.

The German works at Sillancourt have been shelled by the Fazy gunboats on the Seine, which were only driven off after a considerable slaughter of the German troops.

A serious engagement occurred in the forest of Fontainblean, near Chailly, Tuesday. The French repulsed the Prussian attack.

The latest advices from Russia are equally hostile to and almost contemptuous of both Germans and French.

AN IMPORTANT SUIT.—A law-suit will soon be brought by the government, in the U. S. Dist. Court in New York, against Jay Cooke & Co., and Vermilye & Co., brokers, for the recovery of $80,000, the amount of 7-30 bonds sold to the government by these firms in 1868, and which proved to be counterfeit. Several thousand dollars of the same kind of notes were also purchased by the government, from other bankers, and the present suits are intended to test the question whether the brokers are responsible for the restitution of the money obtained for the counterfeit notes.

☞ The 9th Maine State Fair at Augusta was the most complete and satisfactory ever held by the Society. In horses the show was immense, there being no less than 344 entries, besides the trotters; and 450 entries of neat stock—the short horns leading, then grades, Jerseys, Herefords, Devons and Ayrshires, following in the order named.

CONNECTICUT ELECTION.—The returns from 133 of the 164 towns in Connecticut, show 66 towns where all the town officers are republican, and 39 where they are all democratic. Ten towns have a republican majority of town officers, and 6 a democratic majority. The board of registration of elections in 12 towns is said to be equally divided. The changes from last year are about equal.

☞ The Mormon Herald recently contained a foul libel on Associate Justice Hawley, and Chief Justice McKean instructed the Grand Jury to bring in an indictment.

A SUBSTITUTE.—Mr. Pilkinson, a farmer of Pennsylvania, was drafted for the service of his country. His wife, though she possessed but a small stock of general information, was one of the best of conjugal partners, and she was much troubled at the thought of parting with her husband. As she was engaged in scrubbing off the doorsteps, a rough-looking fellow came up and thus addressed her:—

"I hear, madam, that your husband has been drafted."

"Yes, sir, he has;" answered Mrs. Pilkinson, "though dear knows there is few could not better be spared from their families."

"Well, madam, I have come to offer myself as a substitute for him."

"A what?" asked Mrs. Pilkinson, with some excitement.

"I am willing to take his place," said the stranger.

"You take the place of my husband, you wretch! I'll teach you to insult a distressed woman in that way, you vagbond!" cried Mrs. Pilkinson, as she discharged the dirty soap-suds in the face of the discomfited substitute, who took to his heels just in time to save his head from being broken by the bucket.

MILK AS A PREVENTIVE OF LEAD POISONING.—M. Didierjean, a red lead manufacturer in France, states that he tried every possible way to keep his workmen in good health, but did not wholly succeed in preventing lead colics until by mere accident he found out that two of his men were never affected in that way. Inquiry brought out the fact that these men regularly took milk as a drink with their meals. He was thus led to try the experiment of making the use of milk (a litre a day) compulsory with the workmen, and he has succeeded by this means in keeping all of them free from any symptom of lead disease for the past eighteen months. The absolute correctness of this statement is confirmed by good authority. The remedy is a simple one, surely, and it ought to be thoroughly tested by every person exposed to the danger of lead poisoning.

ENJOY YOUR WORK.—No man is ever successful in its completest sense, who does not enjoy what he is doing. If your business is dull and uninteresting, and you are always wishing to leave the old homestead and get a place elsewhere, your life will be a miserable failure; but if you love your work, give to your business your best thoughts, enter upon the activities of your position with energy, born of contentment and hope, you will be both a successful and happy man, and no change in the currency or mutations of the markets, that so perplex and trouble other men, can possibly hinder it.

—"Wife," said a broker a few days since, "do you think I shall ever be worth $50,000?" "Ain't I worth that to you?" said the confiding spouse.—"Y-e-s," said the other half, "but then I can't put you out at interest."

—The Cincinnati Enquirer alludes to "an ancient Mormon King named Solomon."

A FRIEND IN NEED.—Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry is a friend in deed. Who has not found it such in curing all diseases of the lungs and throat, coughs, colds, and pulmonary affections, and "last, not least," Consumption? The sick are assured that the high standard of excellence on which the popularity of this preparation is based, will always be maintained by the proprietors.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Bear in Mind.

When disease has undermined the health, and the physical system has become prostrated, a stimulant that will not only strengthen, but remove the cause, should be immediately resorted to. Mental distress is also a fruitful source of the breaking down of the constitution, and the ravages of this enemy to health are truly alarming. For all such maladies HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS have been found unsurpassed. By acting directly upon the digestive organs, they remove the heavy, disagreeable feeling after eating, so often complained of by persons of a delicate temperament. As soon as digestion is restored, the patient finds his strength increasing, and his general health improved.

Thousands of persons certify that it may be relied on in all cases of weakness or nervous debility attendant upon sedentary habits. The generality of Bitters are so disagreeable to the taste that they are objectionable to a weak stomach. This is not the case with Hostetter's Bitters, which will be found mild and extremely pleasant.

Balsamic plants, barks and roots contribute their restorative juices to render it soothing and strengthening. Its basis is the only pure stimulant which has ever been produced, containing no fusil oil, or any other deleterious element. The most careful and skillful chemists have analyzed the Bitters, and pronounce them harmless. This is scientific testimony; but the testimony of the hundreds of thousands who have experienced the preventive and curative effects of the GREAT VEGETABLE TONIC and ALTERATIVE of modern times is still more conclusive. In Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Nervous Complaints, Chronic Complaints and general debility it is as nearly infallible as anything in this fallible world can be. oldawlw

It is a purely vegetable preparation, made from the best and purest materials, safe to keep and to use in every family. It is recommended by physicians and persons of all classes, and to-day, after a public trial of thirty years—the average life of man—it stands unrivalled and unrivalled, spreading its usefulness over the wide world. J. EDGAR THOMPSON, CHARLES L. FROST, } Trustees.

The greater part of the road is already completed, and the earnings from the finished portion are already more than sufficient to pay operating expenses and interest on the bonds. The balance of the work is progressing rapidly, in time for the movement of the coming grain crops, which, it is estimated will double the present income of the road.

The established character of this line, running as it does through the heart of the most thickly settled and richest portion of the great State of Iowa, together with its present advanced condition and large earnings warrant us in unhesitatingly recommending these bonds to investors, as, in every respect, an undoubted security.

These bonds have 30 years to run, are convertible at the option of the holder into the stock of the company at par, and the payment of the principal is provided for by a sinking fund. The convertible privilege attached to these bonds cannot fail to cause them at no distant day to command a market price considerably above par, besides paying about 9 per cent., currency, interest in the meanwhile. U. S. Five-twenties, at present prices only return five per cent.; and we regard the security equally safe.

Piscataqua Fair Notice.
Situation Wanted—American Woman.
Girl Wanted—J. M. Davis.
Notice—Portsmouth Gas Light Co.

NEW SUBSCRIBERS who now pay in full in advance, for the DAILY CHRONICLE or the N. H. GAZETTE, for the year 1871, will be furnished with either paper gratis until Jan.

☞ JOB AND CARD PRINTING is neatly promptly and cheaply done at the Chronicle and Gazette Office; and the patronage of friends in this line is respectfully solicited, and satisfaction guaranteed.

☞ ADVERTISEMENTS, whether transient notices or by yearly contracts, are inserted in both the Daily Chronicle and Weekly Gazette, or in either one of these papers only, as desired. And while there is no better advertising medium in this County, our rates are reasonable, especially to regular yearly patrons.

☞ THE NEW HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE for this week, is now ready for delivery, at the Chronicle Office. Each number contains all the reading matter of the week's Dailies. Price $2 a year; single copies 5 cents,—in wrappers for mailing, if desired. Six copies for $10 per year, to Clubs—per mail or city carrier.

☞ The wife of Rev. W. A. P. Dillingham, formerly of the Universalist Church of this city, died at the residence of her husband in Sidney, Me., last week, aged 54 years.

☞ The Secretary informs us that entries are already coming in well for the Piscataqua Fair next week. No charge is made for entries of stock, fancy goods, or any article but trotters. The stallion race will be especially interesting, it is expected.

☞ The Pearl Street Freewill Baptist Society of this city are indebted to Mrs. S. S. Sullivan of Boston, for the gift of a very handsome Silver Communion Service, with box and cloths complete—of the value of nearly $100. A liberal donation for a worthy object.

☞ Our notice of the Jubilee Concert Tuesday evening was written by one who did not attend, and was based on mistaken information, and more complimentary than the facts warranted, except as regards Cushing's Orchestra. The Jubilee was not a great success, we are sorry to say.

☞ The Anchor-boy, from up river, arrived at the Navy Yard Wednesday evening, in tow of steamers Emerald and Portfire and the steam cutter of the Yard. The steam fire engine was detached from the scow by the divers, and now lies near Boiling Rock, buoyed out, so that the divers can operate for her recovery.

P. W. T. A. SOC. — The following gentlemen were elected Officers of the Portsmouth Washingtonian Total Abstinence Society, at the recent Annual Meeting:—

John S. Rand, President; Lot M. Harmon, Vice Pres; F. W. Rogers, Sec. and Treasr. Geo. M. Adams, C. P. Smith, Henry A. Yeaton, A. F. Craig, C. M. Dinsmore, C. E. T. Yeaton, Executive Committee.

THEATRE. — The Bidwell company open to-night at the Temple with Shakspeare's Romeo & Juliet, in which R. S. Meldrum and Dollie Bidwell have the conspicuous characters. The farce which concludes the entertainment, "Brother Bill and Me," was played at the last Grand Army Fair by the Portsmouth Thespians, and is a ludicrous, mirth-provoking performance.

VERY STRANGE.—Our umbrella has gone again. It was kicked about the office all through the dry season, and nobody even offered to steal it; we had begun to fancy that nobody ever would steal it. But when the big rain came, we went for it and found it not—its glory had departed, and it too; therefore we mourn. It's very strange, that somebody else should always need our umbrella just exactly at the time when we want it ourself. P.

☞ The Chronicle has had few more continuous and liberal advertising patrons than John S. Harvey, Esq., and the editors have always found in him, likewise, a personal friend. We are indebted to him for a liberal sample of his harvest of Isabella Grapes,—and we have rarely if ever eaten better ripened or sweeter fruit of this kind, even from New York.

And this reminds us, that we omitted to acknowledge, from our old neighbor and friend over the way, Mrs. John Hodgdon, a week or two ago,—a plate of the handsomest Bartlett Pears we have seen, even this fine season for such fruit.

☞ The census shows that in Iowa there are forty thousand more men than women, and in Massachusetts forty thousand more women than men. Why should not those forty thousand Massachusetts ladies at once emigrate to Iowa?

OLD TIME CHRONICLES, No. 19.

BY UNCLE JOSEPH.

WHITEFIELD'S LAST PREACHING IN PORTSMOUTH.—Rev. Geo. Whitefield preached at Hampton, Oct. 1st, 1740. He might have been in Portsmouth about that time, and again later, as he was in New England several times. But he preached in Portsmouth in Sept., 1770. The first time was the 24th day. The next day he preached again. His text was, "This man receiveth sinners."

The same week he spoke once in Kittery, and once in York. Sept. 28th, he preached the last time in Portsmouth, the next day at Exeter, and the day following died in Newburyport.

Just at what place or places he preached in Portsmouth, does not appear. Rev. Samuel Langdon was pastor of the North Church, and Rev. Samuel Haven of the South Church. One who belonged to Newcastle, heard Whitefield at the time, and in writing of it afterward, mentioned that the meeting on the 25th, was in the great meeting house. We think this was the late old North Church. That had been built then. Perhaps the one called the South had, but if we recollect aright, the North was the larger. Both, however, were large.

Mr. Whitefield died 100 years ago last Friday, (Sept. 30.) His age was 55 years.

New Hampshire Items.

Mr. Geo. Watson committed suicide in Boston last week, by cutting his throat. He was formerly of Concord, and is well remembered by horse men there. He was a great sufferer from rheumatism, which was doubtless the cause of his rash act. He was a native of Pittsfield, and aged about seventy.

A little north of Newport, men are at work turning the stream of the Sugar River a short distance, to save the construction of bridges on the Sugar River Railroad. A large portion of the grading of the road, between South Sunapee and Bradford, is completed.

From the report of the engineer who has surveyed the route of the proposed Peterborough & Hillsborough Railroad, we learn that the length of the road would be eighteen miles, ten and a half of which are level, and the remainder of a grade of eighty feet to a mile.

☞ Letters from General Sheridan, who is still at the Prussian headquarters, state that he has witnessed all the battles from the beginning of the war, and he expresses a positive opinion that neither the French nor the Prussian soldiers are equal to our own in point of intelligence, skill and arms. Our Remington breech-loader, he says, is far superior to the Chassepot or needle gun. He will remain at the Prussian headquarters, probably, until the close of the siege of Paris.

☞ The sixty-first annual convention of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, assembled Tuesday in Brooklyn, the president of the board, Rev. Mark Hopkins, D. D., presiding. There was a large attendance of distinguished clergymen and laymen. Several important and interesting reports were made.

☞ The Boston "Universalist" newspaper of last week issued an extra sheet the full size of their regular issue, an elegant paper of 32 long columns, containing a very full and complete account of the Centennial Jubilee at Gloucester — of special interest to the denomination, and not without value to the general reader.

☞ The Massachusetts Republican State Convention re-nominated Gov. Claflin on Wednesday, with 20 dissenting votes.

—A French lady recently told her husband that if he ever deceived her, she would kill herself. "Pray, do not, my love," responded the husband; "think what a disarrangement it would cause in the house."

—One evening at a social gathering a lady played a piece of music consisting of twenty-four pages. A gentleman, on referring to it next day, said they were favored with music by the quire.

—A young man on the street, being charged with being lazy, was asked if he took it from his father. "I think not," said the scurrilous son; "father has got all the laziness he ever had."

THE TEMPERANCE RESOLUTIONS.—We give elsewhere, as a matter of news, and also by request, the series of resolutions passed by the executive committee of the temperance party at Concord on Wednesday. They indicate that the organization is to be kept up, and that, possibly, the thousand who voted for Dr. Barrows last March may vote for him again provided he is again a candidate, of which he himself indicates a doubt. The reasons which he is stated to have given for declining to be again the standard-bearer of the party, strike us as hardly sound.

How one's health is to be impaired and one's labor augmented by the mere fact of receiving a few votes for governor, is not apparent. If the fact be that it takes a good deal of hard work, as we suspect it does, to get even a small vote, his excuse for retiring is a good one. But where will the "coming man" of the third party come from? Will he be Col. Pierce, Rev. Mr. Babcock, or Dr. Aiken of Amherst? If Mr. Phillips could only stand for two States as for two parties, the conundrum would be quickly solved.

The resolutions in the main are well enough. They are as unlike the fierce fulmination of last winter as water is unlike gunpowder. Even the third party is learning moderation, and although they put their case firmly they breathe no defiance and no slaughter.

We cannot help thinking that these men, who make so much ado on paper, could accomplish a great deal more if they would go stoutly to work to secure the enforcement of the liquor law in their respective towns. Any one or any dozen of them can secure that result much more easily and less expensively, than they can go to Concord and return. But then little notoriety would come from such a course, while the other brings a good deal.—Nashua Telegraph.

THE TEMPERANCE RESOLUTIONS.—The following are the resolutions passed at Concord, by the "State Central Committee" of the Temperance Party:

Resolved, That we acknowledge the good hand of God in the growth of our cause and of our principles, since our organization as a party in this State.

Resolved, That we have no desire to build up a political party, distinct from those now in existence, for any mere personal or party purposes; but we earnestly desire to see the government of the State administered in the real interest of the people, which we believe to lie very largely in the direction of morality, industry and education.

Resolved, That the welfare of the people is above the interests of party; and that to promote the highest welfare of the people, pecuniary, social, moral and religious, the unlawful traffic in intoxicating liquors, as now existing in the State, must be stopped.

Resolved, That the time has come when obedience to law should be popular and politic, and when all our State offices should be filled by men who will be true to their oaths respecting the enforcement of the laws, especially those relating to morality, and most emphatically including our excellent prohibitory law, and who direct their efforts that way, and the party that will inaugurate this policy, and make it effective, shall be our party.

Resolved, That the principle on which the temperance party was formed was, that it is the duty of the civil government to prevent the traffic in intoxicating drinks, which no party then existing in the State would attempt to do, both being mixed parties on prohibition, and no mixed party will rise above its average sentiment.

Resolved, That transpiring events in our own other New England states since last January, abundantly confirm the wisdom of our party organization at that time, and we are now more than ever convinced that the temperance cause, with all its social and moral appliances, can never meet with marked and permanent success without a vigorous and well enforced prohibition.

Resolved, That the principle upon which we are organized and have acted thus far compels us to adhere to our present organization and course of action, until we reach the object for which we labor, viz., the enforcement of our prohibitory law as faithfully and vigorously as other criminal laws.

Resolved, That as no other party has undertaken this work, and so far pledged itself to it as to put prohibition into its platform, and to make its nominations with a view to this end, we must, as patriotic and christian men, continue our organization; we are greatly encouraged in this course by the deepening and widening conviction in the public mind that this is the only hope of deliverance from the almost unlimited sale of intoxicating liquors, and the consequent ruin of the rising generation.

Resolved, That we have no hope that either of the other existing parties in the State will make prohibition an issue before the people, so long as they can retain temperance voters in their parties; and for this reason we call on all true temperance men to come out of those parties, and strengthen our cause, till our opponents find they can succeed only by adopting our principles. And history shows us, that this is the successful method of political warfare.

Resolved, That so far as practical results are concerned, it makes no difference whether the uncommitted parties put up for office temperance or anti-temperance men, inasmuch as no candidate, when elected, is expected to go beyond his party, and he tacitly agrees, in accepting a nomination from an uncommitted party, that he will not disturb, betray, or divide his party by going beyond its platform.

Resolved, That we take immediate measures to complete and strengthen our State organization, and prepare for a more vigorous campaign next March, and that we do all we can to promulgate these our principles among temperance people.

Resolved, That we recognize in the Prohibition Herald, edited by Dr. Barrows of Tilton, an earnest and faithful advocate of the cause, and commend it to the patronage of the friends of temperance in all parts of our State.

HARVESTING CORN.—A Vermont correspondent of the New England Farmer makes the following timely suggestions regarding the easiest and cheapest method of harvesting corn:

"A bench, sixteen or eighteen inches in height, is made of a plank or slab six or eight feet long, by boring holes, and putting in four long legs. This is easily moved about the field. Lay the corn across this bench, place the basket at the bottom of the bundle, and sit astride the bench. This arrangement brings everything handy, and a smart man will husk from 25 to 40 bushels in a day by daylight.

It can be unloaded in the evening, which is safer than husking by lantern-light. When the bundles are husked, set up the fodder as you would shock grain, putting in ten to twenty bundles, and throw the scatterings and three or four bundles on top for a "cap" to keep out the rain. Fodder put up in this way will keep out till snow comes, if you wish it, without injury. It will dry off nicely and not heat and mould in the mow.

You can husk and crib up your corn early, when the weather is warm, leaving the fodder to cure in the field, and when you cart it, put it where you wish it to remain. This saves one handling — Pitching heavy stocks of corn on and off a cart is very hard work, the bundles are liable to be torn to pieces in the process, and the fodder, if packed in any considerable quantity, is liable to heat, and be very badly damaged."

PRUNING DWARF PEARS.—An experienced pear culturist says that he has examined thousands of dwarf pear-trees in the grounds of others; and has never seen good, healthy, vigorous trees where annual pruning has been omitted. Near his orchard, which contains 2000 healthy, thrifty dwarf pear-trees, a neighbor planted trees at the same time, obtained from the same source, and of the same age as his. This neighbor pruned a little the first and second years; but last year, his trees being full of blossom-buds, he allowed them to bear and left them unpruned. The season was a dry one, the fruit did not fully mature, and now from one-half to two-thirds of the trees are dead; while trees on which the previous year's growth of wood was cut back from one-half to two-thirds, are healthy and vigorous, and had an abundance of fruit-spurs and buds.—Boston Journal of Chemistry.

Late Commissioner of Patents.

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me THIRTEEN applications, in all but ONE of which patents have been granted, and that one is now pending. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGHART."

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT?

IF SO, SELECT THE BEST, which is

AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.

It has proved itself, West, North and South, to be the best Paint known. It will not peel, crack, nor chalk off, and will last twice as long as the best Lead Paints.

It is cheaper, handsomer and more elastic, than the best of other Paints. It is the most convenient Paint made, being mixed, ready for application; it dries rapidly, and retains its shade perfectly, with a beautiful surface and glossy finish, and for years retains its gloss and beauty. It is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper, making a smooth glossy finish, which can be cleaned with hot suds without injury.

One Gallon of Mixed Lead Paint weighs 20 lbs. and costs $2.72, and will only cover 16 square yds, 2 coats: while one gallon of the Chemical Paint only weighs 10 lbs., and costs but $2.50, and will cover 20 square yds., 2 coats,—thus making a saving of 22 cts., per gallon, besides covering 4 yards more than Lead Paint, and will last twice as long and look far better.

The Chemical Paint is sold by the gallon in quantities to suit purchasers, in 40 different shades and pure white, and will be applied by experienced workmen and satisfaction given in every case; or in case of dissatisfaction in one year after put on, the whole cost of Paint will be refunded.

The sale of these unequalled Paints are daily increasing. Call and examine these ready mixed Paints, both in kegs, and applied to Buildings one year ago, before buying elsewhere, and save your money and money, and beautify your dwelling by using the DUPONCO'S GOLDEN PILL. FOR FEMALES.

Infallible in correcting irregularities, and removing obstructions of the monthly periods. It is over forty years since these now so well known pills were first brought to notice by Dr. Duponco, of Paris, during which time they have been extensively and successfully used by some of the leading physicians, with unparalleled success. Ladies in poor health, either married or single, suffering from any of the Complaints peculiar to Females, will find the Duponco Golden Pills invaluable, viz., General Debility, Headache, Faintness, Loss of Appetite, Mental Depression, Pain in the Back and Limbs, Pain in the Loins, Bearing-down Pains, Palpitation of the Heart, Retained, Excessive, Irregular or Painful Menstruation, Rush of Blood to Head, Dizziness, Dimness of Sight, Fatigue on any slight exertion, and particularly that most annoying, weakening ailment, so common among Females, both married and single, the Leucorrhœa or Whites. Females in every period of life will find Duponco's Pills a remedy to aid nature in the discharge of its functions. They invigorate the debilitated and delicate, and by regulating and strengthening the system, prepare the youthful constitution for the duties of life, and when taken by those in the life or old age they prove a perfect blessing. There is nothing in the pills that can do injury to life or health. Safe in their operation, unequalled in their happy influences upon the Nerves, the Mind and the entire organization. S. D. HOWE, Proprietor, N. Y. ALVAN LITTLEFIELD, Boston, Agent, N. E. States.

A RAILROAD TO THE CLOUDS.—We have recently been on an expedition to the clouds, taking railroad direct to that misty region. But, as is usually the case when we attain to extraordinary results by any human art or invention, our ambition is only excited to reach further, or mount higher. We are now waiting for some one to construct a railroad to the moon, and when such a line of communication is opened we shall engage passage without investigating or questioning the safety of the device. Any one who has been above the clouds by rail, and reached that altitude by direct, almost perpendicular ascent, is prepared to go in any direction where audacious man may place his iron bars, and blow his steam whistle.

The railway from the base to the summit of Mount Washington in New Hampshire, is a marvel of modern engineering, skill and daring. The road is constructed up the face of the huge rock, the grade being much of the way "very heavy," or equal to one foot ascent in three. This gives an upward inclination about equivalent to the roofs of our Gothic edifices, and when the engine is up the incline and stationary, it seems at a little distance to be clinging to the rock in a most fearful position.

We may well imagine it to be some strange live animal, which has crawled up to a dangerous point on the cliff, and is there fixed, not daring to go forward or backward, for fear of a tumble. The track is laid to the very summit of the mountain, and the train enters and often passes above the clouds, which usually rest upon the lofty peak.

This railroad is a great steam elevator of peculiar or novel construction, and it accomplishes an end which has never been reached before in the history of engineering. It requires about one and a half hours to "go up," including three stops to "take in water." It is estimated that the train would come down in 3 minutes if left to itself. We hope it will never be "left to itself," and that its tracks and cogs will never "play false" when they are pressed upon by a human freight. A train of passengers left to go down that fearful incline would be instantly torn or crushed to a jelly.

But we are asked, "is it safe?" We have perhaps given a satisfactory practical expression of our views upon this point, by placing ourself and family in charge of the engineer, and making the ascent. If we were asked if we would make a second excursion, some hesitation would be manifested before replying, yes; and yet abundant and efficient safeguards are provided against accident, and we do not well see how one can occur.—Journal of Chemistry.

The great triumph of railway engineering closed for the season on Sept. 20th, having carried, without accident, nearly 6,000 persons, running 119 passenger and 58 freight trains, under the immediate supervision of that trio of faithful and enterprising men, Capt. John W. Dodge, (of Hampton Falls,) Manager, Charles L. Aiken, Conductor, and Daniel Kidder, Master Mechanic,—under the general superintendence of the ingenious inventor, Walter Aiken, a heavy stockholder and director of the road, and constructor of the three engines and cars, and contractor for running the road the present year.

The railway is three miles long, having an average grade of 1900 feet to the mile, the heaviest grade being 18 1-2 inches to the yard for one-fourth of a mile. One hour and a half is required for ascent or descent.

Each car has its own engine, which is always attached to the downward end of the car, which, with its engines, carries gears which connect with a middle cog-rail of the track by which the ascent and descent of the train is made, and the movement of the train is regulated by eight different braking arrangements, rendering the trip a pleasant and safe one, and showing that everything that ingenuity could invent and skill accomplish has been used to make the undertaking a grand success as regards safety, durability, pleasure and profit.

At the summit are five buildings, comprising two hotels, (The Tip-Top and Summit Houses), the depot, and two stables for the horses and carriages used on the carriage road from the Glen and Alpine Houses, at the foot of the eastern slope of the mountain, at a distance of eight or ten miles from the summit.

These five buildings at the summit are all firmly anchored to the rocks with heavy cable chains passing over their roofs, to prevent their destruction by the heavy winds which frequent that locality.

During the last month Prof. Agassiz made two trips to the mountains, as well as other trips there during the season, and claims to have made some valuable discoveries. The mountain travel being closed, the extra railroad trains and stage lines have been discontinued, and the hotel proprietors are preparing their winter quarters, and, till the return of the summer's sun and the crack of the driver's whip, we will leave them "alone in their glory."—Mirror.

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL,
FOR DISEASES OF THE THROAT and LUNGS, such as COUGHS, COLDS, WHOOPING COUGH, BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA and CONSUMPTION.
Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men, it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most efficacious remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a provision against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with it for use when needed.
Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.
Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.
Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses.
For a Cough and Cold, no better remedy can be had. Take a small dose three times a day and put the feet in warm water at night, until the disease is broken up.
For Inflammation, when it affects the throat or lungs, take the same course.
For Whooping Cough, give small doses three or four times a day.
For Croup, give large and frequent doses until the disease is overcome.
No family should be without the Cherry Pectoral on hand to protect them, in case of attack, from the above complaints. Its timely use often spares the patient a great amount of suffering and risk, which he would incur by waiting until he could get other aid. Parents, keep it in your houses for the exigencies that arise. Lives dear to you may be saved by it.
So generally are its virtues known, that we need not publish certificates of them here, or do more than assure the public that the best qualities it ever possessed are strictly maintained.
Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co.,

FRIDAY, OCT. 7, 1870.

WAR TALK.—The dispatches from Europe are made up of accounts of unimportant skirmishes between detached bodies of the rival armies, but no serious engagements are reported.

The preparations for a regular attack on the fortifications, and for shelling Paris, have been completed. The siege guns and mortars have arrived and been placed in position for immediate operations.

M. Thier's complete failure at St. Petersburg is certain. Russia having assured the powers of her peaceful intentions.

Advices from Paris say that there has been no street rioting or fighting whatever, and that all stories to that effect are utter and absolute fabrications.

Bazaine still adheres to the Emperor. The besieged are constantly sending up balloons from Metz.

The Prussians at Berlin have settled that Strasbourg shall never revert to France.

The rumors of Von Moltke's death are credited in London.

A London telegram says "the Empress Eugenie is evidently resolved to maintain her authority as Regent of France." She will have a good time doing it.

On Monday, the French made a brilliant sortie from Soissons, drove the Prussians back a considerable distance, burned their supplies and shelter, and, having effected these exploits, retired within the Soissons gates.

Another column of Germans, marching to Fontainebleau, was ambushed, routed and driven back, with serious loss, to Chailly.

The late battle which occurred near Crateau Gailliard on the 4th has been productive of important results. The Prussians were defeated and forced to retreat. The position taken by the French was one that necessitated the evacuation of Pithiriers by the enemy. The Prussians abandoned that point with so much precipitation that many cattle and a large amount of forage, &c., were left behind, all of which fell into the hands of the French.

A despatch from Nancy says that the French have made numerous sorties from Metz within the past few days. The object of these sorties is incomprehensible, as the French invariably encounter furious Prussian assaults the moment they get beyond the range of the guns at Metz. The latest sortie was made upon Tuesday, but was without strategic effect. The losses on both sides were small.

☞ In Baltimore, Tuesday morning, the roof of one of the retort houses of the Baltimore City Gas Company fell in with a tremendous crash. There were twelve men in the building, but fortunately only five of them were injured. One of them was fatally hurt.

☞ The assertion of the right of colored persons to place their children in the public schools, has created disturbance in Cummingsville, N. Y., and has caused some teachers and white children to leave.

☞ During a fight between Peter Cassidy and his wife, in a tenement house in New York, Mrs. Cassidy threw Peter out of a third-story window, breaking both of his legs and arms.

☞ Woman suffrage was voted down in the Massachusetts Republican Convention, 196 to 136. A prohibition resolution was defeated nearly unanimously.

☞ Ex-Queen Isabella of Spain has gone to Switzerland, where she will reside. It does not matter much, where she goes or what she does.

☞ The members of the G. A. R. of Essex County, Mass., had a reunion and procession on Thursday at Newburyport.

☞ About a mile of the snow sheds on the Central Pacific Railroad, near Cisco, were burned Wednesday morning.

☞ The front name of Gen. von Moltke is Helmuth Karl Bernhard.

—A singular fatality occurred in England, recently. A fly, after having been upon poisoned paper, fly paper, alighted upon a lady's nose, upon a spot where there had been a slight scratch, leaving a fresh open wound. The wound almost immediately became inflamed, and in a short time the whole system was affected, and the lady died in twenty-four hours.

—A hog entered a grocery store in Brunswick, Me., recently, when a dog attacked him, bit off his tail, then seized him by the ear, and led him shrieking back to his quarters in the rear. The dog then returned to the store, picked up the tail and carried it out to the hog.

CONGRESS AT WELLS. — Very few people, probably, are aware that a Session of Congress was ever held at Wells, Maine; and the following account, which we copy from the Brunswick Telegraph, will be found interesting. It was brought out at the late meeting of the Maine Historical Society, of which Judge Bourne is President:

The following showing the importance of preserving ancient records, was introduced in a speech made by Judge Bourne at York, and to him we are indebted for a copy of the bill referred to—also for the proceedings of the Congress in Wells:

"That you may understand the possible value of any old writing or paper, I will relate a little circumstance connected with my historical researches. I had known of what was termed a congress in the County of York. The New Hampshire Gazette said this congress was holden in Wells, but another record of great value, said it was holden at York. I tried to ascertain what was right, but could find nowhere any reference to it. This uncertainty I tried three or four years to remove, but all my labor was in vain.

I called at the house of a friend, while in the pursuit of my researches, and inquired if her ancestors left any old books or papers. She at once replied, "None." I said again, "Are you sure?" "Yes, I am." Stopping for a moment, she said—"We have an old cyphering book of Major Daniel Littlefield; you don't want that, do you?" "Yes, I am sure I do." She brought it down to me, and on the very first page were the charges of bowls of punch, toddy, dinners, breakfasts, horse-keeping, &c., for this very congress while sitting there — Littlefield keeping a public house in Wells."

KENNEBUNK, Sept. 3, 70.

Dear Sir:—At your request I send a copy of the account to which I referred in my remarks, on our field days, at York and Kittery. Yours resp'y,

—— E. E. BOURNE.

PROCEEDINGS OF YORK CO. CONGRESS.

His Majesty's loyal subjects, the delegates of the several towns of the County of York, deputed to meet in County Congress held at Wells the 16th day of Nov., 1774, truly professing ourselves liege subjects of his Majesty King George the 3d, and sincere friends to all our fellow subjects in Britain and the Colonies, for the necessary defence of our liberties and privileges, come into the following resolutions:

Resolved that the people have a right to tax themselves; and no other persons, assemblies or parliaments have; and the English acts to tax them are unconstitutional.

Resolved that all civil officers in the County ought to exercise their powers, as tho' these acts had not been passed, that venires for Jurors ought to issue and be obeyed as before.

Resolved that this Congress recommend to every individual to use his influence for peace.

Whereas William Peperell, Baronet, in his life time, honestly acquired a large estate, and gave the highest evidence, not only of his being a sincere friend to the rights of man, in general, but having a fraternal love to this country in particular; and whereas his son William, to whom his estate was devised, with purpose to carry into effect acts of the British Parliament made with the design to enslave the free and loyal people of this continet, did accept and now holds a seat at the pretended Board of Counselors in this province, —therefore forfeited confidence; it is recommended to the people, and his lessess, to withdraw all connexion, commerce and dealings with him, and take no leases of his farms or mills; and if anybody does deal with him, we recommend the people to have no dealings or intercourse with such an one.

Resolved that the thanks of this County are due to the worthy and patriotic members of the Continental Congress, for their noble and faithful exertions in the cause of their country.

WM. LEIGHTON, Clerk.

REDEMPTION OF ROME.—There is something very suggestive in the exhilarating accounts we have had of the reception accorded to the Italian troops by the people of Rome. It would seem that greater joy could scarcely have swelled the bosom of those captives who were delivered, a year or two ago, from the grasp of the barbarous African, King Theodore; certainly that no such joy has of late years been exhibited by any people on the mere change of rulers, as was evidenced by these recent subjects of the Holy Father, His Holiness, the Infallible Vice-Gerent of God on Earth—or whatever other astounding titles may be assumed by or ascribed to Pope Pius IX.

☞ Intelligence has been received of the death of Fitz-Hugh Ludlow at Geneva, Switzerland. He was a brilliant magazine writer, and author of several popular volumes.

☞ Ex-Governor Samuel Cony of Maine died at his residence in Augusta, October 4th.

FIRST STEPS IN ENGLISH LITERATURE, by Arthur Gilman, A. M. In one volume, 16 mo., cloth. Price $1. This beautiful little book has been prepared with great care, and with special reference to the needs of students who desire an introduction to the study of English Literature, and not a substitute for that study, and is offered to the attention of teachers and all interested in Education. The Publishers, Messrs. Hurd & Houghton, believe that the book, besides its value as a text-book, will be kept by the student as a most useful vade mecum in his after reading. They call attention to the thoroughness with which the work is furnished; in addition to the clear and comprehensive body of the book, there is a Chart showing the language of Europe, two Charts of the great periods of English Literature, a careful list of available editions of all books referred to in First Steps, Hints at the Explanation of Titles, Pronunciation, etc, and a minute and careful index.

There are brief biographies of 149 authors, and it should be noted that due prominence is given to the American contributors to English Literature. The author has never lost sight of the fact that there is an urgent need of a small book that can be mastered by the scholar, and so systematically arranged as to aid and not task the memory. The work is highly endorsed by the very best authorities, and may be had at Foster's book store.

Correspondence of Chronicle and Gazette.

KITTERY, ME., Oct. 6.

Last Sunday evening Armory Hall was well filled, on the occasion of Rev. Mr. Bicknell's giving a very able and interesting discourse—subject, "What shall I do?" I think it was the most interesting lecture I ever heard. Mr. Bicknell spoke of the white hands exhibited by some young ladies, while their mothers are toiling in the kitchen, as being light-houses to warn off young men; and the speaker expressed but little reverence for the young men who spend their time loafing around, sipping beer and smoking, while their fathers are laboring for their support. He also spoke keenly of our fear of being contaminated by associating with any one we consider beneath us socially, and urged that we should extend a helping hand to the fallen, and not push them still lower.

About forty persons assembled at the residence of Thos. Rice, Esq., on Wednesday evening, on the occasion of the christening of Katie Louise and John H., two beautiful little children of Mr. and Mrs. Hallowell Dickenson. Rev. Mr. Bicknell performed the ceremony; after which the guests partook of a sumptuous repast,—and then music, song and good cheer wore away the time till a late hour.

Rev. Mr. Hutchinson of this town is a naturalist, and has many fine specimens, among them a buautiful one of the trilobite, an extinct crustacean, taken from a quarry in Ohio. Besides being a naturalist, Mr. H. is an old teacher, (tho' not an old man,) served with honor during the Rebellion, in the Union army, and is a bold and outspoken opponent of vice and wrong. K. M.

THE GREAT ENIGMA.—A thousand guesses have been made at the ingredients of SOZODONT, the most wholesome and perfect dental purifier the world has ever seen. They were all wrong, so, by way of throwing a little light on the subject, it is now announced that the LIBER, or inner bark of the QUILLAYA SAPONORIA, the Soap Tree of the Valley of the Andes, is one of the components of that peerless dentrifice.

"SPALDING'S GLUE," useful and true.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Bear in Mind.

When disease has undermined the health, and the physical system has become prostrated, a stimulant that will not only strengthen, but remove the cause, should be immediately resorted to. Mental distress is also a fruitful source of the breaking down of the constitution, and the ravages of this enemy to health are truly alarming. For all such maladies HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS have been found unsurpassed. By acting directly upon the digestive organs, they remove the heavy, disagreeable feeling after eating, so often complained of by persons of a delicate temperament. As soon as digestion is restored, the patient finds his strength increasing, and his general health improved.

Thousands of persons certify that it may be relied on in all cases of weakness or nervous debility attendant upon sedentary habits. The generality of Bitters are so disagreeable to the taste that they are objectionable to a weak stomach. This is not the case with Hostetter's Bitters, which will be found mild and extremely pleasant. Balsamic plants, barks and roots contribute their restorative juices to render it soothing and strengthening. Its basis is the only pure stimulant which has ever been produced, containing no fusil oil, or any other deleterious element. The most careful and skillful chemists have analyzed the Bitters, and pronounce them harmless. This is scientific testimony; but the testimony of the hundreds of thousands who have experienced the preventive and curative effects of the GREAT VEGETABLE TONIC and ALTERATIVE of modern times is still more conclusive. In Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Nervous Complaints, Chronic Complaints and general debility it is as nearly infallible as anything in this fallible world can be. oldawlw

J. EDGAR THOMPSON, CHARLES L. FROST, } Trustees.

The greater part of the road is already completed, and the earnings from the finished portion are already more than sufficient to pay operating expenses and interest on the bonds. The balance of the work is progressing rapidly, in time for the movement of the coming grain crops, which, it is estimated will double the present income of the road.

The established character of this line, running as it does through the heart of the most thickly settled and richest portion of the great State of Iowa, together with its present advanced condition and large earnings warrant us in unhesitatingly recommending these bonds to investors, as, in every respect, an undoubted security.

These bonds have 50 years to run, are convertible at the option of the holder into the stock of the company at par, and the payment of the principal is provided for by a sinking fund. The convertibility privilege attached to these bonds cannot fail to cause them at no distant day to command a market price considerably above par, besides paying about 9 per cent., currency, interest in the meanwhile. U. S. Five-twenties, at present prices only return five per cent.; and we regard the security equally safe.

☞ In reply to numerous inquiries, we will state that we believe the premiums for the Piscataqua Fair are about the same as last year and heretofore, only there is no charge for articles entered this time—which ought to largely increase the show. The spacious building on the grounds will be reserved for fruits, vegetables, fancy goods, &c., as usual.

☞ A very fine audience was in attendance at the Theatre, last evening. A change of programme is announced for to-night. Dolly Bidwell will take the part of Topsey in Uncle Tom's Cabin, and R. S. Meldrum is cast as George Harris. The company is good, as usual, there being but few changes from former times. They are popular and always received with welcome by theatre goers.

ANOTHER FISH STORY.—On Tuesday last, we gave an account of the whale adventure of Capt. John Vennard. Since that time we have heard another one—reliable, as it comes to us o-fishally. The head of this adventure is also named John, but is not a captain, although he accidentally lost both his hands in the patriotic duty of firing a salute on the Parade in honor of the surrender of the rebel Gen. Lee.

He relates that a few days since he was near Newcastle, fishing; and that while leaning over the side of the boat, he dropped from his pocket a valuable gold watch, the gift of an old friend. The time-piece glittering in the clear water, was enticing to a huge, hungry sculpin, (hundreds of which were around the boat,) who in the view of John at once seized and gobbled down his watch, and swam away in evident delight. John bewailed his loss, not so much for its money value as on account of the manner in which he came in possession thereof. Fortunately, two hours later, and at a distance of over a mile from where the accident occurred he observed a lot of sculpins; in one of which he distinctly heard the well known tick of his watch! He cautiously and quickly speared the fish, and strange as it may seem, upon disembowelling him, in the stomach of the sculpin he found his watch, in good running order, and keeping as correct time as ever. "If you don't believe it, ask John."

"WOODMAN, SPARE THAT TREE." Messrs. Editors: Allow me to inquire why such vandalism is allowed in this city, as exhibited in the wholesale destruction of the symmetry and beauty of the shade trees, whose waving branches have so gracefully ornamented our streets and been so serviceable during the hot days of summer. Is it on account of a scarcity of fire-wood; or if necessity required the removal of more stray limbs, why not stop them? Why such a merciless onslaught? One is reminded of the fable of "the trees and the axe." And such an ignoring of all taste and skill in the art of pruning, is truly shocking. A CITIZEN.

[Reply.—The trees about town are being properly pruned by competent hands, as ordered by the Board of Aldermen, as necessity required, and in accordance with the request of many citizens, who do not relish a slap in the eyes, or to have the top of a carriage scraped off, by a low-hanging limb. In most streets in the city where there are trees, they hung too low; and when loaded with rain, snow or ice, would droop still more—and Mr. Wm. Plaisted, who has charge of the pruning this season, is fully competent for any business in the tree line, being one of the best and most experienced gardeners in the city.

When Capt. Robt. Shillaber pruned the street trees, a few years since, there was the same complaint, by those who are more zealous than wise in the matter, and seem to think that nobody knows or appreciates a tree but themselves. City or town officers of course have control of the trees in the streets, but nobody is less likely to injure them than they; and no limb should hang nearer the street than fifteen feet, or hackmen and others seated on high loads or carriages are endangered. Neither are low-growing trees beautiful, healthy, or any way desirable, in the street. We do not think that "A Citizen" or any other man, has the least cause for complaint in this regard.—Eds. Chron.]

☞ ADVERTISEMENTS, whether transient notices or by yearly contracts, are inserted in both the Daily Chronicle and Weekly Gazette, or in either one of these papers only, as desired. And while there is no better advertising medium in this County, our rates are reasonable, especially to regular yearly patrons.

☞ THE NEW HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE for this week, is now ready for delivery, at the Chronicle Office. Each number contains all the reading matter of the week's Dailies. ☞ The handsome black stallion Fearnaught Prince, of Stratham Hill Stock Farm, a son of Fearnaught and grandson of Young Morrill, is entered to trot in the Stallion race at the Piscataqua Fair next week. His owner, Mr. Wm. G. Brown, who raised old Fearnaught, thinks still more highly of the Prince, than of his noble and noted sire; but on account of his age, and the great and continued call for his service in the stud, has heretofore refused to let him frot races, until this year—when he won at Kingston, his first entry. Fearnaught Prince is now six years old, and it seems is not afraid to meet all comers. Naturally enough,—people have said, because he has not trotted, that he cannot; but he astonished some folks by his way of going, at Kingston, and we have ridden after him, with two in a wagon, about as fast as we care to go on the road. If he doesn't show well at the coming Fair, we think it must be because he is out of fix.

☞ The government is about to institute suits for the recovery of over a million dollars in bonds, given by whiskey and tobacco dealers in New York city, who subsequently went out of business largely in arrears to the government for accrued taxes. In addition to these are worthless and spurious bonds to nearly an equal amount, mostly received by one of the former revenue collectors, on which nothing has ever been collected.

☞ In Boston, Wednesday morning about 5 o'clock, a policeman discovered a woman walking in Portland street clad only in a chemise. Upon approaching her he discovered it to be a case of somnambulism. He consequently awoke her, and when she had recovered from her bewilderment sufficiently to tell where she lived, he conducted her home.

☞ Later advices from Hong Kong report additional assassinations of foreigners by the Chinese. It was reported that Chinese troops were collecting between Tientsin and Pekin, nominally for the protection of foreigners; but strong doubts are expressed as to that being the real intention of the movement.

CONNECTICUT ELECTION.—In 83 towns the republicans have secured control of the boards of registration of electors, and the democrats in 60 towns. Sixteen towns are equally divided. Four towns are unheard from.

DEATHS.

In York, Sept. 26th, Mrs. SUSANNA YOUNG, aged 87 years, widow of Mr. Joseph Young, who died thirty-five years ago. Seldom do we chronicle the demise of a more worthy, respected, and exemplary woman than in the case of Mrs. Young. She was born in York, being the daughter of Mr. Samuel Preble, and cousin of the late Hon. Wm. Pitt Preble, of Portland, and like her parentage and other family connexions, possessed a pure, strong and well balanced mind, of a high order of intellectual endowments, with no ordinary perceptive powers,—highly and honorably respected in the community by all classes, young and old. She leaves an only son, Samuel P. Young, Esq., whose loss is irreparable. Her funeral took place at the Congregational Church, of which she was the oldest member, having joined at the age of twenty years.

FRIDAY, OCT. 7, 1870.

WAR TALK.—The dispatches from Europe are made up of accounts of unimportant skirmishes between detached bodies of the rival armies, but no serious engagements are reported.

The preparations for a regular attack on the fortifications, and for shelling Paris, have been completed. The siege guns and mortars have arrived and been placed in position for immediate operations.

M. Thier's complete failure at St. Petersburg is certain. Russia having assured the powers of her peaceful intentions.

Advices from Paris say that there has been no street rioting or fighting whatever, and that all stories to that effect are utter and absolute fabrications.

Bazaine still adheres to the Emperor. The besieged are constantly sending up balloons from Metz.

The Prussians at Berlin have settled that Strasbourg shall never revert to France.

The rumors of Von Moltke's death are credited in London.

A London telegram says "the Empress Eugenie is evidently resolved to maintain her authority as Regent of France." She will have a good time doing it.

On Monday, the French made a brilliant sortie from Soissons, drove the Prussians back a considerable distance, burned their supplies and shelter, and, having effected these exploits, retired within the Soissons gates.

Another column of Germans, marching to Fontainebleau, was ambushed, routed and driven back, with serious loss, to Chailly.

The late battle which occurred near Crateau Gailliard on the 4th has been productive of important results. The Prussians were defeated and forced to retreat. The position taken by the French was one that necessitated the evacuation of Pithiriers by the enemy. The Prussians abandoned that point with so much precipitation that many cattle and a large amount of forage, &c., were left behind, all of which fell into the hands of the French.

A despatch from Nancy says that the French have made numerous sorties from Metz within the past few days. The object of these sorties is incomprehensible, as the French invariably encounter furious Prussian assaults the moment they get beyond the range of the guns at Metz. The latest sortie was made upon Tuesday, but was without strategic effect. The losses on both sides were small.

☞ In Baltimore, Tuesday morning, the roof of one of the retort houses of the Baltimore City Gas Company fell in with a tremendous crash. There were twelve men in the building, but fortunately only five of them were injured. One of them was fatally hurt.

☞ The assertion of the right of colored persons to place their children in the public schools, has created disturbance in Cummingsville, N. Y., and has caused some teachers and white children to leave.

☞ During a fight between Peter Cassidy and his wife, in a tenement house in New York, Mrs. Cassidy threw Peter out of a third-story window, breaking both of his legs and arms.

☞ Woman suffrage was voted down in the Massachusetts Republican Convention, 196 to 136. A prohibition resolution was defeated nearly unanimously.

☞ Ex-Queen Isabella of Spain has gone to Switzerland, where she will reside. It does not matter much, where she goes or what she does.

☞ The members of the G. A. R. of Essex County, Mass., had a reunion and procession on Thursday at Newburyport.

☞ About a mile of the snow sheds on the Central Pacific Railroad, near Cisco, were burned Wednesday morning.

☞ The front name of Gen. von Moltke is Helmuth Karl Bernhard.

—A singular fatality occurred in England, recently. A fly, after having been upon poisoned paper, fly paper, alighted upon a lady's nose, upon a spot where there had been a slight scratch, leaving a fresh open wound. The wound almost immediately became inflamed, and in a short time the whole system was affected, and the lady died in twenty-four hours.

—A hog entered a grocery store in Brunswick, Me., recently, when a dog attacked him, bit off his tail, then seized him by the ear, and led him shrieking back to his quarters in the rear. The dog then returned to the store, picked up the tail and carried it out to the hog.

CONGRESS AT WELLS.—Very few people, probably, are aware that a Session of Congress was ever held at Wells, Maine; and the following account, which we copy from the Brunswick Telegraph, will be found interesting. It was brought out at the late meeting of the Maine Historical Society, of which Judge Bourne is President:

The following showing the importance of preserving ancient records, was introduced in a speech made by Judge Bourne at York, and to him we are indebted for a copy of the bill referred to—also for the proceedings of the Congress in Wells:

"That you may understand the possible value of any old writing or paper, I will relate a little circumstance connected with my historical researches. I had known of what was termed a congress in the County of York. The New Hampshire Gazette said this congress was holden in Wells, but another record of great value, said it was holden at York. I tried to ascertain what was right, but could find nowhere any reference to it. This uncertainty I tried three or four years to remove, but all my labor was in vain.

I called at the house of a friend, while in the pursuit of my researches, and inquired if her ancestors left any old books or papers. She at once replied, "None." I said again, "Are you sure?" "Yes, I am." Stopping for a moment, she said—"We have an old cyphering book of Major Daniel Littlefield; you don't want that, do you?" "Yes, I am sure I do." She brought it down to me, and on the very first page were the charges of bowls of punch, toddy, dinners, breakfasts, horse-keeping, &c., for this very congress while sitting there—Littlefield keeping a public house in Wells."

KENNEBUNK, Sept. 3, 70.

Dear Sir:—At your request I send a copy of the account to which I referred in my remarks, on our field days, at York and Kittery. Yours resp'y,

PROCEEDINGS OF YORK CO. CONGRESS.

His Majesty's loyal subjects, the delegates of the several towns of the County of York, deputed to meet in County Congress held at Wells the 16th day of Nov., 1774, truly professing ourselves liege subjects of his Majesty King George the 3d, and sincere friends to all our fellow subjects in Britain and the Colonies, for the necessary defence of our liberties and privileges, come into the following resolutions:

Resolved that the people have a right to tax themselves; and no other persons, assemblies or parliaments have; and the English acts to tax them are unconstitutional.

Resolved that all civil officers in the County ought to exercise their powers, as tho' these acts had not been passed—that venires for Jurors ought to issue and be obeyed as before.

Resolved that this Congress recommend to every individual to use his influence for peace.

Whereas William Pepperell, Baronet, in his life time, honestly acquired a large estate, and gave the highest evidence, not only of his being a sincere friend to the rights of man, in general, but having a fraternal love to this country in particular; and whereas his son William, to whom his estate was devised, with purpose to carry into effect acts of the British Parliament made with the design to enslave the free and loyal people of this continet, did accept and now holds a seat at the pretended Board of Counselors in this province, —therefore forfeited confidence; it is recommended to the people, and his lessess, to withdraw all connexion, commerce and dealings with him, and take no leases of his farms or mills; and if anybody does deal with him, we recommend the people to have no dealings or intercourse with such an one.

Resolved that the thanks of this County are due to the worthy and patriotic members of the Continental Congress, for their noble and faithful exertions in the cause of their country.

WM. LEIGHTON, Clerk.

REDEMPTION OF ROME.—There is something very suggestive in the exhilarating accounts we have had of the reception accorded to the Italian troops by the people of Rome. It would seem that greater joy could scarcely have swelled the bosom of those captives who were delivered, a year or two ago, from the grasp of the barbarous African, King Theodore; certainly that no such joy has of late years been exhibited by any people on the mere change of rulers, as was evidenced by these recent subjects of the Holy Father, His Holiness, the Infallible Vice-Gerent of God on Earth—or whatever other astounding titles may be assumed by or ascribed to Pope Pius IX.

☞ Intelligence has been received of the death of Fitz-Hugh Ludlow at Geneva, Switzerland. He was a brilliant magazine writer, and author of several popular volumes.

☞ Ex-Governor Samuel Cony of Maine died at his residence in Augusta, October 4th.

FIRST STEPS IN ENGLISH LITERATURE, by Arthur Gilman, A. M. In one volume, 16 mo., cloth. Price $1. This beautiful little book has been prepared with great care, and with special reference to the needs of students who desire an introduction to the study of English Literature, and not a substitute for that study, and is offered to the attention of teachers and all interested in Education. The Publishers, Messrs. Hurd & Houghton, believe that the book, besides its value as a text-book, will be kept by the student as a most useful vade mecum in his after reading. They call attention to the thoroughness with which the work is furnished; in addition to the clear and comprehensive body of the book, there is a Chart showing the language of Europe, two Charts of the great periods of English Literature, a careful list of available editions of all books referred to in First Steps, Hints at the Explanation of Titles, Pronunciation, etc., and a minute and careful index.

There are brief biographies of 149 authors, and it should be noted that due prominence is given to the American contributors to English Literature. The author has never lost sight of the fact that there is an urgent need of a small book that can be mastered by the scholar, and so systematically arranged as to aid and not task the memory. The work is highly endorsed by the very best authorities, and may be had at Foster's book store.

Correspondence of Chronicle and Gazette.

KITTERY, ME., Oct. 6.

Last Sunday evening Armory Hall was well filled, on the occasion of Rev. Mr. Bicknell's giving a very able and interesting discourse—subject, "What shall I do?" I think it was the most interesting lecture I ever heard. Mr. Bicknell spoke of the white hands exhibited by some young ladies, while their mothers are toiling in the kitchen, as being light-houses to warn off young men; and the speaker expressed but little reverence for the young men who spend their time loafing around, sipping beer and smoking, while their fathers are laboring for their support. He also spoke keenly of our fear of being contaminated by associating with any one we consider beneath us socially, and urged that we should extend a helping hand to the fallen, and not push them still lower.

About forty persons assembled at the residence of Thos. Rice, Esq., on Wednesday evening, on the occasion of the christening of Katie Louise and John H., two beautiful little children of Mr. and Mrs. Hallowell Dickenson. Rev. Mr. Bicknell performed the ceremony; after which the guests partook of a sumptuous repast,—and then music, song and good cheer wore away the time till a late hour.

Rev. Mr. Hutchinson of this town is a naturalist, and has many fine specimens, among them a bunautiful one of the trilobite, an extinct crustacean, taken from a quarry in Ohio. Besides being a naturalist, Mr. H. is an old teacher, (tho' not an old man,) served with honor during the Rebellion, in the Union army, and is a bold and outspoken opponent of vice and wrong. K. M.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

If you don't want to disgust everybody with your offensive breath, cure your Catarrh upon which it depends. $500 reward is offered by the proprietor of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy for a case of Catarrh which he cannot cure. It is sold by druggists. Can get it for sixty cents by mail from Dr. R. V. Pierce, 133 Seneca street, Buffalo, N. Y. Pamphlet free. Don't be swindled by men calling themselves Dr. Sage; Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., is the only man now living that can make the Genuine and original Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, and his private Government Revenue Stamp, bearing upon it his portrait, name and address, is upon every package of the genuine.

THE GREAT ENIGMA.—A thousand guesses have been made at the ingredients of SOZODONT, the most wholesome and perfect dentifrice the world has ever seen. They were all wrong, so, by way of throwing a little light on the subject, it is now announced that the LIBER, or inner bark of the QUILLAYA SAPONORIA, the Soap Tree of the Valley of the Andes, is one of the components of that peerless dentrifice.

"SPALDING'S GLUE," useful and true.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Bear in Mind.

When disease has undermined the health, and the physical system has become prostrated, a stimulant that will not only strengthen, but remove the cause, should be immediately resorted to. Mental distress is also a fruitful source of the breaking down of the constitution, and the ravages of this enemy to health are truly alarming. For all such maladies HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS have been found unsurpassed. By acting directly upon the digestive organs, they remove the heavy, disagreeable feeling after eating, so often complained of by persons of a delicate temperament. As soon as digestion is restored, the patient finds his strength increasing, and his general health improved.

Thousands of persons certify that it may be relied on in all cases of weakness or nervous debility attendant upon sedentary habits. The generality of Bitters are so disagreeable to the taste that they are objectionable to a weak stomach. This is not the case with Hostetter's Bitters, which will be found mild and extremely pleasant. Balsamic plants, barks and roots contribute their restorative juices to render it soothing and strengthening. Its basis is the only pure stimulant which has ever been produced, containing no fusil oil, or any other deleterious element. The most careful and skillful chemists have analyzed the Bitters, and pronounce them harmless. This is scientific testimony; but the testimony of the hundreds of thousands who have experienced the preventive and curative effects of the GREAT VEGETABLE TONIC and ALTERATIVE of modern times is still more conclusive. In Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Nervous Complaints, Chronic Complaints and general debility it is as nearly infallible as anything in this fallible world can be. oldawlw

J. EDGAR THOMPSON, CHARLES L. FROST, } Trustees.

The greater part of the road is already completed, and the earnings from the finished portion are already more than sufficient to pay operating expenses and interest on the bonds. The balance of the work is progressing rapidly, in time for the movement of the coming grain crops, which, its estimated will double the present income of the road.

The established character of this line, running as it does through the heart of the most thickly settled and richest portion of the great State of Iowa, together with its present advanced condition and large earnings warrant us in unhesitatingly recommending these bonds to investors, as, in every respect, an undoubted security.

These bonds have 50 years to run, are convertible at the option of the holder into the stock of the company at par, and the payment of the principal is provided for by a sinking fund. The convertibility privilege attached to these bonds cannot fail to cause them at no distant day to command a market price considerably above par, be sides paying about 9 per cent., currency, interest in the meanwhile. U. S. Five-twenties, at present prices only return five per cent.; and we regard the security equally safe.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

New Advertisements to-day.

Temple—Bidwell's Dramatic Company.
Half House For Rent.

☞ In reply to numerous inquiries, we will state that we believe the premiums for the Piscataqua Fair are about the same as last year and heretofore, only there is no charge for articles entered this time—which ought to largely increase the show. The spacious building on the grounds will be reserved for fruits, vegetables, fancy goods, &c., as usual.

☞ A very fine audience was in attendance at the Theatre, last evening. A change of programme is announced for to-night. Dolly Bidwell will take the part of Topsey in Uncle Tom's Cabin, and R. S. Meldrum is cast as George Harris. The company is good, as usual, there being but few changes from former times. They are popular and always received with welcome by theatre goers.

ANOTHER FISH STORY.—On Tuesday last, we gave an account of the whale adventure of Capt. John Vennard. Since that time we have heard another one—reliable, as it comes to us o-fishally. The head of this adventure is also named John, but is not a captain, although he accidentally lost both his hands in the patriotic duty of firing a salute on the Parade in honor of the surrender of the rebel Gen. Lee.

He relates that a few days since he was near Newcastle, fishing; and that while leaning over the side of the boat, he dropped from his pocket a valuable gold watch, the gift of an old friend. The time-piece glittering in the clear water, was enticing to a huge, hungry sculpin, (hundreds of which were around the boat,) who in the view of John at once seized and gobbled down his watch, and swam away in evident delight. John bewailed his loss, not so much for its money value as on account of the manner in which he came in possession thereof. Fortunately, two hours later, and at a distance of over a mile from where the accident occurred he observed a lot of sculpins; in one of which he distinctly heard the well known tick of his watch! He cautiously and quickly speared the fish, and strange as it may seem, upon disembowelling him, in the stomach of the sculpin he found his watch, in good running order, and keeping as correct time as ever. "If you don't believe it, ask John."

Communication.

"WOODMAN, SPARE THAT TREE." Messrs. Editors: Allow me to inquire why such vandalism is allowed in this city, as exhibited in the wholesale destruction of the symmetry and beauty of the shade trees, whose waving branches have so gracefully ornamented our streets and been so serviceable during the hot days of summer. Is it on account of a scarcity of fire-wood; or if necessity required the removal of more stray limbs, why not stop them? Why such a merciless onslaught? One is reminded of the fable of "the trees and the axe." And such an ignoring of all taste and skill in the art of pruning, is truly shocking. A CITIZEN.

[Reply.—The trees about town are being properly pruned by competent hands, as ordered by the Board of Aldermen, as necessity required, and in accordance with the request of many citizens, who do not relish a slap in the eyes, or to have the top of a carriage scraped off, by a low-hanging limb. In most streets in the city where there are trees, they hung too low; and when loaded with rain, snow or ice, would droop still more—and Mr. Wm. Plaisted, who has charge of the pruning this season, is fully competent for any business in the tree line, being one of the best and most experienced gardeners in the city.

When Capt. Robt. Shillaber pruned the street trees, a few years since, there was the same complaint, by those who are more zealous than wise in the matter, and seem to think that nobody knows or appreciates a tree but themselves. City or town officers of course have control of the trees in the streets, but nobody is less likely to injure them than they; and no limb should hang nearer the street than fifteen feet, or hackmen and others seated on high loads or carriages are endangered. Neither are low-growing trees beautiful, healthy, or any way desirable, in the street. We do not think that "A Citizen" or any other man, has the least cause for complaint in this regard.—Eds. Chron.]

NEW SUBSCRIBERS who now pay in full in advance, for the DAILY CHRONICLE or the N. H. GAZETTE, for the year 1871, will be furnished with either paper gratis until Jan.

☞ JOB AND CARD PRINTING is neatly, promptly and cheaply done at the Chronicle and Gazette Office; and the patronage of friends in this line is respectfully solicited, and satisfaction guaranteed.

☞ ADVERTISEMENTS, whether transient notices or by yearly contracts, are inserted in both the Daily Chronicle and Weekly Gazette, or in either one of these papers only, as desired. And while there is no better advertising medium in this County, our rates are reasonable, especially to regular yearly patrons.

☞ THE NEW HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE for this week, is now ready for delivery, at the Chronicle Office. Each number contains all the reading matter of the week's Dailies. Price $2 a year; single copies 5 cents,—in wrappers for mailing, if desired. Six copies for $10 per year, to Clubs—per mail or city carrier.

☞ The handsome black stallion Fearnaught Prince, of Stratham Hill Stock Farm, a son of Fearnaught and grandson of Young Morrill, is entered to trot in the Stallion race at the Piscataqua Fair next week. His owner, Mr. Wm. G. Brown, who raised old Fearnaught, thinks still more highly of the Prince, than of his noble and noted sire; but on account of his age, and the great and continued call for his service in the stud, has heretofore refused to let him trot races, until this year—when he won at Kingston, his first entry. Fearnaught Prince is now six years old, and it seems is not afraid to meet all comers. Naturally enough,—people have said, because he has not trotted, that he cannot; but he astonished some folks by his way of going, at Kingston, and we have ridden after him, with two in a wagon, about as fast as we care to go on the road. If he doesn't show well at the coming Fair, we think it must be because he is out of fix.

☞ The government is about to institute suits for the recovery of over a million dollars in bonds, given by whiskey and tobacco dealers in New York city, who subsequently went out of business largely in arrears to the government for accrued taxes. In addition to these are worthless and spurious bonds to nearly an equal amount, mostly received by one of the former revenue collectors, on which nothing has ever been collected.

☞ In Boston, Wednesday morning about 5 o'clock, a policeman discovered a woman walking in Portland street clad only in a chemise. Upon approaching her he discovered it to be a case of somnambulism. He consequently awoke her, and when she had recovered from her bewilderment sufficiently to tell where she lived, he conducted her home.

☞ Later advices from Hong Kong report additional assassinations of foreigners by the Chinese. It was reported that Chinese troops were collecting between Tientsin and Pekin, nominally for the protection of foreigners; but strong doubts are expressed as to that being the real intention of the movement.

CONNECTICUT ELECTION.—In 83 towns the republicans have secured control of the boards of registration of electors, and the democrats in 60 towns. Sixteen towns are equally divided. Four towns are unheard from.

DEATHS.

In York, Sept. 26th, MRS. SUSANNA YOUNG, aged 87 years, widow of Mr. Joseph Young, who died thirty-five years ago. Seldom do we chronicle the demise of a more worthy, respected, and exemplary woman than in the case of Mrs. Young. She was born in York, being the daughter of Mr. Samuel Preble, and cousin of the late Hon. Wm. Pitt Preble, of Portland, and like her parentage and other family connexions, possessed a pure, strong and well balanced mind, of a high order of intellectual endowments, with no ordinary perceptive powers,—highly and honorably respected in the community by all classes, young and old. She leaves an only son, Samuel P. Young, Esq., whose loss is irreparable. Her funeral took place at the Congregational Church, of which she was the oldest member, having joined at the age of twenty years.

THE GARDEN. — Germination and growth are now succeeded by the ripening processes. We are now to harvest and enjoy. But this is hardly all. The prudent, thoughtful gardener will provide for his earthly blessings, by performing his part towards securing another season's growth. Considerable judgment needs be exercised, at this season, in saving and storing seeds, vegetables, planting for a continuance, providing suitable material to be converted into nourishment of future growth, &c.

Seed-beds are now to be prepared for the growth of winter salads, and for spring use; also, for starting some kinds of spring vegetables. A large amount of spring labor with hot-beds may be saved by giving a little attention during this and the succeeding month to the growing young plants of the more hardy vegetables that are most in demand in early spring. Once well started an inch or two high, they may be pricked out in cold frames during October or November, and, properly treated and cared for during winter, they will be ready to transplant and grow as soon as the frost is out of the ground and it can be cultivated. To plant seeds for growing plants to winter over, select a warm, moist place; dig the ground over thoroughly with the digging fork, working in plenty of well-rotted manure; rake and fine? the surface for a nice seed bed; then sow the seed in drills six inches apart, or if not to be transplanted this fall, a foot apart is better. Spinach may be sown in beds of any shape, rows a foot apart; cover the seeds lighly and roll well. Plants for wintering should not be allowed to get too large, or they will run to blossom and seed, when transplanted. If liable to grow too large, repeated transplanting during the fall will check growth. Lettuce, cabbage and salads of different kinds, constitute the principal plants for wintering in cold frames.

As soon as the crops are matured and ripe, they should be gathered and the ground cleared, and at any leisure opportunity, needed improvements can now be made, more thoroughly and leisurely than in a more busy season. All should have some pride of appearance, some ambition to improve on the past and the present. Efforts to accomplish this may interest some younger member of the family to take a greater interest in rural pursuits. Judicious improvements will add to the value of the estate, though their cost may not be immediately realized in pocket money. The grounds of few country residents furnish all the fruits and vegetables that they might produce, or which the family needs. Yet how often do we hear, especially in relation to fruit trees, some such remark as "it takes them so long to grow I shall not live to eat of their fruit," and hence no trees are planted, no garden provided.

Beans.—Gather as they ripen, selecting the very best for seed, and put in a dry place. Shell when dry, and clean and assort thoroughy. Limas that may still be green are excellent for winter, picked and dried in the pod, to be shelled as used.

Blackberries.—Remove unnecessary old and weak canes, reserving the strongest for next season's fruiting.

Cabbage, Cauliflower, &c.—Keep late plants well hoed, and sow seeds for plants for cold frame.

Celery.—Earth up as frequently as once in two weeks; always doing it when the plants are dry. Earthing when the plants are damp from any cause, causes them to decay, rust, &c. Dirt scattered into the heart produces similar effects.

Corn.—Save the earliest, largest and best ears from healthy, prolific stalks, for seed. The kernels shaved off from the cob may be dried, and when properly cooked, next winter, will give a most welcome dish.

Cucumbers.—The vines have mostly done bearing, except it be late planted for pickle; these should be kept close picked. Save seed from the ripe ones; cut them in halves lengthwise, scrape out the seeds and centre with an iron spoon, into a pail or tub. If but few mash and wash out; if more, let them stand covered in the sun, and they will ferment and separate, the seed settling to the bottom, when they must have water added, washed out, drained, spread and dried well.

Endive.—Hoe and give liquid manure, treating similar to lettuce; gather and tie the leaves for bleaching.

Grapes.—Unless there be danger of frosts, it is better to let them get fully ripe before gathering. In gathering, use the greatest care in detaching the bunches and in handling, to preserve the bloom and beauty.

Melons.—Few are now left fit for eating. Seeds may be saved from the fully ripe ones, washed and dried.

Parsley.—Seed may be sown to produce for next spring's use.

Pickles.—Use the small cucumbers for pickling in vinegar or for salting; packed in a tub, a layer of coarse salt and a layer of pickles, they will make their own brine and keep an indefinite time, if they are kept under brine by weights. A few will soften on top, these must be thrown out. We have kept them year after year. Have some on hand now that were salted three or four years since, sound as ever, and keep them in the cellar.

Squashes.—Pick winter squash before any frost, for a very light touch often defects their keeping. Pack them away in a dry place, free from cold. Handle them with the greatest care.

Tomatoes. — Green tomatoes make nice pickles, put down in sharp vinegar with green peppers, spices, &c. Make ketchup of ripe ones, can, &c., for winter use.

Gather and save all seeds, as they ripen; sweet herbs, &c., as they come to maturity. Let nothing be wasted; what cannot be marketed or used may be made use of for the compost heap which should receive constant liberal additions.—W. H. WHITE, in the N. E. Farmer.

HOW TO HARVEST CORN.—There is a great diversity of opinion regarding the best manner of harvesting corn. There are three different methods in common use in this section of country.

It is the practice of some farmers to top the corn, or, in other words, cut the stalks, at soon as the kernel begins to harden, and then let it stand and thoroughly ripen in the field.

When this is done, one class of farmers gather the ears at as late a day as possible, and leave the "buts" to rot on the ground, or cut them up and put in the barn to be picked over by the cattle in cold days.

Another class, in a few weeks after the stalks are cut, put the corn-hook or sickle to the standing corn, cut it up, and draw it to the barn, to be husked.

A third method is to harvest corn stalks and "buts" all together, shock it for a little time in the field, and then house and husk.

The arguments in favor of each method are given by those who practice them, and each one claims that his is the best method.

We believe in early harvesting and in cutting the stalks before they lose their verdure; or, in case the stalks are not cut, our plan would be to cut up the whole growth and shock it to be seasoned in the air.

Will farmers give their practices and the reasons?—Mirror.

UNFERMENTED MANURE.—Many excellent farmers have an idea that manure to be most efficient in raising crops should be well rotted; but this is a mistake. Manure loses a very heavy precentage. Fresh manure, dripping with animal urine, hauled directly from the stable on the land and ploughed under, is worth nearly double that which has decomposed to a saponaceous consistency. When it is convenient for farmers to haul their manure on corn ground from the stable as fast as it is made, it saves handling it twice, and forwards the work in busy spring time.

No fears need be entertained that the atmosphere will carry off the strength of the manure if left on the surface. The only danger to be apprehended by this method will be in case of the ground being frozen and covered with snow and ice when the manure is applied; if upon sloping land, the virtue of the manure might wash away; but on level land there is no exception to this plan of operation during the entire fall and winter season.—Germantown Telegraph.

HINTS ON DRAINING.—Referring to an article with above heading in the Cultivator of Feb. 4th, I would say that during the past eight years I have done considerable draining with tile, and with accumulating evidence of its profitableness, and that I cannot afford to do without it, although my land would not be called wet.

When I commenced draining, having never seen it done, my only guide was what could be gathered from reading, and my greatest anxiety was about securing the joints from sand and dirt getting into the tile. The following is my mode, and if any better one can be shown I should be glad to know of it, for I propose to do a large amount of draining this spring.

When the tiles are fitted together as well as may be, I make a twisted straw band as large as can well be wrapped about the tiles, and press down close to the top and sides, then crowd a stone or lump of sod each side. The result is to prevent the tile from being moved when the trench is filled, and the straw keeps out all sand and dirt.—Cor. Country Gentleman.

RAIN AFTER DROUGHT.

BY JOHN W. CHADWICK.

A few short hours ago, and all the land
Lay, as in fever, faint and parched with drought;
And so had lain, while many a weary day
Dragged the long horror of its minutes out.

The juiceless fruits fell from the dusty trees;
The farmer doubted if the Lord was good,
As, sad, I o watched the labor of his hands
Made useless by the Day-god's fiery mood.

The hot streets sickened in the burning glare;
The roadsides lost the glory of their green;
No second growth sprung up to glad the eye,
Where once the mower with his scythe had been.

A few short hours ago! And now, behold,
Freshness and beauty gleam on every side;
The earth hath drank its fill, and all about
The amber pools are stretching far and wide.

A million drops are flashing in the sun;
The springs far down the upper wonder know:
The farmer laughs, and little cares how fast [flow,
Through his torn hat the cooling streamlets

And all the fields and pastures seem to say,
With joyous smile that I shall ne'er forget,
And all the flowers and trees in chorus join, [yet."
"We knew 'twould come; He never failed us

God of my life, as God of all beside, [wrought,
This lovely wonder, which thy hand hath
Quickens in thought the mercies manifold
Which Thy great love into my soul hath brought.

For I have lain full oft, as hot and dry
As ever earth in Summer's fiercest hours;
And the long days, slow creeping over me,
Brought me no tokens of Thy gracious power.

Then, at Thy word, down fell Thy Spirit rain;
I felt its coolness all my being through;
Made fresh and clean and joyous every whit,
I heard the whisper, "I make all things new."

But mine, alas! was not the holy faith
The parched earth felt through all her thirsty
I was in fear that never more again [hours;
Should I be quickened by the heavenly powers.

So shall it be no more; but though I lie
For many days as one Thou dost forget,
Recalling this glad hour, my heart shall say,
"I know 'twill come; He never failed me yet."

"A SLIGHT PLEASANTRY."—War has its jokes and merriment, but the comedies of war are often more dreadful than the tragedies of peace. Frederick in his works records the following incident, which he narrates as "slight pleasantry, to relieve the reader's mind."

The Prussians had a detached post at Smirzitz. The little garrison there was much harrassed by lurking bands of Austrians, who shot their sentries, cut off their supplies, and rendered it almost certain death to any one who ventured to emerge from the ramparts. Some inventive genius among the Prussians constructed a straw man, very like life, representing a sentinel with his shouldered musket. By a series of ropes this effigy was made to move from right to left, as if walking his beat. A well-armed band of Prussians then hid in a thicket near by.

Ere long a company of Austrian scouts approached. From a distance they eyed the sentinel, moving to and fro as he guarded his post. A sharpshooter crept near, and taking deliberate aim at his supposed victim, fired. A twitch upon the rope caused the image to fall flat. The whole band of Austrians, with a shout, rushed to the spot. The Prussians from their ambuscade opened upon them a deadly fire of bullets. Then, as the ground was covered with the mutilated and the dead, the Prussians, causing the welkin to ring with their peals of laughter, rushed with fixed bayonets upon their entrapped foe. Not a single Austrian had escaped being struck by a bullet. Those who were not killed outright were wounded, and were taken captive. This is one of the "slight pleasantries" of war.—Harper's Magazine.

—A modest and retiring Boston policeman has resigned his position on the force on account of the "persecution of the fair sex, upon his beat."

—It too often happens that experience, like the stern lights of a ship, illuminates only the path we have travelled.

—In France the Marseillaise has become the national Him; while in Baris, Bismarck is decidedly the national Herr.

—What animal could have dispensed with the ark? Why the dog, to be sure, might have set up a bark.

—What's the difference between a chilly man and a hot dog? One wears a great coat and the other pants.

—Why must the devil be a perfect gentleman? Because the Imp o' darkness cannot be imp-o-lite!

—What proof have we that there was sewing in the time of David? He was hemmed in on every side.

—It is not a very good definition of a coffin to call it the house that a man lives in when he is dead.

—If you limit your acquaintance to one John, don't let it be a demi-john.

—Intrenchments are the first care in war; retrenchments in peace.

—The person who "taxes our ingenuity" is a revenue officer.

—Firemen use longer hose than any other class of citizens.

—The public singer that draws the best—a mosquito.

—Bold stroke for a husband—beating his wife.

TO PHYSICIANS.

NEW YORK, AUG. 15th, 1868.

ALLOW ME TO CALL your attention to my PREPARATION OF COMPOUND EXTRACT BUCHU. The component parts are BUCHU, LONG LEAF, CUBEBS, JUNIPER BERRIES.

MODE OF PREPARATION.—Buchu, in vacuo, Juniper Berries, by distillation, to form a fine gin. Cubebs extracted by displacement with spirits obtained from Juniper Berries; very little sugar is used, and a small proportion of spirit. It is more palatable than any other in use.

Buchu, as prepared by Druggists, is of a dark color. It is a plant that emits its fragrance; the action of a flame destroys this (its active principle,) leaving a dark and glutinous decoction. Mine is the color of ingredients. The Buchu in my preparation predominates; the smallest quantity of the other ingredients are added, to prevent fermentation; upon inspection, it will be found not to be a Tincture, as made in Pharmacopaea, nor is it a Syrup—and therefore can be used in cases where fever or inflammation exist. In this, you have the knowledge of the ingredients and the mode of preparation.

Hoping that you will favor it with a trial, and that upon inspection it will meet with your approbation,

With a feeling of confidence,
I am, very respectfully,
H. T. HELMBOLD,
Chemist and Druggist of 19 Years' Experience.

[From the largest Manufacturing Chemists in the World.]

NOVEMBER 4, 1864.

"I am acquainted with Mr. H. T. Helmbold; he occupied the Drug Store opposite my residence and was successful in conducting the business where others had not been equally so before him. I have been favorably impressed with his character and enterprise."

WILLIAM WEIGHTMAN.
Firm of Powers & Weightman, Manufacturing Chemists, Ninth and Brown Streets, Philadelphia.

HELMBOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU, for weakness arising from indiscretion. The exhausted powers of Nature which are accompanied by so many alarming symptoms, among which will be found, Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Memory, Wakefulness, Horror of Disease, or Forebodings of Evil; in fact, Universal Lassitude, Prostration, and inability to enter into the enjoyments of society.

The constitution once affected with Organic Weakness, requires the aid of Medicine to strengthen and invigorate the system, which HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU invariably does. If no treatment is submitted to, Consumption or insanity ensues.

HELMBOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT OF BUCHU, in affections peculiar to Females, is unequalled by any other preparation, as in Chlorosis, or Retention, Painfulness, or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrus State of the Uterus, and all complaints incident to the sex, or the decline or change of life.

HELMBOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU AND IMPROVED ROSE WASH will radically exterminate from the system diseases arising from habits of dissipation, at little expense, little or no change in diet, no inconvenience or exposure; completely superseding those unpleasant and dangerous remedies, Copaiva and Mercury, in all these diseases.

Use HELMBOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU in all diseases of these organs, whether existing in male or female, from whatever cause originating and no matter of how long standing. It is pleasant in taste and odor, "immediate" in action, and more strengthening than any of the preparations of Bark or Iron.

Those suffering from broken-down or delicate constitutions, procure the remedy at once.

The reader must be aware that, however slight may be the attack of the above diseases, it is certain to affect the bodily health and mental powers.

All the above diseases require the aid of a Diuretic. HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is the great Diuretic.

Sold by Druggists everywhere. PRICE—$1.25 per bottle, or 6 bottles for $6.50. Delivered to any address. Describe symptoms in all communications.

Address Dr. H. T. HELMBOLD Drug and Chemical Warehouse, 594 Broadway N. Y.

SATURDAY, OCT. 8, 1870.

WAR TALK.—The Tribune correspondence gives some insight into Napoleon's method of using up the civil fund. It is shown that some of the attempts on the Emperor's life, with which the public has been startled every now and then, were only ingeniously contrived features of the stage business, by whose aid the Emperor enchanced the interest in the drama he was playing. The documents discovered show that most of these plots were by the imperial police, and that Pietri, Lagrange and Thermier Inges were the prime movers. It is certain that Bablot received 20,000 francs for his services as a conspirator.

The Tuileries correspondence reveals the fact that both Cassagnac and Jerome David were regular pensioners on the civil list. The cost of the Prince Imperial's baptism (of water) amounted to 829,090 francs. The cousins, male and female, of the Emperor, received 1,310,975 francs per annum. General Morris and many others were down for various sums. The Duchess of Mouchy, whose name continually appears, received 2,000,000 francs as a marriage portion. The son of the American Bonaparte had a pension of 30,000 francs.

Dr. Evans, the leading spirit of the Franco-American ambulances, has vanished, leaving the care of the ambulances, to others. There are still about two hundred and fifty Americans in Paris, of whom about 40 are women.

It is asserted that an armorer at Lyons has constructed a steam mitrailleuse, the most formidable yet known.

Captain Schmitz, of the French artillery and the inventor of the mitrailleuse, has devised a new style of balloons for postal service.

An American frigate that entered the harbor of Havre created a sensation in saluting. The people supposed that the enemy was bombarding the town.

Mrs. Washborne is in Brussels, and receives letters frequently from her husband by balloon express.

It is said, in a Berlin despatch, that the cold language of the German press in regard to the annexation of Alsace and Lorraine is exciting the displeasure of Bismark.

Bismark denies having said that "the Republican institutions of France constitute the danger for Germany."

The Crown Prince of Wurtemburg has had his jaw smashed by a bullet, and is seriously wounded. His escort was fired upon by French guerillas in the park of St. Cloud, but the Prince was the only one hit. The guerillas are very troublesome to the Prussians, at and near St. Cloud and Versailles.

Gen. Bourbaki, after having been in England and visited the Ex-Empress, has been allowed by the Prussian King to re-enter Metz. There's a screw loose, somewhere.

POLITICAL.—The Republicans of the Third Congressional District of Massachusetts have renominated Hon. Gincry Twitchell as their candidate to the next Congress.

The Republican prospects in Indiana are cheering; the Democrats have in effect given up the contest.

☞ It might be supposed by the readers of a few Maine newspapers that the Democracy stand some chance of seeing Gov. Chamberlain chosen to the Senatorial position now occupied by Hon. Lot M. Morrill. We hope Senator Morrill will win and presume he will. He deserves to.

☞ Admiral Fourichon, the French Minister of Marine, has given directions that the Imperial yachts Prince Imperial, Prince Jerome, Empress Eugenie, Jerome Napoleon and Queen Hortense shall henceforth be called the Jupiter, Hoche, Turenne, Dessaix and Kleber.

☞ A young man named Wm. Craig, an employe on the Portland & Kennebec Railroad, was killed at the depot in Bath, Me., Friday, by being thrown under a car while engaged in switching a train into the depot. He was 20 years old, and unmarried.

☞ Gleason's Britannia Manufactory in Dorchester, Mass., was pretty much blown to pieces on Thursday by the explosion of a defective 40-horse power boiler. Loss $10,000. A Mr. Brainard was badly hurt, but will recover.

....Services appropriate to Church recognition and baptism are to take place at Kittery Sunday afternoon under the auspices of the Universalists of that place, exercises to be conducted by the Rev. Mr. Bickwell of this city.

☞ The Jesuits are leaving Rome.

☞ Gold, Friday, 113.

Mrs. Charlotte Butler, mother of Gen. B. F. Butler, died in Lowell, Mass., on the 4th, at the age of seventy-nine. Mrs. Butler was a native of Northfield, and was a lady of strong good sense and decided talent. She resided for many years in Deerfield, where Gen. Butler, the only survivor of her three children, was born. Mrs. Butler is spoken of by all who knew her as a most worthy and kind-hearted lady.

At Concord, the grand jury reported a bill for murder in the second degree, against E. G. Stevens, for the murder of Henry F. Gardner of Franklin, and the trial was assigned for Tuesday next. No indictment was found against Daniel E. Hill, Northfield, on the charge of adultery and abortion on Clara A. Dow of Boscawen.

The officers and members of the N. H. Cavalry Association had their annual reunion at Manchester on the 4th inst. The old board of officers, including Col. John L. Thompson of Chicago as President, was re-elected. The company sat down to dinner at the City Hotel, where a convivial season was enjoyed. The next reunion is to be held at Concord, on the second Tuesday in November, 1871. Capt. W. H. Palmer of Medford, Mass., was appointed historian of the regiment.

In Hebron, Mrs. Rufus W. Clark, a young woman who had been married but six weeks, committed suicide by hanging. Mrs. C. went to the barn, got upon a beam, and, having put a rope about her neck, jumped off. The fall was twelve feet and doubtless caused instantaneous death. Her husband found her stone dead, hanging from the beam. The cause of this rash act we are unable to learn.

Died at the city of Oshkosh, Wis., Oct. 3d, John J. Sargent, Esq., eldest son of Hon. J. E. Sargent of Concord, Judge of the S. J. Court. He died of typhoid fever, and was sick only about a week. His age was 26.

The Northern Road is now carrying an unusual amount of freight; so much so that it has been deemed best to put two freight trains on the time table, rather than run them as extras. The Concord Road are to increase and improve their freight arrangements in Manchester.

Nine acres of intervale land on Ferry Street in Concord, sold for $130 an acre, and five on the East Concord road for $156 an acre, to Col. H. George and C. H. Norton, Esq. These are called high prices, but one acre of such for farming, is worth three of rocky land.

Jeremiah Caverly, of Tuftonbrough, hung himself in his barn, last Monday morning. His age was about 40 years. He leaves a wife and four children.

The mail train on the Northern Railroad, Wednesday afternoon, ran into a repair car at North Boscawen, but owing to the high rate of speed no accident occurred. On examination being made, it was proved that the car had been placed there by some person not connected with the road, and suspicion pointed to three men, who were arrested by Sheriff Sanborn and taken to Concord, and are now before the grand jury for indictment. They give their names as Tyrus, George and Julius Taylor, from Potsdam, N. Y., a father and two sons. Julius has confessed, and may clear the others. The engine was the "C. W. Clark," the new machine recently built in Concord, and only put on the rails on the Monday previous.

☞ Gov. Walker of Virginia has vetoed the bill requiring jurors to be freeholders. His objection is, that under the constitution all persons entitled to vote are allowed to sit on juries. It is thought the Legislature will sustain objections.

☞ The reported death of John Allen is officially contradicted; so the position of the wickedest man in New York is not yet vacant. There will be no lack of eligible candidates for the promotion.

☞ The trot against time, at Mystic Park, by Goldsmith Maid, for a stake of $3000, which has been postponed several times on account of the weather, has at last been declared off.

☞ The Gazette del Popolo of Rome says that the Pope has drawn a monthly payment of 520,000 scudi. The order was countersigned by the Junta.

☞ A crazy man jumped over Lyon Creek bridge, near Utica, N. Y., Thursday afternoon, and fell 165 feet. He is dead.

☞ Henry Lyons, a painter, 70 years of age, committed suicide in East Boston on Thursday, by taking morphine.

☞ Joseph Bailey of Portland was killed by a premature explosion while blasting a rock, Thursday.

☞ Yellow fever is seriously interfering with trade and commerce, along the Gulf coast.

THE FLOOD.—Later accounts say that all the bridges on the North river, Va., have been washed away. Every building, eight in number, on Jordan's Island, near Lexington, along with the greater portion of the island itself, were carried off, and the stone causeway between Gibson's mill and the island completely destroyed. The North River Canal, from Lexington to Balcony Falls, 22 miles, has been so utterly destroyed that it is feared that it can never be reconstructed. At Castleman Ferry, Jefferson county, the destruction is complete. All the houses, sixteen in number, were driven from their foundations by the surging waves, and the main building of the hotel and the storehouse alone are left to mark the spot. John G. Crockerill lost four thousand dollars in bonds, which he had spread out on the table to dry.

☞ Major General Egbert L. Viele has brought a suit for divorce against his wife, charging her with violating her marriage relation with Maj. Gen. Averill. She is striving to obtain the custody of their five children. Mrs. Viele has also commenced suit against her husband, charging him with adultery with Miss Jane Dana. The parties occupy the highest social position, and have been married seventeen years. General Winfield Scott gave away the bride.

☞ Havana correspondence gives details of the shocking treatment of Cuban ladies by the Spaniards in that city. On the 23d ultimo twenty prisoners, all women and children, reached Havana by railway and were led from the depot to the female prison under guard, and all tied, the children only five and six years old being tightly pinioned by the arms.

☞ Willard, the murderer of the Warden of the Connecticut State Prison, was on Thursday convicted of murder, and sentenced to be hung on Friday, October 13, 1871.

☞ The corner stone of the new Memorial Hall at Harvard College, was laid at noon, Thursday. A large number of distinguished persons took part in the ceremonies.

☞ John Mullar, formerly a clerk in the sub-treasury department in New York, has been arrested for attempting to pass a forged order on Vermilye & Co., for $11,000.

☞ Rockland, Me., pledged its credit for a further sum of $150,000 in aid of the Knox and Lincoln Railroad, by a vote of 201 to 9, on Thursday.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

A FRIEND IN NEED.—Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry is a friend in deed. Who has not found it such in curing all diseases of the lungs and throat, coughs, colds, and pulmonary affections, and "last, not least," Consumption? The sick are assured that the high standard of excellence on which the popularity of this preparation is based, will always be maintained by the proprietors.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Systems Run Down.

Persons often allow their systems to "run down," or rather run them down by over-work, accompanied by a neglect of the proper means of invigoration. The result is what is called "GENERAL DEBILITY;" in other words, a failure and partial collapse of the physical forces, accompanied, usually, by great depression of spirits.

The best remedy in such cases is HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. Whether the state of exhaustion has been brought on by excessive physical labor, dissipation, anxiety of mind, exposure, or any other cause, the remedial effect of this great stomachic will be found equally prompt and certain. As a restorative, after severe sickness has prostrated the bodily and mental energies, it is pronounced, by competent medical authority, "THE BEST TONIC IN USE." If men were not foolishly careless about their health, and over confident in themselves, they would always, when engaged in any work that required great exertion, use correspondingly means of sustaining their strength. For this purpose Hostetter's Bitters are invaluable. All toilers should use them as an invigorant.

For those constantly employed in in-door occupations, especially in crowded workshops, they may be reckoned as the very best safeguard of health. Where there is a predisposition to constipation, or a tendency to biliousness, they may be truly said to be a specific for which there is no substitute. dawlw6

PAIN KILLER.

This celebrated medicine has won a deservedly high reputation as an alleviator of pain and a preserver of health. It has become a household remedy, from the fact that it gives immediate and permanent relief. It is a purely vegetable preparation, made from the best and purest materials, safe to keep and to use in every family. It is recommended by physicians and persons of all classes, and to-day, after a public trial of thirty years—the average life of man—it stands unrivalled and unexcelled, spreading its usefulness over the wide world. Its large and increasing sale affords positive evidence of its enduring fame.

Directions accompany each bottle.

Sold by all Druggists. oidim

☞ Late Arizona advices say that a band of friendly Pino Indians attacked a party of Apaches near Arizona city, and killed thirteen of them. Governor Safford, while scouting in the Whitestone Mountains, discovered the charred remains of two white men who had perished at the stake. An old Indian chief of one of the Arizona tribes has sued for peace.

☞ The Portland Advertiser reports the results of the census in Maine to be a population of 630,423, a gain of 1174 since 1860.

And while there is no better advertising medium in this County, our rates are reasonable, especially to regular yearly patrons.

THE THEATRE. — This (Saturday) evening is the last appearance of Bidwell's Dramatic Company for the present. Friday evening Uncle Tom's Cabin was presented to a good house —and well presented, too. Dollie Bidwell made a capital Topsey, and the other parts were well taken. The Company we consider stronger at present than ever before, which is saying a good deal. This evening they will give "Black-eyed Susan," and "The Wept of the Wish-ton-Wish."

P. M. L. A.—We understand that the arrangements for a course of lectures by the Mercantile Library Association, at the Temple, the coming winter, are nearly completed. The course will consist of lectures, readings, and musical entertainments, by the citizens and "Sons of Portsmouth." The admission fee will be placed so low as to be within the means of all, and we have no doubt the Temple will be filled every evening. The musical entertainments, for which arrangements are in progress, will alone be worth the price which it is proposed to charge for the whole series.

It will be remembered that the Association last year, at considerable labor and expense, gave a course of lectures and readings which were free to all; and their efforts to entertain the public then, will no doubt be remembered and appreciated this winter by our citizens, who in purchasing tickets will not only be amply repaid, but will also aid and encourage a worthy public institution in its endeavors to furnish a class of entertainments of which our city should have more.

ALDERMEN.—On Thursday Evening, the City Treasurer was authorized to pay the year's interest on the $500 note for Firemen's Relief Fund.

The Mayor reported that Mr. Morrill Martin had moved his house back about ten feet from Newcastle St., and would give the land to the City to widen the highway, provided they will fill up the cellar—at a cost of $15 to $20. Com. on Sts. were authorized to accept the offer.

The City Marshal rendered his quarterly report of Police operations. Refer to Com. on Police. Also report of licensing Dogs,—59 male dogs at $1 each, $59; 4 female dogs at $2 each, $8; total, $67.

Ald. Pendexter, from special Com. on the petition to widen Fleet St., reported in favor of widening the Street about four feet, between Congress and Hanover; and that J. Parry and L. K. Lydston be awarded $1 each for land taken, L. Cotton $50, heirs of N. A. Haven $75, and Mech. Asso. $100. Ald. Pender of this Com. thought that $1 each was sufficient; but after considerable discussion, on motion of Ald. Miller, $1 each was voted to Messrs. Parry and Lydston, and $100 each to Mr. Cotton and the Haven heirs,—and on motion of Ald. Pender $200 to Mechanics' Association.

The Com. on Sts. were authorized to straighten sidewalk on south side Congress St. Also to lay walks at Leavitt estate on Congress St., and at H. W. Mason's store on Market St., on the usual terms of one-half payment.

The Com. on School Houses reported that the wood-shed for State St. School House, could be built for $50. Report accepted. Com. authorized to build shed.

The Annual Report of the Master of the House of Correction was received, and ordered to be placed on file.

An application was received from the Board of Engineers for a room in the lower story of the City building, which was referred to the Mayor and Com. on City Lands, &c.

The same Com. were requested to report respecting the leasing of the Market room.

The Board on its part rescinded so much of a joint resolve passed in the spring as authorizes the sale of one of the street horses.

WAS IT A WRECK? — Two ladies, engaged in viewing the ocean from Frost's Point on Friday, had their attention attracted by a schooner bound out of our harbor under a press of sail. They watched her for a while, and then turned away to admire the surf, which was very heavy. On looking again for the schooner, she had disappeared; and shortly after they were addressed by a horseman, in a state of evident excitement, who enquired if they had seen a small boat come on shore. Being answered in the negative, he told them that a schooner had just gone down, not far off; and then rode hurriedly away. Up to the present time we have been unable to find out anything more of the affair, to decide whether a disaster has really occurred or not; but our lady informants are certainly not at all sensational, and we fear that some unlucky vessel will yet be reported as missing.

Since the above was in type, Mr. Ferdinando Barr, Assistant-Keeper of Whale's Back Light-house, has favored us with the following particulars. The vessel sunk is a small schooner, of some 90 tons, and was first observed from the Light-house at about 9 o'clock, apparently coming from the eastward. She looked as if she had been in heavy weather, and soon anchored, well in towards Ragged Neck, at the western side of the harbor's entrance, lowering her sails and setting her ensign in the main-rigging, union down—a signal of distress. The light-keepers attempted to inform some incoming vessels that help was needed, but did not succeed in attracting their attention—and they could not get off in the light-house boat, on account of the heavy sea. In a half-hour from the time she anchored, the schooner sunk at her anchors, her masthead being visible at high water. A boat was seen soon after, pulling for the harbor, but her occupants seemed to change their minds suddenly, and put out to sea again. She was soon lost sight of; but whether she was swamped or succeeded in landing at Rye, we have not yet learned. If her crew were acquainted with the coast they could probably have made a landing; but if they tried it at Wallis' Sands, we fear their chance was small, for the surf was very heavy at the time.

P. S. At a late hour Friday evening, we learned the rest of this story of "shipwreck and disaster at sea." The schooner is the Ella, of Stockton, Me., 63 tons, John Reed master, from Bangor for Boston, with a cargo of brick, lumber, &c. She sprung a leak at 12 o'clock Thursday night, when between Boon Island and this port, but was unable to make the harbor. She lies very near Saddle Rock reef, about a mile and a half off Wallis' Sands, and is fast breaking up, her cargo (what of it will float) being strewn along the beach. The crew, consisting of the captain, and Levi B. Knight and Charles Howard, seamen, landed at Wallis' Sands in the schooner's boat, notwithstanding the heavy surf. Either they were very lucky, or they know how to handle a boat.

PURE CANDIES.—Dr. Gilbert, of the Daniel Street Fruit and Confectionery Store, has handed in a package of his "Home Made" molasses candy—white, sweet and toothsome—which he sells at 30 cents a pound. The doctor, in learning to make candies, learned that branch of the business only, and knows nothing at all about the adulteration of materials; and as he uses no poisonous coloring matters to paint his wares, purchasers need not fear getting a bad article from him.

NAVAL.—Comdr. J. C. P. DeKrafft has reported for duty at this Navy Yard.

Vice-Admiral Porter has been relieved from duty at the Navy Department, at his own request.

U. S. S. California sailed from this Station for Boston, Firday afternoon.

—A Chicago daily has an enthusiastic column headed "Our Murders."

CARRIAGE REPAIRING OF ALL KINDS,

Morning Chronicle.

PHILLIPS' FIRST BABY.

Mrs. Phillips was on the very pinnacle of felicity. She was the mother of a boy which weighed eleven pounds.

Mr. Phillips bid fair to lose his mind entirely. He danced and sung, and fired guns from the top of the corn-house, whistled Yankee Doodle while eating breakfast, and wrung the necks of all the fowls on the place to make a chicken pie for the celebration.

This worthy couple had been married ten years, and this was their first child. People had laughed at them ten years on account of this luck—people who were overrun with children, and whose lives were made miserable by the spankings and scoldings they found it necessary to inflict upon their wretched little olive plants.

Now, Mrs. Phillips said she guessed they'd laugh out of the other side. There had never been so large a baby born in Smithfield before. Mrs. Jones' only weighed nine pounds and had a pug nose. Mrs. Sawyer's was red haired, and had a mole on its right foot—a sure sign that it would come to a bad end—and it only weighed seven pounds and fourteen ounces. She guessed folks had better look at home before they laughed.

Baby proved to be a Tartar. He had a temper like a wind-mill, and seemed determined to develope his feet and lungs to the utmost while he had leisure, for he screamed and kicked twenty-three hours out of the twenty-four.

But his mother declared he was an angel. We could never imagine an angel with puffy red cheeks, heels elevated in the air, sucking sugar rags, and being pounced about in a willow cradle to the tune of "Hie-diddle-dee," but then our imagination is not by any means so vivid as it might be.

From the hour in which the baby was born he was the Autocrat of the Household; everything had to bow to his nod.

The scullery door creaked; it was taken off the hinges, and the servant was in the draft all the time, because the creak might disturb the baby. For the same reason the coffee-mill was moved into the woodshed; the dishes must be washed out of doors—the clatter of the plates made baby scream; the washing was done in the barn; the dog was muzzled and the cat choked—all from fear of disturbing the baby.

Mr. Phillips gave a blacksmith who was located within a quarter of a mile, one hundred dollars to move his shop; and Biddy was moved to the cockloft of the woodshed on account of her snoring.

The child's diseases were legion. It was a wonder that it could draw it's breath with so many ailments clinging to it. Mrs. Phillips was continually on the watch for some new demonstration.

"Charles!" cried she, waking her husband from slumber one cold winter night, "it seems to me the baby don't breathe just right."

Mr. Phillips sprang up and listened. "Good gracious; he's got the snuffles, ain't he?"

"Oh, dear! what shall we do if baby is going to be sick?"

Mr. Phillips got a light, and the anxious parents brought it to bear on the face of their child.

"Oh, heavens!" cried his mother, "his face is actually purple! he's going to have the scarlet fever. See that spot on his elbow."

"It may be where he's laid on it!" said Mr. P."

"Laid on it? oh, you unfeeling man! you unnatural father! And there it's sucking its thumb! I've known from the first it would not live, it sucks it's thumb so much!"

"Seems to me, I've heard my mother say it was a sign of a healthy child to suck its thumb, but I won't be certain. Any way, it's a good sign or a bad one. I forget which."

"Run, Charles! run for a doctor, it's going to die—I know it! Oh, don't stop to dress—don't—it may die while you're waiting. Call for Granny Bates, and tell her to bring me catnip, and saffron, and rue, and peppermint—tell her to bring all the herbs she's got! and do hurry, Charles, do! Mercy on us! it's sucking both its thumbs! Run—run!"

Mr. Phillips caught up the first article of clothing he could lay his hands on, which proved to be an embroidered petticoat of his wife, but he was in too much haste and altogether too much excited to notice dress particularly. He flung the garment over his head, and tied it around his waist—slipped on his shoes, and then plunged out into the keen air. The doctor was asleep and did not care about turning out, but on being told that it was a case of life and death he yielded at once.

Mr. Phillips left him dressing, and sped to the residence of Granny Bates. The old lady was wise, but she was dreadfully superstitious, and believed religiously in warnings and apparitions. Phillips gave a thundering rap at her door, and directly a night-capped head appeared at an upper window.

"What do you want at this time 'o night, and who be ye?" said a cracked voice.

Phillips stepped out and stood plainly revealed by the light of a dim moon.

"Good gracious massy!" cried the old woman, "it's an apparatus from t'other world! And it's got a scolloped petticoat on. Land! I didn't think they wasted their time on such vanities as that are."

"It's dying!" exclaimed Phillips. "Come down quick."

"Not I? I ain't so green as to trust my old body with a supernatural ghost," and down went the window with a bang. Phillips pounded at the door till he was tired, and then made tracks for home.

Dr. Gray had just arrived. Mrs. Phillips was preparing to go into hysterics as soon as she heard his opinion.

Baby was much worse; it had not only sucked its thumbs but wiggled its toes. It could not continue long. The doctor, with a grave face entered the sick room. Biddy rubbed her mistress with camphor. Mr. Phillips stood by wiping his eyes with the drapery of his scant attire.

"Oh, doctor, doctor! will it die? Only save it, and you may take all I have!" cried Mrs. Phillips, wringing her hands. "I'll get down on my knees and thank you forever."

"Keep your sitting, marm, keep your sitting," said the doctor, taking a large pinch of snuff.

"Don't keep me in suspense! only look at its precious little arm! What is it? For the love of heaven tell me—let me know the worst!"

"Well, marm, if I speak out, you promise not to blame me?" asked the doctor, gravely.

"No, no!"

"Marm," said he, with his long face still more elongated, "it's my opinion, as a man and a physician, that the child has been bitten by four bedbugs, or else it has been bitten in four places by one insect of that description."

"Dr. Gray," cried the father, "do you mean to insult us?"

"By no means, sir—I repeat it."

"No you don't!" yelled Mrs. P. "It's enough to insinuate that I have bed bugs, to say nothing of your libel on that little angel cherub. Get out of this house this instant, you mean, cheating, insulting old vagabond." And seizing the butter-ladle from the table where Biddy placed it full of hot pepper tea, she flew at him. The doctor knew enough about women to know that in flight lay his safety, and with a hasty bow he backed off the steps and started for his gig. His heels flew up—his head went down, and his whole body spun off down the hill like a steel shod cutter. Mrs. P., nothing daunted, rushed after him and shared the same fate. The two brought up together at the foot of the hill in a water trough; but no words of sympathy were exchanged. The doctor got out as quick as he could, and galloped home, and Mrs. Phillips followed his example.

The baby lived and throve. As it grew older its dictatorship became more and more absolute. Phillips was down on all fours the greater part of his time, that the baby might ride on his back; and Mrs. P. left her arms bare in the coldest weather, because the steel springs of her dress hurt the baby.

Baby made a complete wreck of all the crockery in the house—pounded it with a hammer; he kicked his heels through the looking glasses, and tore the inwards out of pa's gold watch, unmolested. It pleased the dreary, weary, scary baby, his mother said—'the little mitty sugar plummy baby.'

One day when this wonderful baby was a year old the village inhabitants were startled by the disheveled apparition of Mrs. Phillips—bare headed, and wearing a wild expression of countenance—hurrying at a frantic rate to the joiner's shop where her husband worked. And instantly she reappeared followed by Phillips at a dog trot.

Old Squire Smith saw them, and being a man who lived in constant dread of fire, he thought it must be that the residence of Mr. Phillips was in flames. The old gentleman was perfectly insane on the subject of conflagration, and at the top of his lungs raised a cry: "Fire! Fire! Fire!"

"Where! where?" cried a score of voices. "Charles Phillips' house!" said the old gentleman.

The firemen gathered, got out the engine, and run with all speed to the house, but much to their surprise they did not even smell a puff of smoke in the region.

The head fireman, who was something of a wag, knocked at the door. Mrs. Phillips appeared, absolutely radiant.

"Is this the house, allow me to inquire, ma'm, that we were expected to squirt on?" said the fireman.

"I do not understand you," said Mrs. P., "but the baby has walked two steps—two steps on his own feet alone!"

"Sold! by Jupiter," cried the fireman; "and now, boys, here's three times three to the baby that's walked two steps! Hearty, my men!"

And they gave three cheers, drank a barrel of cider which Mr. Phillips rolled out, and returned home.

Plain Language from Truthful James.

(TABLE MOUNTAIN, 1870.)

Which I wish to remark—
And my language is plain—
That for ways that are dark,
And for tricks that are vain,
The heathen Chinee is peculiar,
Which the same I would rise to explain.

Ah Sin was his name;
And I shall not deny
In regard to the same,
What that name might imply,
But his smile it was pensive and child-like,
As I frequent remarked to Bill Nye.

It was August the third;
And quite soft was the skies;
Which it might be inferred,
That Ah Sin was likewise;
Yet he played it that day upon William
And me in a way I despise.

Which we had a small game,
And Ah Sin took a hand;
It was Euchre. The same
He did not understand;
But he smiled as he sat by the table,
With the smile that was child-like and bland.

Yet the cards they were stocked
In a way that I grieve,
And my feelings were shocked
At the state of Nye's sleeve;
Which was stuffed full of aces and bowers,
And the same with intent to deceive.

But the hands that were played
By that heathen Chinee,
And the points that he made,
Were quite frightful to see—
Till at last he put down a right bower,
Which the same Nye had dealt unto me.

Then I looked up at Nye,
As he gazed upon me;
And he rose with a sigh,
And said, "Can this be?
We are ruined by Chinese cheap labor"—
And he went for that heathen Chinee.

In the scene that ensued
I did not take a hand,
But the floor it was strewed
Like the leaves on the strand;
With the cards that Ah Sin had been hiding,
In the game "he did not understand."

In his sleeves, which were long,
He had twenty-four packs—
Which was coming it strong,
Yet I state but the facts;
And we found on his nails, which were taper,
What is frequent in tapers—that's wax.

Which is why I remark,
And my language is plain,
That for ways that are dark,
And for tricks that are vain,
The heathen Chinee is peculiar—
Which the same I saw first prevail in Maine.

A REMARKABLE SURGICAL OPERATION was performed on Gen. Kilpatrick, Friday, for the removal of an erectile tumor from the left side of the neck, which, first appearing two years ago, has since steadily increased, baffling the best medical skill of this country and Chili, until it protuded outward to the size of a hen's egg, while inwardly it was much larger, crowding the wind-pipe over to the left, and making the effort to talk or eat very painful. Electricity was the means decided upon for the removal of the tumor, and the General having been placed completely under the influence of ether, four large darning needles were inserted in the tumor, which was almost perfectly solid, and the full force of a powerful electric battery was applied. In thirty minutes the swelling began to disappear, and in two hours, during which the General was perfectly unconscious, it was entirely removed. The operation was completely prostrating, but perfectly satisfactory to the General and his friends; and the surgeons have no doubt of his speedy recovery. The electricity thrown into Gen. Kilpatrick's system during the time the battery was applied was sufficient to burn a piece of coal the size of a marble. The operation is the first of the kind ever attempted. It was performed by Dr. Rufus P. Lincoln, formerly Colonel of the Twentieth Massachusetts Volunteers. Gen. McCartney, Surgeon General Hammond and other military friends were present.

—The cool impudence of hotel clerks has become proverbial, but we never heard anything which better illustrates their equanimity under all circumstances, than the following: A pompous individual walked up to the office of the Stockton House, Cape May, one day, and, with considerable flourish, signed the book, and exclaimed, "I'm Lieutenant Governor of ——." "That don't make any difference," said the polite clerk, "you will be treated just as well as the others."

—When a man turns out a bad citizen, it does discredit to his religious character—when he is unfaithful to the brother he has seen, nothing can exclude inferences respecting his relations to the Father he has not seen.

—A smart boy was asked by his father what business he would follow. "The marble business, and I want ten cents to buy stock."

—Somebody having advertised that fluting would be nicely done, another somebody is out that filing will be executed at short notice.

TO PHYSICIANS.

NEW YORK, AUG. 15th, 1868.

ALLOW ME TO CALL your attention to my PREPARATION OF COMPOUND EXTRACT BUCHU. The component parts are BUCHU, LONG LEAF, CUBEBS, JUNIPER BERRIES.

MODE OF PREPARATION.—Buchu, in vacuo, Juniper Berries, by distillation, to form a fine gin. Cubebs extracted by displacement with spirits obtained from Juniper Berries; very little sugar is used, and a small proportion of spirit. It is more palatable than any other in use.

Buchu, as prepared by Druggists, is of a dark color. It is a plant that emits its fragrance; the action of a flame destroys this (its active principle,) leaving a dark and glutinous decoction. Mine is the color of ingredients. The Buchu in my preparation predominates; the smallest quantity of the other ingredients are added, to prevent fermentation; upon inspection, it will be found not to be a Tincture, as made in Pharmacopeas, nor is it a Syrup—and therefore can be used in cases where fever or inflammation exist. In this, you have the knowledge of the ingredients and the mode of preparation.

Hoping that you will favor it with a trial, and that upon inspection it will meet with your approbation,

With a feeling of confidence,
I am, very respectfully,
H. T. HELMBOLD,
Chemist and Druggist of 19 Years' Experience.

(From the largest Manufacturing Chemists in the World.)

NOVEMBER 4, 1854.

"I am acquainted with Mr. H. T. Helmbold; he occupied the Drug Store opposite my residence and was successful in conducting the business where others had not been equally so before him. I have been favorably impressed with his character and enterprise."

WILLIAM WEIGHTMAN.

Firm of Powers & Weightman, Manufacturing Chemists, Ninth and Brown Streets, Philadelphia.

HELMBOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU, for weakness arising from indiscretion. The exhausted powers of Nature which are accompanied by so many alarming symptoms, among which will be found, Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Memory, Wakefulness, Horror of Disease, or Forebodings of Evil; in fact, Universal Lassitude, Prostration, and inability to enter into the enjoyments of society.

The constitution once affected with Organic Weakness, requires the aid of Medicine to strengthen and invigorate the system, which HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU invariably does. If no treatment is submitted to, Consumption or insanity ensues.

HELMBOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT of BUCHU, in affections peculiar to Females, is unequalled by any other preparation, as in Chlorosis, or Retention, Painfulness, or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrus State of the Uterus, and all complaints incident to the sex, or the decline or change of life.

HELMBOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU AND IMPROVED ROSE WASH will radically exterminate from the system diseases arising from habits of dissipation, at little expense, little or no change in diet, no inconvenience or exposure; completely superseding those unpleasant and dangerous remedies, Copaiva and Mercury, in all these diseases.

Use HELMBOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU in all diseases of these organs, whether existing in male or female, from whatever cause originating and no matter of how long standing. It is pleasant in taste and odor, "immediate" in action, and more strengthening than any of the preparations of Bark or Iron.

Those suffering from broken-down or delicate constitutions, procure the remedy at once.

The reader must be aware that, however slight may be the attack of the above diseases, it is certain to affect the bodily health and mental powers.

All the above diseases require the aid of a Diuretic. HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is the great Diuretic.

Sold by Druggists everywhere. PRICE—$1.25 per bottle, or 6 bottles for $6.50. Delivered to any address. Describe symptoms in all communications.

Address Dr. H. T. HELMBOLD Drug and Chemical Warehouse, 594 Broadway N. Y.

WAR TALK.—There was sharp fighting Friday, between Raon L'Etorpe and Bruyeres, in the department of Vosges. The Prussian force was about 9000. The French force was not so large, and had much less artillery than the Germans. The fighting lasted all day, and the result was indecisive. The French retained the position which the Germans had attempted to carry a number of times.

The Prussians have evacuated Epernay.

A courier from Paris, the 4th, brought dispatches from Mr. Washburne to Mr. Motley. Mr. Washburne urges Mr. Motley to exert himself in favor of intervention to arrest this dreadful war, and assures him that the spirit of the French people makes the idea of conquering France ridiculous.

The journals say that there is a general rising in the Vosges. There are no regular troops there, but all the men are aroused. The Franc-Tireurs are in all the passes, and give no quarter to the enemy, whom they harass night and day, stopping their convoys and cutting their communications and roads.

The Prussians have been repulsed at Laon and Rouen.

A late dispatch from Epinay announces that on Wednesday a severe battle was fought on the road between Raon L'Etorpe and Bruyeres, in the Department of the Vosges, between a column of Prussians numbering 8000 and the French National Guard and regulars, who were entrenched upon the high road. The Prussians were pushing forward from the direction of Colmar, when they encountered the French behind earthworks, from which a galling fire was poured into the Prussians. The Prussians charged in column, supported by artillery, but were not sufficiently strong to dislodge the French, who harrassed them from all sides. The engagement ended with the retreat of the Prussians.

General Van Werden, the Prussian commander at Strasburg, reports that the besiegers lost from the 21st of Sept. to the capitulation of the place, 30 killed and 195 wounded. During the entire siege the Germans lost 946 in killed and wounded, including 113 officers.

☞ Capt. Shufeldt, commanding the Tehuantepec Canal surveying expedition, will sail in the steamer Kansas early next week, stopping probably at Vera Cruz on the way. Commander Selfridge, who has been in consultation with the naval authorities about renewing his exploration of the Darien route, will about the middle of November receive final instructions, and sail as soon afterwards as the preparations can be completed. The composition of the expedition will be about the same as last year. The steamer Nipsic is now on her way home from the fishing grounds, to be made ready for this service.

☞ The billiard match at New York, for the championship of America, between Rudolph and Dion, resulted in Rudolph's victory by a score of 1501 to 1192. Rudolph ran the game out on the 53d inning, scoring 48. His average was 28 17-53.

☞ Michael Burns and James Smith were arrested in Boston, Saturday morning, for burglary, and showed fight. One of the officers got his head laid open, but the rascals were locked up.

☞ Mrs. Celia Bickford of Haverhill, Mass., murdered her son Clarence, 11 years old, Saturday morning, and then cut her own throat with a razor.

☞ Mail advices from Honolulu bring the intelligence that the Queen dowager, relict of Kamehameha the third, died on the 20th of September.

☞ The reduction of the national debt during the year ending Oct. 1st, is $121,581,219. Oh! the extravagant Republican Administration.

☞ The steamer Hornet, alias the Cuba, has been seized by the government on suspicion of being a Cuban fillibuster.

Two parties on a squirrel hunt, at East Weare, on their return home a few days since, produced 7945 squirrels.

On the 4th inst., in Lowell, Mass., Edward H. Johnson and Jennie Henry, both of Littleton, were arrested at one of the hotels for adultery. Johnson has the credit of being a Deputy Sheriff, but his name is not upon the list. They have been living together in Lowell for some time, and a despatch was sent for their arrest as soon as their whereabouts became known.

The Laconia Democrat says that a long-haired fellow who goes about in a four-horse team, accompanied by a fiddler, selling a nostrum called "Instant Relief," was recently arrested there on a charge of rape upon a half-witted or half-crazed woman. He paid $20 for legal counsel, $160 for having committed fornication, (which he acknowledged,) and was then allowed to clear out. This same enterprising genius was around these parts, not long ago.

The Merrimack County Fair closed at Concord on Friday, after running three days. The fair has been a success in every particular, the receipts being abundantly sufficient to meet the expenses.

Hon. Francis N. Fisk, one of the oldest and most highly respected citizens of Concord, died at his residence, Friday, after a brief illness, at the advanced age of 90 years.

A young man, giving his name as Frank Morrill, hired a horse and wagon of L. A. Blood of East Milton, on Tuesday last, and did not return it. Mr. Blood found the property at a stable in charge of the police, the thief having put it up at a farmer's to bait, and left it.

Mrs. Geo. Littlefield, of Dover, was severely bitten in the lip by a dog, Wednesday afternoon.

Levi E. Priest of Harrisville, recently found his horse in his pasture with his throat cut. He had bought the animal for $150, a short time before.

HARD ON THE BOYS AND GIRLS.—At the Fair of the North Middlesex Agricultural Society, at Lowell, Mass., Sept. 29th, a sentiment referring to New Hampshire was given, which contained a good-natured rap at our rocks and cold winters, and delicately hinted that one branch of productive industry was becoming unfashionable in this State. The sentiment was as follows:

New Hampshire—her staples are Granite and Ice, And boys that are manly, and girls that are nice. The two former products give always full crops, No matter what drought, or how plenty rain drops, The latter, though good, the census revealed Have not quite kept up the old-fashioned yield.

Ex-Gov. Smyth of New Hampshire responded briefly and in a happy manner. He spoke a good word for New Hampshire, and remarked that it was not only true that they had "boys that are manly and girls who are nice," but they had also excellent and thorough-going farmers, and that New Hampshire was making progress in all that pertained to agriculture. Touching the shrinkage of population revealed by the census, he cast a good share of responsibility for this upon Massachusetts. The Governor's remarks were well received and applauded.

TEMPERANCE AND REPUBLICANISM.—A correspondent of the Nashua Telegraph, in an article on the Temperance movement, speaking of the Republican party, says:—

The leaders have all along admitted that the principal was correct, but it was not "policy" to recognize it in the party platform. Now I believe this to be a mistaken notion, and the result of the recent election in Maine serves to greatly strengthen this opinion. There the republican party introduced a strong prohibitory plank into their platform, and nominated for Governor one of the most uncompromising temperance men in the State, and yet he was elected by the usual majority. Now supposing that our republican convention imitate the example of Maine. Let them distinctly and unequivocally recognize prohibition in their platform, and nominate some such man as Hon. Horton D. Walker, Rev. James Pike or Hon. B. J. Cole, as their standard-bearer. Who doubts their success if they will do this? The prohibitionists will at once ratify their action (at least so their leaders say) and the republican nominee will be elected by a majority larger than Gov. Stearns received last year. Will it be done? I hope so. Away with further pleas of "political expediency." The time is ripe for honest, manly action on the part of the republican organization of New Hampshire. The interests of temperance are of vital importance, and the claims of its leading advocates cannot long go unheeded.

DEMOCRACY AND THE DEVIL.—The Concord Statesman, in an article under the above heading, says:—

To any reader acquainted with the politics of the various localities in our State, a glance at the Report of the New Hampshire Missionary Society for 1870 will develop an interesting, albeit somewhat painful, coincidence. Those towns which are spoken of, by the missionaries, as fields of great moral desolation, are almost invariably Democratic strongholds.

The Statesman goes on to show, from the Report, that Canaan, Effingham, Groton, Hebron, Lempster, Newington, Plainfield, Seabrook and Stoddard, are all hopelessly benighted and irreligious; and adds that they are all strongly Democratic. The article closes as follows;—

Such are the facts, according to the returns of the moderators and the missionaries. We leave it for the reader to ruminate on the question of cause and effect—whether these localities are Democratic because they are so wicked, or wicked because they are so Democratic.

COLUMBUS DISTANCED. — The Manchester Union says, "when President Johnson paid off over a thousand millions of the national debt in two years and nine months, Secretary Boutwell claimed the deed as the work of a Radical administration." This is the richest joke of the season. The Union is more of a discoverer than Columbus; for the latter only found what actually existed, while the former has found out what never took place — a mighty reduction of the national debt by the mypolicy copperhead, Andy Johnson. Such gammon is probably what best suits the Union's readers, though; we don't doubt but the editor knows the intellectual calibre of his patrons better than we do.

A BASE FALSEHOOD. — The Democrtic newspapers are hard pressed—so much so that they find themselves compelled to galvanize the old lie started in 1868, imputing to Vice-President Colfax a vile speech against foreigners, which he never made, and which was proved at the time, as it has been repeatedly since, a shameless forgery. The Democratic papers of the baser sort, in New York, hoping to deceive the Germans, have recently reproduced this mean cheat, and even some of the papers of the same persuasion in this State parade it in their columns. The N. H. Patriot does this, just as if its editor did not know that he was imposing upon his readers the basest of forgeries. Further comment upon this meanest of lying is unnecessary.—Statesman.

☞ A Southern exchange says: "Andy Johnson has kicked the lid off his political coffin and is sitting bolt upright therein, enlightening the skeletons, bats and owls of his vault about 'my policy' and 'secession.'"

BUSINESS NOTICES.

THE GREAT ENIGMA.—A thousand guesses have been made at the ingredients of SOZODONT, the most wholesome and perfect dental purifier the world has ever seen. They were all wrong, so, by way of throwing a little light on the subject, it is now announced that the LIBER, or inner bark of the QUILLAYA SAPONORIA, the Soap Tree of the Valley of the Andes, is one of the components of that peerless dentrifice.

"SPALDING'S GLUE," useful and true.

BAD PRACTICE.—You might as well expect to relieve and cure an inflamed eye by dusting irritating powders into it, as to expect to subdue and cure Catarrh (which is an inflammation of the mucous membrane of the air passages in the head) by the use of irritating snuffs, or strong, caustic solutions. Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy cures Catarrh by its mild, soothing action, which subdues the inflammation and restores the natural secretion of the mucous follicles. The proprietor offers $500 for a case of Catarrh that he cannot cure. Sent by mail on receipt of sixty cents. Sold by druggists. Address R. V. Pierce, M. D., 133 Seneca Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Systems Run Down.

Persons often allow their systems to "run down," or rather run them down by over-work, accompanied by a neglect of the proper means of invigoration. The result is what is called "GENERAL DEBILITY;" in other words, a failure and partial collapse of the physical forces, accompanied, usually, by great depression of spirits.

The best remedy in such cases is HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. Whether the state of exhaustion has been brought on by excessive physical labor, dissipation, anxiety of mind, exposure, or any other cause, the remedial effect of this great stomachic will be found equally prompt and certain. As a restorative, after severe sickness has prostrated the bodily and mental energies, it is pronounced, by competent medical authority, "THE BEST TONIC IN USE." If man were not foolishly careless about their health, and over confident in themselves, they would always, when engaged in any work that required great exertion, use corresponding means of sustaining their strength. For this purpose Hostetter's Bitters are invaluable. All toilers should use them as an invigorant.

For those constantly employed in in-door occupations, especially in crowded workshops, they may be reckoned as the very best safeguard of health. Where there is a predisposition to constipation, or a tendency to billiousness, they may be truly said to be a specific for which there is no substitute. dawlw8

Batchelor's Hair Dye.

PAIN KILLER.

This celebrated medicine has won a deservedly high reputation as an alleviator of pain and a preserver of health. It has become a household remedy, from the fact that it gives immediate and permanent relief. It is a purely vegetable preparation, made from the best and purest materials, safe to keep and to use in every family. It is recommended by physicians and persons of all classes, and to-day, after a public trial of thirty years —the average life of man—it stands unrivalled and unexcelled, spreading its usefulness over the wide world. Its large and increasing sale affords positive evidence of its enduring fame.

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL.

FOR DISEASES OF THE THROAT and LUNGS, such as COUGHS, COLDS, WHOOPING COUGH, BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA and CONSUMPTION.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men, it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a provision against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed seated, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it,

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses.

For a Cough and Cold, no better remedy can be had. Take small doses three times a day and wet the feet in warm water at night, until the disease is broken up.

For Influenza, when it affects the throat or lungs, take the same course.

For Whooping Cough, give small doses three or four times a day.

For Croup, give large and frequent doses until the disease is overcome.

No family should be without the Cherry Pectoral on hand to protect them, in case of attack, from the above complaints. The timely use thereof spares the patient a great amount of suffering and risk, which he would incur by waiting until he could get other aid. Parents should keep these houses for the exigencies that arise. Lives dear to you may be saved by it.

So generally are its virtues known, that we need not publish certificates of them here, or do more than assure the public that the best qualities it ever possessed are strictly maintained.

AYER'S

HAIR VIGOR,

For Restoring Gray Hair to its Natural Vitality and Color.

A Dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for Preserving the Hair. Faded or gray Hair is soon restored to its original color, with the glow and freshness of youth. Thin Hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use.

Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remains can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor, can only benefit but not harm it.

If wanted merely for a HAIR DRESSING, nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

New Advertisements to-day.

New Stock—C. E. Myers & Co.
Funeral Notice—G. A. R.

NEW SUBSCRIBERS who now pay in full in advance, for the DAILY CHRONICLE or the N. H. GAZETTE, for the year 1871, will be furnished with either paper gratis until Jan.

☞ ADVERTISEMENTS, whether transient notices or by yearly contracts, are inserted in both the Daily Chronicle and Weekly Gazette, or in either one of these papers only, as desired. And while there is no better advertising medium in this County, our rates are reasonable, especially to regular yearly patrons.

☞ The Piscataqua Fair opens tomorrow. Mr. Charles W. Marden has declined the position of Chief Marshal, on account of business engagements. Mr. Edward D. Coffin has consented to fill the place. Ned can do it.

☞ The little steamer Emerald, which plys between this city and the Navy Yard, has done much efficient duty in securing the Anchor Hoy and Engine. The upsetting of the scow was an unfortunate affair, much to be regretted; but the loss to the government will be very much less than has been anticipated and asserted.

☞ The schooner which sunk Friday off Wallis' Sands, was named the "Erie," and not Ella, as we were informed by one of her crew. The boat's crew had sharp work to make a landing through the surf. The captain, Mr. John Reed, on behalf of the crew, returns thanks "for the kind treatment shown us by the people on the shore, in assisting us to land, and taking us to their homes, and caring for our wants." The schooner was uninsured.

THE PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY will meet this (Monday) evening at the usual time and place, instead of on Tuesday as previously announced,—the G. A. R. occupying the Hall on the latter evening. It is very desirable that every member who intends to take part in the action of the Society during the coming winter, should be present on this occasion; as the success attending the season's rehearsing will very largely depend upon what is done this evening. G. A. R. Hall, at half-past 7 o'clock.

RECOVERED.—The Steam Fire Engine "Union," which was on the Anchor Hoy—the scow which met with the unfortunate accident recently—has been recovered, and was taken to the Navy Yard Saturday at 7 o'clock, P.M. The raising of the engine from the bottom of the river (about a mile above "Boiling Rock,") was placed in charge of Capt. Joseph W. Neal and Mr. Andrew J. Locke. A crane scow was used, and the engine hoisted to her deck. On Saturday afternoon the steamer Emerald went up the river and towed the scow down.

THEATRE. — The Bidwell company closed a successful engagement here, Saturday evening, and are to commence a week's engagement in Manchester, this evening. A marked improvement has been shown over their former good acting, and the old members seem to vie with the new ones in doing their best. The company is greatly strengthened by new stock, and the ladies present better looking faces, et cetera, than one in ten of travelling companies show. We hope Mr. Bidwell will soon give Portsmouth people another opportunity of welcoming him.

☞ Mr. John H. Bufford, the well-known lithographer, died at his residence in Boston, Saturday forenoon, at the age of 60 years. He was a native of Portsmouth, and learned the trade of book-binder with Mr. Harrison Gray, but went to Boston about forty years ago, and after working a short time at that trade turned his attention to lithography and became quite a noted artist in that line. He continued in that business up to the present time, latterly in connection with his sons. He was a kind-hearted man, and leaves a wife and children to mourn his decease. He was a relative of Hon. Marcellus Bufford

ACCIDENT.—On Saturday afternoon, as Mrs. John Bennett, Jr., wife of the baggage master at the Eastern Railroad depot in this city, was hauling her child in a baby-carriage, both mother and child were run over and seriously injured by the brewery team of Messrs. H. & M. Eldredge, which had taken fright at the half-past 5 o'clock train, and ran away. Mr. Marcellus Eldredge, we are informed, on hearing of the accident, at once visited the injured parties and requested that everything possible should be done for them, without regard to expense. We have not heard that any blame can be imputed to any one for the unfortunate mishap. No bones were broken, and on Sunday the lady and her child were said to be doing well.

ANTI-SLAVERY, NOW AND THEN.—There is a great difference between supporting the cause of freedom in these days, and thirty or forty years ago. From "Some Recollections of the Anti-Slavery Conflict, by Rev. Samuel J. May," we copy the following anecdote, which will be new to many and interesting to most readers:

Immediately after the first New England Anti-Slavery Convention, which closed on the 29th of May, 1834, I devoted four or five weeks to lecturing on the Abolition of Slavery in most of the principal towns between Boston and Portland. In several places there were strong expressions of hostility to our undertaking. But nothing like personal violence was offered me.

I stopped over Sunday, 8th of June, at Portsmouth, to supply brother A. P. Peabody's pulpit, that he might preach in a neighboring town. I consented to do this, on the condition that I might deliver an anti-slavery lecture from his pulpit on Sunday evening. This he gladly agreed to, and took pains to publish my intention. But, greatly to my surprise, after the forenoon service, the Trustees of the church waited upon me, and informed me that, at the earnest demand of many prominent members, I should not be allowed to speak on slavery from their pulpit; that the meeting-house would not be opened that evening.

My remonstrance with them was of no avail. So at the close of my afternoon services I said to the congregation: "You are all doubtless aware that I had arranged with your excellent pastor to deliver a lecture on American slavery from this desk this evening. But during the intermission your Trustees called and peremptorily forbade my doing so. Has our consenting with the oppressors of the poor indeed brought us to this? That I, who am striving to be a minister of Him "who came to break every yoke" am forbidden to plead with you who are reputed to be an eminently Christian, church the cause of millions of our countrymen who are suffering the most abject bondage ever enforced upon human beings?

I know not, I do not wish to know, who those prominent members of your church are, that have presumed to close this pulpit, and deny to others the right to manifest their sympathy for the down-trodden, and to hear what may and should be done for their relief. The time shall come when these prominent ones will be brought down, and their children and children's children will be ashamed to hear of their act."

With this exception, and an unsuccessful attempt to disturb a meeting that I was addressing in Worcester, I met with no serious molestation in any of the towns of Massachusetts, New Hampshire, or Maine, where I lectured during the summer and autumn of 1834. The faces of many of the rich and fashionable were averted from me; but "the common people" seemed to close this pulpit, and deny to others the right to manifest their sympathy for the down-trodden, and to hear what may and should be done for their relief. The time shall come when these prominent ones will be brought down, and their children and children's children will be ashamed to hear of their act." The stage-coachers and at the hotels where I stopped. Many of our conflicts were amusing rather than terrible."

Mr. May also states that about this same year,

"The trustees of 'Noyes Academy,' in Plymouth, New Hampshire, after due consideration, consented to allow colored pupils to be admitted into the academy. The respectable people of the town were so incensed, enraged by this encroachment upon the prerogative of white children, that, readily helped by the rougher but not baser sort of folks, they raised the building in which the school was kept from its foundation and carted it off into a meadow or swamp. In none of our cities, that I was acquainted with before the anti-slavery reform commenced, were colored children admitted into the common schools with white children."

RYE BOYS ABROAD.—Hon. Chas. P. Garland, late editor of the Jefferson (Texas) Radical, has been appointed Judge of the 14th Judicial District of that State, and is succeeded in the editorial chair by his brother, Mr. C. W. Garland. During his connection with the Radical, Judge Garland has been after the "conservatives" of that locality with a sharp sticks and has conducted the paper fearlessly. In turn, the rebels resorted to attempts at violence, but the presence of Uncle Sam's troops kept Judge Garland from being added to the list of Union martyrs. His brother promises that the tone and sentiments of the Radical shall not change.

Morning Chronicle.

EUGENIE'S ROMANCE.—A correspondent of the Lynchburg Virginian closes a recent letter in reference to the Imperial family of France as follows, with the following very romantic story of the Empress, hitherto unpublished, but for the exact truth of which he can vouch, and the curiosity of which is such that he relates it even at the risk of some imputation of egotism:

In 1851 the uncle of the writer resided as American Minister at Paris, with a large family around him. At this time appeared in Society there Eugenie Marie de Guzman, Countess of Montijo; a lovely person and an aristocratic name securing her brilliant conquests in society, and constituting her one of the most famous ladies in Paris. It was thought, and, indeed, freely remarked, that her mother was more ambitious than herself; that the former designed her for some great alliance, while Eugenie herself appeared a model of sincerity—a girl who would choose to consult her heart in any matrimonial affair.

Her sister had just married the Duke of Alba and Berwick, a lineal descendant of James II of England; and the worthy mother, Donna Maria, no doubt designed an equal matrimonial destiny for the more lovely of her daughters. But the heart is not always to be controlled, even in the most aristocratic life, or to yield to its exactions of convenience. Eugenie lost her's to a fine looking blonde Virginian, young William C. Rives, son of the American Minister. They were engaged to be married. But Aunt Judy Rives, a Virginia matron, very decided and singular in her scruples, interfered and broke off the match; the Countess was too "fast" for her old Virginian views of social sobriety.

The woman for whom the future had reserved so much, escaped the comparatively humble match that her heart had decided upon—the destiny of a quiet Virginia housewife—to ascend the throne of France. Alas, what other contrasts may yet remain for her! If an event had been ordered differently; if a prospective mother-in-law had proved complacent, the Empress, the woman who has adorned the throne of France, and displayed to the world the charms of another Cleopatra, might at this moment be a quiet country matron living in a farm-house near Cobham Depot, County of Albermarle and State of Virginia.

HOUSEWORK FOR GIRLS.—It is the law of God that no human beings can have a sound, vigorous body, accomplish much physically, and enjoy long life, without good muscles. Though there is a variety of ways by which exercise may be obtained, yet domestic labor is best adapted to develop and strengthen the whole system: Within a few years much interest has been awakened upon the subject of physical exercise, particularly as connected with schools and seminaries of learning. Besides the out-door exercises and games, calisthenics and gymnastics have been introduced inside the school-room, and are becoming a part of the regular exercises in many institutions. This is an improvement in the right direction, and is good as far as it goes, but is entirely inadequate to meet fully the demands of nature.

No kind of exercise for girls is so well calculated as household work to develop all the muscles of the body—to do it in early life, and gradually, under circumstances favorable to health generally. The girl and young woman must thus be trained year after year, otherwise she will never obtain that hardihood of constitution, that strength of muscle, that power of endurance; or in other words, that balance of temperament so essential to good health and happiness in all the social and domestic relations of life.—Dr. Allyne.

TOO MUCH FOR HER.—Little Jennie is a four-year-old, with a decided repugnance to keeping still or acting "proper" on all occasions. Her mother was about making a visit to an absent sister, and designed having Miss Jennie accompany her. So she says:—

"Now, Jennie, when we get to Aunt Clara's I want you to be a good little girl, and not act so rude as you do at home."

"Ma," says Jennie, in sober earnest, "how long are you going to stay at aunt's?"

"About a week, I think," said her mother.

"Well," says Miss Jennie, very decidedly, "if I have got to behave myself a whole week, I shan't go."

HARD ON HIM.—At one of our neighbors' houses was a very bright little girl. It chanced once that they had as a guest a minister, an esteemed friend. Little Anna watched him closely, and finally sat down beside him and began to draw on her slate.

"What are you drawing, Anna?" asked the clergyman.

"Ise making you picture," said the child.

So the gentleman sat very still, and she worked away earnestly for a while. Then she stopped, compared her work with the original and shook her head.

"I don't like it much," she said; "tain't a great deal like you. I dess I'll put a tail to it and call it a dorg."

—"Little boy, who stoned Stephen?" "The Jews." "Where did they stone him?" "Beyond the limits of the city." "What did they take him there for?" "To get a good shot at him."

—Kid gloves are rapidly rising in price, owing to the stoppage of the importation from Paris.

Motto for all good Cubans—"The labor we delight in physics (S)pain."—[Punchinello.

What the wild waves are now saying to the seaside hotels; "Shut up."—[Ex.

☞ A parody on Victor Hugo's address to the Prussian invaders closes as follows:—"Germans, hold back! Paris is indeed formidable. Think before her walls. It is better than fighting. All transformations are possible to her! Yesterday she was a monkey, to-day she is a man, to-morrow she may be a gorilla. She seems to sleep. 'Tis but the seeming. She is either drunk or playing possum. Her hair will rise like the forest monarchs of Argonnes. Her toothpick will leap from its scabbard like a sword; and this city, which yesterday was Paris, to-morrow may be Pekin or Porkopolis."

New Publications Received.

Coachmaker's International Journal, No. 1, Vol. VI, for October; Philadelphia; $3 per year. Splendidly got up, with numerous original plates, showing new and handsome styles of carriages; and containing a large amount of reading matter, invaluable to the carriage maker, and much of it very interesting to the general reader.

Peters' Musical Monthly for October. $3 per annum. For sale by Capt. E. G. Adams.

☞ The Providence Star says a charter will be applied for at the next session of the Legislature for a company of capitalists, who intend to benefit the laboring class by the erection of good houses and receiving weekly payments for the same, the occupant owning the house when a certain sum is paid, which in weekly instalments, will not be much, if any, larger than ordinary rent bills.

PEOPLE DO LIVE WITHOUT MONEY.—The Overland Monthly tells how the Mormons get along without greenbacks:

Hundreds of farmers, living in reasonable comfortable circumstances, and having large families to clothe and educate, will not see a dollar in money for years. Such a farmer wishes to purchase a pair of shoes for his wife. He consults the shoemaker, who avers his willingness to furnish the same for one load of wood. He has no wood, but sells a calf for a quantity of adobes, and adobes for an order of wood on the merchant payable in goods, and the order for a load of wood, and straightway the matron is shod. Seven watermelons purchase a ticket of admission to the theatre. He pays for the tuition of his children, 75 cabbages per quarter. The dressmaker receives for services four squashes per day. He settles his church dues in sorghum molasses. Two loads of pumpkins pay his annual subscription to the newspaper. He buys a "Treatise on Celestial Marriage" for a load of gravel, and a bottle of soothing-syrup for the baby for a bushel of string beans. In this primitive method, until the advent of the railroad, was nine-tenths of the business of the territory conducted, And even now, in the more remote settlements, a majority of all transaction are of this character.

J. EDGAR THOMPSON, CHARLES L. FROST, } Trustees.

The greater part of the road is already completed, and the earnings from the finished portion are already more than sufficient to pay operating expenses and interest on the bonds. The balance of the work is progressing rapidly, in time for the movement of the coming grain crops, which, it is estimated will double the present income of the road.

The established character of this line, running as it does through the heart of the most thickly settled and richest portion of the great State of Iowa, together with its present advanced condition and large earnings warrant us in unhesitatingly recommending these bonds to investors, as, in every respect, an undoubted security.

These bonds have 20 years to run, are convertible at the option of the holder into the stock of the company at par, and the payment of the principal is provided for by a sinking fund. The convertibility privilege attached to these bonds cannot fail to cause them at no distant day to command a market price considerably above par, besides paying about 9 per cent., currency, interest in the meanwhile. U. S. Five-twenties, at present prices only return five per cent.; and we regard the security equally safe.

THE DOMICILE ERECTED BY JOHN.

(Translated from the Vulgate of M. Goose. By A. Pope.)

Behold the mansion reared by dædal Jack!

See the malt stored in many a plethoric sack,
In the proud cirque of Ivan's bivouac.

Mark how the rat's felonious fangs invade
The golden stores in John's pavilion laid.

Anon with velvet foot and tarquin strides,
Subtle Grimalkin to his quarry glides,
Grimalkin grim, that slew the fierce rodent,
Whose tooth insidious Johann's sackcloth rent!

Lo! now the deep-mouthed canine foe's assault,
That vexed the avenger of the stolen malt,
Stowed in the hallowed precincts of that hall
That rose complete at Jack's creative call.

Here stalks the impetuous Cow with crumpled
Whereon the exacerbating hound was torn, [horn,
Who bathed the feline slaughter beast, that slew,
The rat predaceous, whose keen fangs ran thro'
The textile fibres that involved the grain
That lay in Hans' inviolate domain.

Here walks the forlorn damsel, crowned with rue'
Lactiferous spoils from vaccine drugs who drew,
Of that corniculate heart whose tortious horn
Tossed to the clouds, in fierce vindictive scorn,
The baying hound, whose braggard bark and stir,
Arched the lithe spine and reared the indignant
Of puss, that with vermicidal claw [fur,
Struck the weird rat, in whose insatiate maw
Lay reeking malt that erst in Juan's courts we saw.

Robed in senescent garb, that seems in sooth
Too long a prey to Ceron's iron tooth,
Behold the man whose amorous lips incline,
Full wish young Eros' osculative sign,
To the lorn maiden whose lact albio hands
Drew albu-latic milk from lacteal glands

Of that immortal bovine, by whose horn
Distort, to realms ethereal was borne,
The beast catulean, vexer of that sly
Ulysse quadrupedal, who made die
The old mordacious rat that dared devour,
Antecedanous ale in John's domestic bower.

Lo! here, with hirsute honors doffed, succinct
Of saponaceous locks, the Priest who linked
In Hymen's golden bands the man unthrift
Whose means exiguous stared from many a rift,
Even as he kissed the virgin all forlorn,
Who milked the cow with implicated horn,
Who in fierce wrath the canine torturer skied,
That dared to vex the insidious muricide,
Who let anroral affluence through the pelt [built.
Of that sly rat that robbed the palace Jack had

The loud cantankerous Shanghai comes at last,
Whose shouts aroused the shorn ecclesiast,
Who sealed the vows of Hymen's sacrament,
To him who, robed in garments indigent,
Excoriates the damsel lachrymose,
The emulgator of the horned brute morose,
That tossed the dog, that worried the cat, that kilt
The rat that ate the malt that lay in the house that Jack built.

A JOB FOR THE PRUSSIANS.—A French correspondent of the Newark Journal writing from Amiens, Sept. 21, says:—

I do not profess to be even a chamber strategist, but I give you what is generally expected to be the tactics of the Prussians. They are stronger in cavalry and artillery than ever. They will first have to settle accounts with a choice of the twenty forts and redoubts which cover the fortifications. On the north of Paris, the break in the chain is widest from the fort of Mount Valerien to that of St. Denis—between is the natural defence of the river, on the opposite bank of which stretch the wooded heights from Meudon, Sevres and St. Cloud, having in their rear Versailles. Five Prussian corps d'armee are concentrated around the city. One before St. Denis, the other behind the Meudon hills. The enemy must take the forts of Mount Valerien and St. Denis, as well as the heights of Sevres and St. Cloud, before having the road open to the fortifications. Still intervenes the Bois de Boulogne occupied with French troops.

Assuming the Prussians to have carried two forts, and thus free from a converging fire, they can open batteries on the city, subject to the "respect" that the guns of the fortifications and sorties from same may command. Four or five weeks of trench-approaches will be required before the counterscarps of the fortifications are reached. It is believed that the besieger intends to shell Paris into a surrender. How the mosaic population of the city will put up with the whir and whiz of the Krupp percussion guns is the "unknown quantity" in the calculation of the siege. Meantime the enemy's cavalry and infantry will have to reckon with the forces sent up from the Provinces to attack them in the rear, harass their supplies, interrupt their communications. Except in the heart of the city, all bridges, for miles beyond, which cross the Seine, have been blown up—an eventuality anticipated by the Prussians, who have a large supply of pontoons at hand. For some time, skirmishing, more or less severe, is to be expected—both sides attempting feints and surprises.

—Mr. Hotchkiss, of New Jersey, thought it would be a good plan to scare the wife of his bosom a little the other night, so he slipped out of bed, got on the roof and dropped a few bricks down the chimney. Mrs. H. didn't scare worth a cent, but quietly arose, bolted the scuttle-door, and again sought her peaceful slumbers. The rest of the night was spent by Mr. Hotchkiss on the ridgepole, wrapping his fluttering drapery around him, and sadly chanting, "Thou art so near and yet so far."

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT?

IF SO, SELECT THE BEST, which is the

AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.

It has proved itself, West, North and South, to be the best Paint known. It will not peel, crack, nor chalk off, and will last twice as long as the best Lead Paints.

It is cheaper, handsomer and more elastic, than the best of other Paints. It is the most convenient Paint made, being mixed, ready for application; it dries rapidly, and retains its shade perfectly, with a beautiful surface and glossy finish, and for years retains its gloss and beauty. It is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper, making a much more healthy, and much more easily cleaned with hot suds without injury.

One Gallon of Mixed Lead Paint weighs 20 lbs. and costs $2.25; and will only cover 16 square yds. 2 coats: while one gallon of the Chemical Paint only weighs 10 lbs., and costs but $2.50, and will cover 20 square yds., 2 coats,—thus making a saving of 22 cts., per gallon, besides covering 4 yards more than Lead Paint, and will last twice as long and look far better.

The Chemical Paint is sold by the gallon in quantities to suit purchasers, in 40 different shades and pure white, and will be supplied by experienced workmen and satisfaction given in every case; or in case of dissatisfaction in one year after put on, the whole cost of Paint will be refunded.

The sale of these unequalled Paints are daily increasing. Call and examine these ready mixed Paints, both in kegs, and applied to Buildings one year ago, before buying elsewhere, and save your money and money, and beautify your dwelling by using the

Portsmouth, N. H.

TUESDAY, OCT. 11, 1870.

WAR NEWS.—Later official reports are constantly being received at the War Office, from the Prussian headquarters before Metz, giving the particulars of the failure of the desperate attempts of the French to hew their way through the northern Prussian lines, on Friday. The German official reports assert that the whole French garrison of Metz, led by Bazaine, made a sortie on Friday night, and attacked General Von Kammer's command, occupying position above the works. The French, after repeatedly assailing the Prussian entrenchments with desperate but unavailing impetuosity, retreated at nightfall, leaving the field strewn with their comrades. The loss of the Prussians is officially stated to be 600, while the French loss quadrupled this, 2,500 of their army being placed hors du combat. Another dispatch reports that the issue of the battle has not been ascertained, but the whole Prussian force is represented to be moving to the north of Metz, to check the advance of the French. The entire French army has moved without the walls of Metz, and are concentrated in the northern forts and country immediately adjacent. It is supposed that Bazaine is endeavoring to cut his way through to Belgium.

St. Quentin is now open, the townspeople having gallantly withstood an attack by 1200 Prussians. Prefect Anatole Lafarge bade the people rise en masse and defend the place, then assembled the laborers, armed them from the gunsmith shops, and marched outside of the city. Barricades were raised near the canal, which were held for five hours against the incessant attacks of the Prussians, who retired with severe loss to Ribecourt. The townsmen also suffered considerably, and the prefect was wounded.

The French have made a movement under the guns of Forts Bicetre and Montrouge and have occupied the redoubt before Villejuif. Before the bombardment is opened from the Prussian artillery, the surrender of the city and works will be asked. The redoubt Pierrefitte near St. Denis has been abandoned by the French. Further details of the battle near Pithiviers have been received. The Prussians lost over 6000 cattle and sheep which they had gathered from all parts of the country, and which were in readiness to be driven to the army now investing Paris. This success has animated the Franc-tireurs, who are everywhere advancing.

The commanders of the German armies now operating in France, are evidently aroused to the dangers threatening their slender channels or communication with Germany, by raids of the free-shooters and Vosges riflemen, who harass the supply trains, displace rails, cut telegraph wires, and ambush couriers. In the Vosges the assaults of the swarms of free-shooters are terrible.

Prussian dispatches report that 14,000 French in the field of Badeny engaged the Prussians. The result of the engagement is contested; both sides claim the victory. The Prussians claim that they were triumphant, and that they captured 600 unwounded prisoners, besides inflicting disastrous havoc upon the French. Reports of the fight, received from French sources, say that their forces were not defeated, nor did they sustain any considerable loss in killed or prisoners, but that upon the contrary, they held the battle field, and that the fight was drawn. The Prussian General was Von Gagenfield, and the French General Petheven.

Garibaldi is to lead a French army.

Gambetta has escaped from Paris in a balloon.

The dispute between Prussia and England in regard to the latter allowing goods contraband of war to be furnished to the French by private parties in England, is growing serious. Warm notes have passed between the two governments.

There are no doubts that Bazaine is cordially co-operating with the government at Tours and Gen. Trochu at Paris.

The army at Lyons is advancing by way of Nancy to relieve Bazaine. It was the right wing of this army which had a battle with the Baden troops on Thursday.

Fighting before Metz was fiercely resumed on Sunday.

Dispatches from German sources contain no mention of ultimate results of the battle.

It is, however, known that Bazaine, who has reformed his shattered division, is making a last great effort to break through Von Vogt, Khetz and Kummer's commands to the northeast of Fort St. Julien.

OLD YORK.—At the recent meeting of the Maine Historical Society in York, Capt. Charles Moody made a public presentation of an old French Bible to the Society. It was once the property of Master Moody, of Academy fame. The title page reads, "La Sainte Bible trad, par les Docteurs de l'universitè de Louraine, 1572." 24. And so it is 298 years old, and is considered a valuable accession to the Society's Library.

Prof. Sewall of Bowdoin read from a letter addressed by Mrs. Maria Bullman of York, to her husband, then Surgeon with the troops at Louisville, and who was killed. The letter in effect stated that they had had a private day of fasting and prayer, and that "our pastor prayed two and a half hours—he has not overcome his fear of man." As Mr. Moody was spoken of, of old, as gifted in prayer, and as Mrs. Bullman speaks of our pastor who had not overcome his fear of man, there is little doubt that the letter refers to "Handkerchief Moody," who accidently shot and killed a man, and always wore a handkerchief over his face afterwards. He was an ancestor of Prof. Sewall; and the letter goes on to say that while the prayer was in progress, news of Pepperell's victory came, and the fasting and mourning was turned into thanksgiving and praise. But what would people say now if obliged to listen to prayers two and a half hours long?

☞ A postal experiment is about to be attempted in England, which has been tried in Germany with great success, and is there known as the card-post. The cards are issued by the post office at a lower price apiece than the regular postage on a letter. They contain a space for an address, another for a message, another for signature. The people of German cities buy them and carry them about in the pocket, but use them to write letters upon, usually, in pencil, in the street or anywhere, and simply drop them into the nearest post office receptacle. For all messages that do not require secrecy one can dispense with pen, stamps and envelopes. In England the card is to cost one halfpenny.

AN EAST BOSTON SENSATION.—Early Sunday morning, Frank Morang was rescued from drowning near Chelsea Street bridge. He stated that he had been in company during the evening with Frank Laury, and was on their way home to Chelsea, when suddenly, while upon the bridge, Laury made an attack upon him with a club, and after knocking him down, and then kicking him until he was nearly insensible, rifled his pockets, and afterwards threw him into the water, where his cries for help brought assistance. Laury had prevented his going home by way of Charlestown, telling Morang there might be highwaymen on Chelsea bridge.

SAD.—One of the chief sufferers by the recent flood in Shenandoah Valley was Captain Avis, owner of a large distillery which was swept away—who will be remembered as having been the jailor of John Brown, before his execution. We should be very happy to add that the suffering captain was also swept away, as well as his rum mill; but unfortunately he wasn't.

☞ A Washington grand jury have found a bill of indictment against Joseph Segar, of Virginia, for assult with intent to kill Ex-Congressman W. J. Lincoln, on the 4th of last August.

☞ William Stimson (colored), who committed an outrage on an aged white woman, was sentenced, in Raleigh, N. C., Friday, to be hanged. The jury was composed entirely of blacks.

☞ Paul de Cassagnac, the noted French writer and duelist, who was captured with Napoleon, has died in imprisonment at Hesse Cassel.

☞ Faneuil Hall was crowded with French sympathizers, Saturday evening. Hon. C. L. Woodbury and others made speeches.

☞ The Republicans of the 4th Massachusetts Republican Congressional District have re-nominated Hon. Samuel Hooper.

☞ Twenty States elect 177 members of the next Congress, this fall. The Democrats will elect 94 of this number—so they say!

☞ A verdict of $5000 was given Friday against Justice Lynch of Brooklyn, N. Y., for instituting malicious prosecutions.

☞ The 999th benefit of William Warren took place at the Boston Museum, last Friday evening.

☞ Cornelius Wendell, late Democratic Superintendent of public printing, is dead.

Correspondence of Chronicle and Gazette.

RAYMOND.—Just before the late rains, one of the afternoon freight trains up from Portsmouth communicated fire to some brush by the way-side, just below Raymond Station. It was driven by the wind into the pasture and woodland of Rev. J. Fullonton, and two or three acres burned over. The section hands stopped it with much effort. It was thought if it had not been discovered till a little later, it would have reached near if not quite to the buildings.

On Oct. 2d, a fine blossom was found on an apple tree in Raymond, on the Cram farm, owned by Mr. Levi Moulton.

Mr. James Hook of Chester, died suddenly Oct. 3d. He was at church the day preceeding. It was a case of the lock-jaw. He was a very laborious farmer; by his own labor and industry he had acquired a good property, and was held in high estimation. He was a native of Danville, and was 61 years of age. J.

New Publications Received.

The November Galaxy will contain a history, by Hon. Gideon Welles, of the attempt to relieve the Fort Sumter garrison just prior to the opening of the war. Mr. Welles will bring out many new and important facts, some of which tend to inculpate high officials.

The first number of the new magazine, Scribner's Monthly, conducted by J. G. Holland, starts off with 49 illustrations, including a frontispiece, on fine tinted paper, illustrative of George MacDonald's new story, "Wilfrid Cumbermede." And the publishers promise still more brilliant things for the future.

A DECEITFUL WRETCH.—Mr. Keonig of Davenport, Iowa, agreed to commit suicide if his wife would, and while she resolutely held her head under the water until dead, lifted his above the surface, and subsequently emerging entirely, coolly arranged for her obsequies.

☞ A young lady school-teacher in Canton, Mass., died recently after being stoned by some of her pupils, idle and dissolute boys, in a way that induced the opinion that her death was caused by their villainy.

☞ Horatio Seymour of New York will not be a candidate for the next Presidency. He says one trial is enough to satisfy any defeated man, and that he prefers sticking to the cheese business.

☞ The President has issued a proclamation defining the rights of belligerents to enter and leave our ports.

☞ The Boston Times says the rumor of the death of Von Moltke was caused by his having been on his beer.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

"TIRED NATURE'S SWEET RESTORER-BALMY SLEEP." But there are times when this "Renewer of Strength," is denied to us, times when our minds and bodies have been so overworked and are so worn out that we "woo the drowsy god in vain." The Peruvian Syrup (an Iron Tonic,) renews our strength and makes our rest sweet and refreshing.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Systems Run Down.

Persons often allow their systems to "run down," or rather run them down by over-work, accompanied by a neglect of the proper means of invigoration. The result is what is called "GENERAL DEBILITY;" in other words, a failure and partial collapse of the physical forces, accompanied, usually, by great depression of spirits.

The best remedy in such cases is HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. Whether the state of exhaustion has been brought on by excessive physical labor, dissipation, anxiety of mind, exposure, or any other cause, the remedial effect of this great stomachic will be found equally prompt and certain. As a restorative, after severe sickness has prostrated the bodily and mental energies, it is pronounced, by competent medical authority, "THE BEST TONIC IN USE." If men were not foolishly careless about their health, and over confident in themselves, they would always, when engaged in any work that required great exertion, use corresponding means of sustaining their strength. For this purpose Hostetter's Bitters are invaluable. All toilers should use them as an invigorant.

For those constantly employed in in-door occupations, especially in crowded workshops, they may be reckoned as the very best safeguard of health. Where there is a predisposition to constipation, or a tendency to biliousness, they may be truly said to be a specific for which there is no substitute. dawlw6

☞ Bishop Niles will officiate for the first time at the Episcopal church in this city on Sunday, Nov. 27th.

☞ Dr. Robert M. Otis, of Kittery, lost a valuable horse, Monday. He broke his leg, and had to be killed.

☞ The Navy Yard Steam Fire Engine, lately raised from the bottom of the river, is but little damaged after all. About $200 will put her to rights again.

☞ Are the schools as usual, to be closed for one day, during the Fair; and the stores—that all may have opportunity to attend? If so, Wednesday would seem to be the best afternoon.

☞ Mr. James Lane of Hampton has paid much attention to raising nice potatoes; and in the Seedling of his name, thinks he has secured a very superior variety — in which opinion, many prominent citizens of Exeter, Hampton and Portsmouth seem to agree with him, as appears by his advertisement. Lane's Seedling will be on exhibition and sale at the Piscataqua Fair.

STORER ENCAMPMENT, G. A. R., made a fine appearance on Monday, as they marched through the streets escorting the remains of comrade John Harmon to their last resting place. Mr. Harmon served in the 13th N. H. Regiment, Co. K., and was wounded severely in the leg while charging on Fort Harrison before Richmond. He was taken prisoner previously at the battle of Fredericksburg, was confined in Libby prison for more than a year, and there contracted the disease which with his wounds resulted in his death. He was a tried and trusty soldier, whose bravery was never questioned and whose patriotic course led others to enlist in the darkest days of the Rebellion. Mr. Harmon leaves a wife and seven children.

☞ Mr. John S. Treat of this city will make a good show of marble and other stone work at the Piscataqua Fair. At his establishment on the corner of Deer and Vaughan Streets, Monday, we noticed a handsome panneled white marble slab, 8 feet by 5, with this inscription in varied letters: "Erected 1785, by Woodbury Langdon. Rebuilt 1870, by F. Jones." This is to be placed in the centre of the front of the new hotel; and we understood it was with difficulty the friends of Mr. Jones procured his consent to his name appearing on the tablet; but certainly it is eminently fitting that it should be placed upon this splendid monument to his liberal public spirit and enterprise.

VERY EXCLUSIVE.—A young lady of this city one evening recently, under the impression that a musical association of which she is a member was to hold a meeting at G. A. R. Hall, mounted the stairs leading to that place, and attempted to enter. On trying the door, she met with unexpected resistance, and probably made some considerable noise in her unavailing attempts to overcome the obstacle to her progress; when suddenly the door opened, and the astonished damsel was confronted by a fierce looking G. A. R., armed with a musket and bayonet. The terrified intruder—whose excited imagination magnified and multiplied the armed sentinel into a whole army corps. with artillery, ammunition and baggage trains complete,—beat a hasty retreat down stairs, and halted not to reorganize until the pavement of Market Street was beneath her feet. She won't go where the G. A. R. boys are holding high-jinks, any more; but thinks they might have let one lady in, just for once. We think so too; if we belonged to the organization, we should want a few ladies admitted, just to look at; for even a very ordinary woman is a more pleasing object to the eye of a man of taste, than the whole lot of the G. A. R. chaps, all put together. Them's our sentiments.

—Platonic love—a "love of a bonnet."

Morning Chronicle.

ANECDOTES OF ADMIRAL FARRAGUT. He was at Norfolk when the rebellion broke out, April 12, 1861. His friends and relatives immediately endeavored to influence him to join its standard, by appeals to his ambition, and representations of his domestic ties and associations.

"You are by birth and natural sympathies with us;" they said, "and you can command any position you may desire."

Farragut did not leave them long in doubt, or submit long to the insult of such suggestions. He answered the first plain and direct proposal made to him to turn traitor in words which betrayed his usual passion. Pointing to the national colors yet floating above the navy yard at Norfolk, he exclaimed: "Gentlemen, I will see every man of you eternally d——d before I would raise my arm against that flag."

When the yard was destroyed by Commodore McCauley, Farragut left the city, and returned to his duty at New York. Here he encountered Com. McCauley, who, at his solicitation told him the circumstance of the destruction of the Norfolk navy yard, and the noble vessels stationed there.

"How could you do it, Commodore? how could you do it?" he said, tears standing in his eyes at the thought of the sacrifice.

"My officers were false; there was not one I could depend upon."

"Why didn't you send for me?" thundered the old captain indignantly."

He was sent for by the President, but not until long after the war had opened. The master mind of the navy was itself for many months of the early part of the war in weeding the service of unworthy and incompetent officers. While Grant filled regimental rolls in Governor Yates' office, and mustered eager volunteers into the army, Farragut did duty hardly less worthy his genius on the retiring board of the navy. It was not until Grant had won Donelson and Shiloh that Farragut received a command, and was ordered to the command of the naval expedition, which was to assist Butler's army in taking New Orleans.

Of the battle of the forts in the Mississippi it is not our purpose to speak in detail. The personal service of Farragut in that wonderful achievement it is necessary only we should relate, not solely as an important incident of his life, but as illustrating the decision of character and daring of mind. To that battle, it is recorded, he advanced without hesitation. Warned by the officers of English and French ships of war in port at New Orleans that "no fleet could pass up the river without a miraculous interposition," he answered:

"You may be right. But I was sent here to take New Orleans, and I shall try it.

"Whatever is to be done, do it quickly. When in the opinion of the flag officer the propitious time has arrived, the signal will be made to weigh and advance to the conflict. He will make a signal for close action, and abide the result—conquer or be conquered."

In the battle which ensued it is stated that the Hartford, in which Farragut sailed, steamed so slowly past the forts that the vessel following her were in danger of running into her in the excitement of the hour. With the utmost coolness Farragut ordered his flag ship to pass the fort and engage it at close quarters. His example was not lost upon the other officers of the fleet, Captain Craven, of the Brooklyn particularly distinguishing himself by his coolness and the admirable service of his ship. It was not lost upon the observing Farragut, and after the day was over, he took the hand of Craven in both his own, and generously gave him the credit of the victory. "You and your noble ship have been the salvation of the squadron," he said.

A GRAVE OFFENCE.—Teacher, in loud tones—"What is your name?"

Boy, in a weak voice—"Johnny Wells, sir."

"How old are you, John Wells?"

"Twelve years old, sir."

"Now, John, tell me who made this great and glorious universe?"

"Don't know sir."

"What, 12 years old, and don't know who made this great and noble sphere. James Smith, go and get me a whip."

The birch was brought, and held over the trembling boy. In thundering tones the rigid disciplinarian demanded:

"Now tell me who made this great world we live in?"

In a tearful voice Johnny answered: "I did, sir; but I won't do it again."

THE WOMAN SUFFRAGE resolution was not beaten very badly at the Republican convention (the vote standing only 196 to 139,) because — because — well, don't you see it was not worth while; and because it's just as well to comfort the dear, preserving creatures who lead off, until they have all quite made up their minds upon the subject; and then, well, if they positively insist upon voting, who will have the courage to refuse them the ballot? And then you know we should not have any voters at all, if it was not for the women. —Charlestown Advertiser.

RETALIATION.—There was once a brisk rivalry at Westerly, R. I., between the missionary of the Christian association and an advertiser of patent medicines. The former painted in large letters on a fence, "What shall I do to be saved?" and the latter put under it, "Use ——'s German Bitters!" But the missionary retaliated by printing under "Use ——'s German Bitters," the text, "Prepare to meet thy God!"

☞ Kentucky is a nice place to live in. At Columbus, in that State, a few days ago, five men had a free fight, and in three minutes from the start they were all satisfied. Two were fatally and one dangerously stabbed, one had his skull fractured with a club, and the other was shot.

A Y E R ' S

H A I R — V I G O R ,

For Restoring Gray Hair to its Natural Vitality and Color.

A Dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for Preserving the Hair. Faded or gray Hair is soon restored to its original color, with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use.

Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remains can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor, can only benefit but not harm it.

If wanted merely for a HAIR DRESSING, nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

GOOD FOR SOMETHING.

"Dood-for-nossin 'ittle son,
Papa tells me; jes for fun,
I dess—for, ma, oo say
I dood for sumsin all ee day."

And so you are, my precious one,
Full of mischief, love and fun;
Good to fill our hearts with joy,
Our darling little blue-eyed boy!
Good to clutter up the room;
Good to ride astride the broom;
Good to tip my basket o'er,
Rolling spools about the floor;
Good to pull the baby's hair,
And make a horse of every chair;
Good to tumble on the floor,
And shut poor fingers in the door;
Good to wear out little shoes,
And mamma's wax and thimble lose;
Good "dear damps" specs to hide,
And on his foot to "take a "ride;"
Good, when let out doors to play,
To ope the gate and run away;
Good to watch for "papa tum,"
And clap wee hands when he gets home;
Good to climb up on his knee,
And laugh and shout with boyish glee;
Good, when wearied out with play,
Your head on mamma's lap to lay,
Quite ready now to be undressed,
And in her arms be lulled to rest,
By stories, which you like so well,
Of "Jack and Gill," and "Ding-dong Bell;"
Good, ere cuddling down to sleep;
To pray the Lord your soul to keep;
Good to wake up with the day,
And fold your little hands and say:

"Dear Dod, do bess my dear mamma,
My baby sister, and papa,
And 'ittle Willie, too, I pway,
And keep us safe froo-out ee day."
Ah! good for many things thou art,
Our bonny boy with blithesome heart,
Our boy with many a winsome way,
Mishap and prank and merry play;
Our "dood-for-nossin 'ittle son,"
As papa calls you, "jes for fun."

A TURKISH LUNCH.—I never wanted another one. The cooking apparatus was in the little lunch room, near the bazaar, and was all open to the street. The cook was dirty, so was the table, and it had no cloth on it. The fellow took a mess of sausage meat and coated it round a wire, and laid it on a charcoal fire to cook. When it was done he laid it aside, and a dog walked sadly in and snipped it. He smelt it first, and probably recognized the remains of a friend. The cook took it away from him, and laid it before us. Brown said, I pass. He played euchre sometimes,—and we all passed in turn. Then the cook baked a broad flat wheaten cake, greased it well with the sausage, and started to bring it to us. It dropped in the dirt, and he picked it up and polished it on his breeches and laid it before us. Brown said, "I pass," we all passed, and called a new deal. He put some eggs in a frying pan, and stood pensively prying slabs of meat from between his teeth with a fork. Then he used the fork to turn the eggs with, and brought them along. Brown said, "I pass." We all followed suit. We did not know what to do, and so we ordered a new ration of sausages. The cook got his wire, spit on his hands and fell to work. This time with one accord, we all passed out. We paid and left. That is all I learned about Turkish lunches. A Turkish lunch is very good, no doubt, but it has its weak points.—Mark Twain.

—Senator Carpenter, in a recent speech at Milwaukee, said: I was standing by one of our Wisconsin regiments, when, being mustered out, it finally broke ranks in the streets of Milwaukee. I shall never forget a brief conversation I heard between a citizen and one of the soldiers who had just stepped out of the ranks. After the ordinary salutations, "Well," said the citizen, "well, John, you must have seen a good many tough sights," "Yes," said John, "I would not sell what I have seen for a hundred thousand dollars, and I would not see it again for a hundred millions."

—It was forty years to a day from the battle of Bunker Hill to Waterloo. From Washington's inauguration to Jackson's, was 40 years; and 40 more to Grant's; three important epochs in our politics. It is supposed to be 40 years from the expulsion of the Bourbon Charles X, in 1830, to the restoration of his great grandson in 1870, after the occupation of Paris by the king of Prussia, the return of Louis Napoleon to Paris, and his formal abdication—just the programme of 1814. What shall we see at the end of the next 40 years?—Salem Gazette.

—The case of Baker and other claimants of the reward of $25,000, offered by the corporation of Washington for the apprehension of the assassins of Lincoln, which had been carried by appeal up to the Supreme Court of the district, was on Monday decided against the claimants. The court based its decision upon the ground that the capture of these criminals was a national and not a municipal concern, and that the aldermen and council had no power to tax citizens of the district for that purpose.

—The French have women surgeons, and they are said to take off a leg in such a fascinating manner that amputation is in favor.

—There's one thing which can always be found, and that is fault.

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT?
IF SO, SELECT THE BEST, which is the
AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.
It has proved itself, West, North and South, to be the best Paint known. It will not peel, crack, nor chalk off, and will last twice as long as the best Lead Paints.
It is cheaper, handsomer and more elastic, than the best of other Paints. It is the most convenient Paint made, being mixed, ready for application; it dries rapidly, and retains its shade perfectly, with a beautiful surface and glossy finish; and for years retains its gloss and beauty. It is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper, making a smooth glossy finish, which can be cleaned with hot suds without injury.
One Gallon of Mixed Lead Paint weighs 20 lbs. and costs $2.72, and will only cover 16 square yds, 2 coats: while one gallon of the Chemical Paint only weighs 10 lbs., and costs but $2.50, and will cover 20 square yds., 2 coats,—thus making a saving of 22 cts., per gallon, besides covering 4 yards more than Lead Paint, and will last twice as long and look far better.
The Chemical Paint is sold by the gallon in quantities to suit purchasers, in 40 different shades and pure white, and will be applied by experienced workmen and satisfaction given in every case; or in case of dissatisfaction in one year after put on, the whole cost of Paint will be refunded.
The sale of these unequalled Paints are daily increasing. Call and examine these ready mixed Paints, both in kegs, and applied to Buildings one year ago, before buying elsewhere, and save your money and money, and beautify your dwelling by using the
AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINTS,
which are for sale at the

AYER'S
HAIR VIGOR,
For Restoring Gray Hair to its Natural Vitality and Color.
A Dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for Preserving the Hair. Faded or gray Hair is soon restored to its original color, with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use.
Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied, and decayed. But such as remains can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor, can only benefit but not harm it.
If wanted merely for a HAIR DRESSING, nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

The Daily Chronicle.

Portsmouth, N. H.

WEDNESDAY, OCT. 12, 1870.

WAR TALK.—Bismark has consented to relieve the minds of the French people of one of their anxieties. It is officially proclaimed that while Prussia cannot recognize the present French government, she will not restore the Bonaparts.

The Prussian government has officially declared that if the Parisian government persists in resistance until the famine point is reached, it must bear the responsibility of the suffering which will inevitably ensue.

The German press ridicules the idea of the French levy en masse, as mere bombast to cover their failure.

The Prussian commander at Laon has issued a proclamation to the inhabitants of the district of the Aisne, declaring that four Frenchmen, innocent or guilty, will be shot for every Prussian whom the inhabitants may kill.

At Artenay, on Monday, the French were driven from their position after a six hours' fight.

NAVAL.—We notice the return of Chief Engineer James W. King, chief of the Bureau of Steam Engineering, to his duties in the Navy Department in Washington, he having finished his tour of inspection of the different Navy Yards, and also of the private establishments where work is being performed for the Bureau of which he is chief. His examination included a very critical one of the recent improvements in the iron and steel works of the country.

During the late war, Mr. King superintended the construction of ironclads built upon the western waters, and he is well and favorably known to the business men of the country. He was afterwards selected by the Navy Department to visit all the principal dock yards and iron works of Europe, and on his return from there was detailed to plan and superintend the construction of the extensive Navy Yard in contemplation at League Island.

The famous black team, Jessie Wales and Darkness, have been matched in two races, each for $2500 a side, one at Mystic and the other at Beacon Park, to be trotted next week on some day which will not interfere with other races. Their opponents are Kirkwood and Honest Allen—a very strong term.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

BAD PRACTICE.—You might as well expect to relieve and cure an inflamed eye by dusting irritating powders into it, as to expect to subdue and cure Catarrh (which is an inflammation of the mucous membrane of the air passages in the head) by the use of irritating snuffs, or strong, caustic solutions. Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy cures Catarrh by its mild, soothing action, which subdues the inflammation and restores the natural secretion of the mucous follicles. The proprietor offers $500 for a case of Catarrh that he cannot cure. Sent by mail on receipt of sixty cents. Sold by druggists. Address R. V. Pierce, M. D., 133 Seneca Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

THE WORD "SOZODONT," which is fast becoming a household word, is derived from the Greek, and composed of two words, SOZO and ODONTES. "SOZO," translated, means to preserve, and "ODONTES," the teeth. SOZODONT, a preserver of the teeth. And it is true to its name.

"SPALDING'S GLUE" will mend your ways, or anything else that needs mending.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Systems Run Down.

Persons often allow their systems to "run down," or rather run them down by over-work, accompanied by a neglect of the proper means of invigoration. The result is what is called "GENERAL DEBILITY;" in other words, a failure and partial collapse of the physical forces, accompanied, usually, by great depression of spirits.

The best remedy in such cases is HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. Whether the state of exhaustion has been brought on by excessive physical labor, dissipation, anxiety of mind, exposure, or any other cause, the remedial effect of this great stomachic will be found equally prompt and certain. As a restorative, after severe sickness has prostrated the bodily and mental energies, it is pronounced, by competent medical authority, "THE BEST TONIC IN USE." If men were not foolishly careless about their health, and over confident in their strength, they would always, when engaged in any work that required great exertion, use corresponding means of sustaining their strength. For this purpose Hostetter's Bitters are invaluable. All toilers should use them as an invigorant.

For those constantly employed in in-door occupations, especially in crowded workshops, they may be reckoned as the very best safeguard of health. Where there is a predisposition to constipation, or a tendency to billousness, they may be truly said to be a specific for which there is no substitute. dawlw6

PAIN KILLER.

This celebrated medicine has won a deservedly high reputation as an alleviator of pain and a preserver of health. It has become a household remedy, from the fact that it gives immediate and permanent relief. It is a purely vegetable preparation, made from the best and purest materials, safe to keep and to use in every family. It is recommended by physicians and persons of all classes, and to-day, after a public trial of thirty years—the average life of man—it stands unrivalled and unexcelled, spreading its usefulness over the wide world. Its large and increasing sale affords positive evidence of its enduring fame.
